

Partial Paralysis

A SEVERE COLD BRINGS A WIFE AND MOTHER LOW.

Partial Paralysis accompanied by fainting fits follows - Doctors fail to bring relief - Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restore Health.

Brookholm, a suburb of Owen Sound, is fairly vibrating with interest in the wonderful cures effected in that place by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The bill was climbed and it is to Mr. J. F. Goodfellow, the genial owner and occupant of that pleasant home, that he is indebted for the following facts:

"My wife owes her good measure of health to-day to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," said Mr. Goodfellow. "On the 12th of July, 1895, Mrs. Goodfellow went on an excursion to Collingwood by boat and came home with a severe cold, which developed into a partial or slight attack of paralysis on the left side and limb."

"In addition, at times she would be seized with a dizziness which often resulted in sudden and severe falls. The paralysis made her unable to lift any weight with her left hand. She called in medical aid and for some months followed the advice and took the medicines prescribed. But it was only money wasted as she did not get any better."

As Mrs. Goodfellow has three children and her husband to care for it was a deep affliction to the family for her to be so afflicted. For eight months these dizzy spells and the paralysis continued. Then some friends asked her to try a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To please the friend she consented to purchase a few boxes. When these had been taken she felt decidedly better. The fainting spells came less frequent, her strength returned to her side and arm and she was delighted with the result. After taking about six boxes, and feeling quite well again, she discontinued the use of the pills for a time, but later felt some of the old symptoms returning. She again procured a supply and recommenced their use, and was everjoyed to find that these valuable little pellets again gave relief. She continued taking them until she felt that she must certainly be over the effects of the trouble when she again ceased to take the pills. That is over a year and a half ago, and only once or twice since has she had any slight symptoms of the old trouble, and then a few doses of the pills would give full relief. Mr. Goodfellow is decidedly of the opinion that the cure her present health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and is most enthusiastic in his recommendation of them to her friends and acquaintances."

Vegetable History.

The eggplant is a native of Asia, Africa and South America.

Mushrooms are native to all temperate countries in short grass.

Garlic came from Asia, and has been used since the earliest times. It formed part of the diet of the Israelites in Egypt, and was used by Greek and Roman soldiers and African peasants.

Cucumbers are native to the East Indies, and are grown in Cambodia, China and Persia. They were much esteemed by the ancients, and are common in Egypt, where a drink is prepared from them when they are ripe.

Brussels sprouts came from Belgium; they are native to the southeast coast of Europe; they came from South Europe; they came from China and Tartary. The arrowroot is from South America.

Potatoes are native to Peru, and the Spaniards discovered them. From Spain they passed into Italy and Belgium.

The cabbage and its wild in Greece, where it originated. Radishes were native to China, but have grown in Europe for centuries.

The cauliflower came from Cyprus.

The Electric Forge.

One of the astonishing things developed through the introduction of electricity into everyday affairs is a forge made for bench use for the heating of soldering irons or light pieces of metal for working on the anvil, where the heating is accomplished by plunging the article to be heated into a tray of water. Nothing could be imagined more contradictory of one's preconceived ideas than this procedure, and yet to the electrician it is perfectly simple.

He makes the proper connections, plunges his iron into the water and pretty soon the iron will begin to glow under water and then to turn red of white heat, just as he desires it for working. When he gets through working the iron, he may plunge it into the water again and cool it with a "dip" as expertly as he could in any other tank of water.

A Womanly Woman.

The highest ambition of a thoroughly womanly woman when she becomes a wife will be to make her home so homelike and attractive to her husband that he will find his greatest happiness there. You will never hear her complain of this as being a narrow sphere for a woman's life and energies, for she is wise enough to know it is anything but an easy task she has undertaken, and also that the happiness for good of such a home can not be advanced within the four walls that form its visible limits, but that it will extend as far as the eye can see, and that they will extend as far as the generations.

Scraps for Odd Moments.

A canary may be an old maid's care, but a motor car is a new-made scare.

The Caller—Can I see the lady of the house? The Cook—Horn't you a eyes?

"Papa, what is a sweeping assertion?" "A statement, my son, that fills our opponents' eyes with dust."

As for our opportunities, we can make a heroic life out of whatever is set before us to work with or upon.—Anna Robertson Brown.

"Pa, what is a scheme?" "I can't define it, my son. But it is something that will fall through quicker than anything else on earth."

