Ellis and Byron Cox and they have opened a store on Main St., where an attractive display of bathroom furnishings, plumbing materials etc. can be seen. This firm has purchased the good will of the plumbing, heating and metal working department of T. P. Calkin & Co. and we wish the firm success in business.

Recital

The Recital by Margaret Barry on Monday evening at Music Hall, deserves more than a passing notice. The audience was select and appreciative. The artist stately and attractive in person. Her selfpossession and perfect command of her theme were restful and assuring. The selections were wisely chosen giving opportunity for expression of the varied powers and versatile talent of the actress.

Her humor in the Little Minister, her pathos and affection of child's life in Little Boy Blue, her vividness and completeness in word picture in Ben Hur, her lifelike and imitable descriptions in the two scenes of Les Miserables, especially the elephant scene, her imitative power in the balcony scene of Cyrano, her dramatic and artistic strength as shown in the Duchess May, gave one a flash picture of the strong soul life of the true artist in Margaret Barry. We hope the day is not far distant when she will again appear before a delighted and appreciative audience in our town. The sweet selections of music, delightfully rendered by Miss Chipman, added much to the pleasure of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Barcom and Mr. and Mrs. Spurr Woodworth have our thanks for wedding favors.

Exhibition matters are booming again at this early date and queries are pouring in. On Wednesday a man in Falmouth made thirty-four entries and one in our own county has made twenty-five entries. Others are coming in for smaller numbers. As entries are nearly always made near the time limit, the numbers secured this early show how large an exhibit we will probably have.

During his absence his church and congregation to show their appreciation of his services, substantially increased his salary.
