Good Tastes vs. Good Taste

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"You know I've always had things nice," I heard a woman say, the other day, "and I simply can't bear cheap things."

That remark was the preliminary to give an order for an expensive piece of goods. "I know I ought to buy something cheaper," she added, after she had given the order to "charge and send" and turned away from the counter, "but I couldn't bear it. I sometimes wish I didn't have good taste."

Poor lady, as if good taste were a hardship to any one.

Many People Confuse Expensive Tastes With Good Taste.

I suspect she was making the mistake that a great many people make, that of confusing good taste with expensive tastes.

Good taste and expensive taste are not identical.

At the most, they are only distantly related, if at all. For good taste is based out of love of beauty by good judgment, whereas expensive tastes are based out of love of anything expensive by the desire to outshine one's neighbors.

I happen to know a man and his wife who perfectly illustrate the difference between these two.

And He Spent It On That One.

The man is what he himself calls "staidious." He has been used to living things "just so" and he likes them that way and no other. As aachelor he had an income which was comfortable for one, and he spent it most wholly on that one. Result, expensive tastes. For instance, he did not wear a pair of stockings that cost less than fifty cents, a fact of which he is very proud.

His wife, on the other hand, has never had a chance to have expensive tastes, but she has the best of good taste and she has accomplished miracles with it. Her home, with its restful wall paper, low lights, inexpensive but well-chosen furniture, harmonious hangings and freedom from cluttering bric-a-brac is one perfect example of what good taste can do with limited means. Her children's clothes and her own are another.

That's the Most Maddening Thing About Them.

She has reason to be proud of her taste. Her husband should be ashamed of his. And yet, I'll wager, he has the greater pride.

That is the most maddening thing about people with expensive tastes—their pride in them, especially when they are beyond their means. I feel sure he looks down on people who can endure a twenty-five cent (or cheaper) stocking.

They always do.

She, on the other hand, is too busy exercising her good taste to be vain of it.

And there you are!

Closing New York Harbor.

2nd March, 1917.
Sir,—His Excellency the Governor has been informed that the Collector of Customs, at the Port of New York, has advised that a net has been stretched across the narrows, completely closing New York Harbor, from Sunset to Sunrise, that all night traffic to and from the Harbor is suspended, and that during the day all traffic must pass through a gate, 500 feet wide, next the Staten Shore.

This information will be of value and interest to our ship owners.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
J. R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.

Notes From Ireland's Eye, T. B.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to make a few comments on our little Island Home in reference to the doings of our energetic C. E. Teacher, Miss Catherine Fowlow, who came with us the 29th August, 1916, and since then has been working untiringly with congenial efforts to improve the children and place.

First she started by giving the children a Sunday School picnic which they thoroughly enjoyed, as it was quite beyond their expectations, being the first held in the place for 15 years, and many of the older ones were seen on the field enjoying themselves equally as well as the little ones. 73 children paraded and all turned out with wreaths and banners and in holiday attire, making a very pretty procession as they paraded through the settlement. After everybody doing justice to both games and the good things provided by the parents, the National Anthem closed the day's function at 5 p.m. Secondly, a Pie Sociable on Dec. 14th, which was held in the S. U. F. Hall, in which she raised the brilliant sum of $51.00 (fifty one dollars) in aid of the equipment of her day school. Thirdly, on Feb. 19th, she started an impromptu entertainment for which the S. U. F. very kindly gave the Hall. Opened at 7.30 p.m. by the teacher who gave a very appropriate address referring to the Great War which causes every one to put their best efforts forward. Teas were served by the ladies who so readily came forward to help and had the tables arranged in such a way it was quite a stimulus to the appetite, everybody was busily engaged until 9.30 when the hall was quickly put in readiness for the concert which started with an opening address by the teacher who very clearly and forcibly described and illustrated the "Union Jack" from its origin to its present position in the world to-day, also the "Sailors Uniform" going back to historic times, to which all listened with rapt attention; the programme was very nicely arranged, the children of the day school taking a prominent part in which they started by singing the "Ode of Newfoundland" and saluting the Union Jack; the children's part in the programme was remarkably rendered, both the acting and the recitations showing the skillful work of the teacher in such a short time. The programme was lengthened by the help of a few of the prominent ladies of the place who very kindly came forward from their work at the tea tables and gave the audience the pleasure of a splendid selection of patriotic songs and recitations, the teacher occasionally taking an active part. A few of the gentlemen very kindly gave appropriate addresses—on the War. Being the first entertainment held for the patriotic work, the last recitation on the programme was "And Not to Paris Yet" which was heartily cheered by the audience. The concert was closed at 11.30 by the singing of the National Anthem. Work was again resumed at the tea tables, the younger folk indulging in games until 2 a.m. when the National Anthem was again sung. The proceeds amounted to the handsome sum of $35.60 which goes toward the Red Cross Fund.

Again on Feb. 20th, St. John's Tuesday, she still followed on her good work by having a Pancake Party in the school room in aid of the Sunday School helped by the Sunday School Teachers and bigger girls and also helped generously by Mr. E. J. Cooper who did his part in his usual jolly manner as in previous entertainments held by the teacher to help the younger ones in their enjoyment. This being a party for the younger folk the sum was not anticipated to realize as much as it did, amounting to $6.70 which will augment in getting prizes for the Sunday School.

In looking out for her own children the orphans were not forgotten as a donation of $3.00 was sent for the Orphanage from her Sunday School in December. It was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem at 11.30 p.m. After doing so much work, and such good work, I think she now requires a rest which she fully deserves and will get during the season of Lent.

Wishing her success in her school work and thanking you in anticipation for space, I am,

Two Cases of Eczema and How

Further Proof That Dr. Chase's Ointment is the Best to be Used in Eczema Cases.

If you read these letters you will find that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the best to be used in Eczema Cases.

By actually trying it, you will find that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the best to be used in Eczema Cases.

Mr. J. J. Brown, Temperance route, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "Just line to praise Dr. Chase's Ointment for what it has done for my wife. She has been suffering with eczema in her head for two years, and has spent a great deal of money with doctors and ointments, which did her no good. She had about given up hope of ever being cured, when someone told her to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. By the use of this Ointment the trouble has been entirely cured. We have unbounded faith in it. I have told several people about the Ointment."

Mrs. W. G. Snowden, Greenspond, Bonaville, B.C., writes: "I suffer from eczema in my hands, and have tried many ointments, but none have done me any good. I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has cured me. I have told several people about the Ointment."
