Marriage requires the fulfilment of several conditions, in order that it may be really the cause of mutual happiness. Could the veil, which covers the origin of domestic vertichedness, be raised, and its true source in every instance disclosed, in how many could it be traced to physical disqualifications and their attendant disappointments. Excesses are always injurious; the gift which, when used in moderation, is fraught with advantage, becomes, when abused, the prolific source of misclines, and of greater or less injury to the constitution and vital powers.

The particular excesses, on the nature and consequences of which this Treatise professes to dilate, are productive of greater misery to the human frame than any other to which it is subject.

This Work contains an accurate and complete account of the Anatomy and Physiology of the Reproductive Organs, and of their relative conditions in health and dispass. Nor are these the pole contents of the work: the means of escape, as well as the nations of the danger, are pointed out in class and intellections of the danger, are pointed out in class and intellections of the contents of the first danger, are pointed out in class and intellections of the contents of the contents of the danger, are pointed out in class and intellections of the contents of the con America.

Por ure these the sole contents of the work: the means of escape, as well as the nature of the danger, are pointed out in clear and intelligible language. It deservedly requires the closest autoution and study, for what subject can be of more importance than the preservation of health, and of the physical capabilities of which every man should be passessed. It unfortunately happens, that, this unhappy victim of excessive indulgence and victous habits, whether acquired in early life, or from the follies of advanced age white suffering from their invariable consequences, unwisely entertaine a fear of applying to a qualified physician for relief. Shaime and the dread on frequently, but erroneously, entertained, that these complaints are beyond the reach of art, alike restets him, and prevens his seeking for assist ance where alone it can be propured. In acting thus, he forgets that accurate discrimination in accretaining the cause of disease, sympathy with the suffered, and above all, accuracy, invarially characterism that his neutified in an acting them. intelligent and practical physician, and to the ball man, who can shew by his possession of the inits legal qualification, that he is entitled to in and respect in his professional pursuits, the st confidence should be extended.
