The pupils are nearly all Hindoos, belonging, as the European officials assure us, to the more respectable classes of the native community. The teachers are all mon. "Want of female teachers, "says the Pundit, "was one great obstacle in the way; but the guardians of the girls composing the respective schools pointed out men of approved character, in whom they have full confidence; and I have appointed such persons only as teachers, and the result is very satisfactory." Only at Agra, where the pundit has persuaded the wealthy bankers and merchants to establish a girls' school, has any objection been taken to the male instructors. Wealthy, but meducated bankers and merchants, are naturally the most bigoted of their race, since custom is allowed and the processing and the respection been taken to the male instructors. but uneducated bankers and merchants, are natural-ly the most bigoted of their race, since custom is al-ways the most tyrannical where luxury exists with-out education. But Agra will soon be abundantly supplied with teachers from among the more advanc-ed pupils of the rural schools. One more statement must close this enumeration of facts. Lieutenant Fuller, the inspector of schools, reports that about onetenth of the whole number of pupils are more than twenty years of age, the re-mainder varying from six to twenty years. The Delhi Gazetle, in noticing these remarkable facts, suggests that Pundit Gopal should be at once reliev-ed from all other duties, and enabled to devote him-self entirely to a work for which he has shown such
