

was, that noble and pas-
 enery was wanting in one operatively needs. In all humanity held no place
 ontory to the north, there ruin of old Kilchurn, and er reach of the lake, the
 But there was not a visible
 ere were only the fir-trees ravestones on the largest deserts of Breadalbane.
 now, it seems as if man-
 nds of the ages written the world. Under the ore me one of the most or et amula Roma. She he record sixty gene-
 ient pyramid these bear
 ient bulwarks, and many
 all, the cathedral spire is t, and often in the clear
 tly in slanting sunshine
 d. Then the old city
 d mellowest tones, and
 reigns over the whole
 s of the far blue hills.
 ounded by the loveli-
 not subdued.

INDEX.

A

Abundance of objects, 78.
 Academical grades, 103.
 Accomplishments of a modern gentleman, 80.
 Accumulation, the instinct of, 186.
 Accuracy, lack of, in women, 231.
 Acquaintances, 302.
 Active temperament, 24.
 Activity, intellectual, need of it, 347.
 Adults, their power of resistance, 122.
 Affectation of preferences, 281.
 Affectations, effect of, 306.
 Albert, Prince, 100.
 Alchibaries, education of, 84.
 Amateurship, 99.
 Ambition, self-government, for the sake
 of, 72.
 Ampere, his religious faith, 220; in society, 311; his clothes, 312.
 Amusements, 321.
 Anatomy, easily forgotten, 83.
 Ancient thought, modern indifference
 to, 108.
 Archimedes at the siege of Syracuse,
 438.
 Aristocracies, their restriction of studies, 75.
 Aristocracy, the English, of the last generation, 76; its liberal and illiberal spirit, 287.
 Arnold, Dr., his definition of religion, 214; his intellectual force, 220; his travels on the Continent, 292; his longing for natural beauty, 434.
 Arnold, Matthew, a consideration suggested by, 349; his poem, "Self-dependence," 366.
 Associations, incongruous, 129.
 Athletic Englishman, 24.
 Attractiveness of intellectual labour,
 45.
 Authority, central, in the mind, 57; not recognised by the intellect, 224; rejection of, 299.
 Author, the, views from his windows,
 447, 448.

Authors, their want of discipline, 50;
 professional, their lives not always favourable to culture, 184.
 Avarice, in time, 148.

B

Baker, Lady, 240.
 Balzac, 339.
 Barbarian feeling, expression of, 285.
 Baudelaire, Charles, on daily labour,
 58.
 Beckford, Mr., how he wrote "Vathek,"
 8; his riches, 168.
 Beer, 17.
 Beginnings, 107.
 Beliefs of the intellectual, their provisional character, 399.
 Béranger, effects of Paris on his mind 442.
 Bernard, St., his absorption in thought 444.
 Birth, the sentiment of, 297.
 Dixio, Alexandre, 31.
 Bossuet on riches, 181.
 Botany, 96.
 Botch-work, 406.
 Bourgeoisie, French, want of elevation
 in, 294.
 Boy, who spoke Latin, 93; the author's eldest, 120.
 Boys, two, their muscular and intellectual tendencies, 22.
 Brahe, Tycho, 182.
 Brain, demands repose when exhausted, 9; state of, at different times, 388; in youth and maturity, 391.
 "Brambleighs, The," quoted, 406.
 Breakfast, 14.
 Browning, effect of locality on, 437.
 Bruno, Giordano, 53; his indifference
 to external events, 440.
 Buckland, Mrs., 220.
 Buckle, Mr., his love of town life
 437.
 Buillon, 409.