City Boarder—I notice you keep a big bar of soap outside by the pump. It is for the farm hands, I presume? Rural Hostess—Yes, farm hands and faces.

It is a sober truth that people who live only to amuse themselves work harder at the task than most people do in earning their daily bread.—Hemans More.

The days no longer shorter grow, But longer now instead. While nights get shorter, for you know, The sun henceforth won't be so slow in getting out of bed.

Minards Liniment Cures Dandruff. Teacher—Teacher, into how many classes is the human race divided? Tommy—Five. "What are they?" "Enlightened, civilized, half-civilized, savage and Spaniards."

Creditor (determined)—I shall call every week until you pay this account, sir. Debtor (blandly)—Then, sir, there seems every probability of our acquaintance ripening into friendship!

"What a nickname!" said one chum to another as they walked down the avenue. "Why under the broad canopy did you ever take to calling her 'Revenge'?" "Because she's so sweet, don't you know?"

She (pointing)—Oh, Charlie, how can you be so cruel! We have been married two days and you are scolding me already. He—Tras, dearest; but just think how awfully long I've waited for the opportunity.

"What do they mean by 'tanking'?" asked the young woman on her first visit of a young woman who was an her second. "Why," said the wise one in a careful whisper, "tanking is just—just sitting on the bias, Helen."

On board a ship a wife was trying to comfort her seafaring husband and change the current of his thoughts. "Darling, has the moon come up yet?" she asked. "It has, if I swallowed it," was the weak voiced reply.

Minards Liniment Relieves Neuralgia. Big Brother—I should like to know what you have been flirting with that little Spanish fellow for? Pretty Sister (indignant)—I haven't. "Yes, you have. He told a friend that you stood before him ten minutes as if entranced, and you looked straight into his eyes as if you could read his very soul, and he said if ever ardent admira-tion shone to a human face it did in yours."

"The idiot! I was looking at my own reflection in his eyes!"

Father O'Leary, a well known Roman Catholic priest and wit, was on very friendly terms with his neighbor, the Church of England vicar. They met on the road one day, when the vicar said excitedly, "Oh, Father O'Leary, have you heard the awful news?" "No, said the priest, "what is it, at all?" "Something awful," says the vicar. "The bottom has fallen out of purgatory, and all the Catholics have tumbled into hell!" "Oh, dear, oh, dear," says Father O'Leary, "what a crushing the poor Protestants must have got!"

HIS OWN FREE WILL. DEAR SIR,—I cannot speak too strongly of the excellence of MINARD'S LINIMENT. It is THE remedy in my household for burns, sprains, etc., and we would not be without it. It is truly a wonderful medicine. JOHN A. MACDONALD, Publisher Annapolis Chronicle.

Precious Stones. All precious stones are purified by a bath in honey, according to an old idea. Many curious notions are current in regard to gems.

It is said that the agate quenches thirst, and, if put into the mouth, always cures Amber is a cure for sore throat and glandular swellings.

Cat's eye is a charm against witchcraft and evil by flood and field. Diamonds produce somnambulism and spiritual ecstasy.

Emeralds, friendship and constancy. Garnets preserve health and joy.

The onyx is apt to cause terror to the wearer, as well as ugly dreams. Opals are fatal to love and bring discord to giver and receiver.

Sapphires impel the wearer to all good works. The topaz is said to be a preventive to lung troubles, and imparts strength.

Don't. Don't forget that the darkest hour is only sixty minutes long. Don't set the fool. There are too many people doing that naturally. Don't sacrifice the certainties of to-morrow.

Don't be afraid to speak out loud. The world is too busy to listen to whisperers.—Exchange

Sinning Against Children. It does not require that we be willfully cruel in order to sin against our children. The foolish petting and pampering of pride, and gratifying of every selfish whim may be as mischievous as harsh brutality. No worse sin can be committed against that than to let him always have his own way. Pride will grow fast enough in that daughter's heart without your adding fuel to the flame with extravagant flatteries and silly adulation. It is a curious fact that praise bestowed on noble conduct, has a sweetening and strengthening influence; but praise lavished on mere externals—like physical beauty or fine dress—is only apt to inflame selfishness.

