The Forces of the Allies Swept Forward Overrunning Many Important-Strongholds of the Enemy—The Onslaught Un-nerved the Enemy, Who Sur-rendered in Large Numbers or Ran Away

(By Associated Press)

British Front in France and Belgium, Oct. 10—The blow struck by British and French forces today against a wide sec-tion of the German defenses betion of the German defenses between the Houtholst forest and Broodseinde has resulted in another great success. Over much of the front the attacking trooss swept forward to a depth of 1200 yards or more over-running many important strongholds of the scattered enemy.

This afternoon the Allies were digging in almost on the outskirts of Houtholst forest. The British were beyond Poelcapelle after sanginary hand-to-hand fighting, and further south they skirts of Houtholst forest. The British were beyond Poelcapelle after sanginary hand-to-hand fighting, and further south they had gained the Passchandaele ridge, within less than a thousand yards of Passchandaele, thereby wrenching away almost all that remained to the German of their famous Passchandaele, thereby wrenching away almost all that remained to the German of their famous Passchandaele, thereby wrenching away almost all that remained to the German of their famous Passchandaele, thereby wrenching away almost all that remained the passchandaele, thereby wrenching away almost all the appearant of the passchandaele, thereby wrenching away almost all the appearance of the past of Passchandaele, thereby wrenching away almost all the appearance of the past two days had turned much of the battle ground into a morass, through which the French and the men of the British Empire floundered knee deep. How they made their, way forward over such ground, much less fight over it, is amazing. The appearance of the marshes before the German line apparently unnerved the enemy. They surrendered in large numbers or ran away as fast as they could.