Many a father studies his account-books and many a mother studies her magazines or her receipt-books, or her visiting lists more than they study the peculiarities of their own children. That boy is scolded into silliness; that other one is ridiculed till he gets desperate; harsh treatment often hardens the heart and then parental Pharisaeism prays that God will soften it. . . . There is no trust in this world more tremendous than the trust of parents; and none which many persons seem to treat more lightly. Food, clothing, shelter and schooling they provide; but they utterly ignore the fact that the Creator has entrusted to them the most susceptible and receptive creature on earth when He commits to their charge a young immortal. A parent stamps character—and shapes destiny for this world—and for the next. He ecological tansport you may see stone slabs which show the print of birds' feet, or of leaves which were made in the stone when it was once only a liquid planet. In the manner are can the finger-marks and foot-prints of parental influence upon the character of children when grown to manhood and womanhood.

Children are imitative creatures; and we all know how tendencies to good or evil character grow from parental influence, and the chief element in moral heredity is the force of example.

—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler.

From "Frances E. Willard's Crusade Experience." At a signal from our gray-haired leader, a sweet-voiced woman began to sing, "Jesus the water of life will give," all our voices soon blending for this world-wide hymn.

The most novel spectacle that I recall. There stood women of undoubted religious devotion and the highest character, most of them crowned with the glory of gray hair. Along the street the front of that stoniest of cities rumbled the heavy waggon, many of them carriers of beer; between us and the saloon, in front of which we were drawn up in line, passed the American manhood's tribute to Christianity, and to womanhood, and it was significant and full of pathos. The leader had already asked the saloon-keeper if we might enter and he had declined, else the prayer-meeting would have occurred inside the door.

A wonderful lady whose only son had gone to ruin through that very trap, bent on the cold, moist pavement and offered a broken-hearted prayer, while all our heads were bowed. At a signal we moved on, and the next saloon-keeper permitted us to enter. I had no more idea of the inward appearance of a saloon than if there had been no such place on earth. The tall stately lady who led us, placed her Bible on the bar and read a psalm. The spirit of these crusades was so gentle. Then we sang "Rock of Ages" as I thought I had never heard it sung before with a tender confidence height of which I never do not see in the eyes going regulation prayer-meeting, and then one of the older women whispered to me softly that the leader wished to know if I would pray.

It was strange, perhaps, but I felt not the least reluctance, and kneeling on the awdust floor, with a group of ears at hearts around me, and behind them, filling every corner, and extending out into the street, a crowd of unweaned, un-kept, harlequin children, I was conscious that perhaps, never in my life, save beside my sister Mary's dying bed, had I prayed as truly as I did then. This was my crusade baptism. The next day I went on to the west, and within a week had been made president of the Chicago W. O. T. U.—The Woman's Journal.

It is not for ourselves we are placed in this world. We live for others as well as for ourselves. We live for our neighbors. We live for the generations that succeed us. The individual in himself seems insignificant. Yet in truth the life of each of us is a part of the great whole. We are members of a vast family, and the interests of that family must be to us a matter of concern.—St.

Good can not exist in peace with evil; truth can not exist in peace with error. In this world it is impossible to live at peace with everything. The man who tries it will fail. Peace can only be pursued and possessed along one certain line, and that is the line of truth and righteousness. As much as in you, let him live peaceful with all men.—St.

Do Not Cough.

A physician who is connected with an institution in which there are many children is reported by the San Francisco Examiner as saying:

"There is nothing more irritable to a cough than coughing. For some time I had been so fully cured of this that I determined for one night at least to lessen the number of coughs heard in a certain ward in a hospital of the institution. By the promise of rewards and punishments I succeeded in inducing them simply to hold their breath when tempted to cough, and in a little while I was myself surprised to see how some of the children entirely recovered from the disease."

"Constant coughing is precisely like scratching a wound on the outside of the body. So long as it is done the wound will not heal. Let a person when tempted to cough draw a long breath and hold it until it warms and soothes every air cell, and some benefit will soon be received from this process. The nitrogen which is thus refined acts as an anodyne to the mucous membrane, allaying the desire to cough and giving the throat and lungs a chance to heal. At the same time a suitable medicine will aid nature in her efforts to recuperate."

Mrs. Waring—Why is it that you will not allow your husband to have a lady typewriter? Men are so much more expensive, you know.

Mrs. Ashcroft—I recognize that fact, but I was his typewriter once myself.
