Why Not in Broad Cove?

Mr. Squires struck an attitude on the platform at Brigus on Monday last and held up the audience a card which he said had been found tucked up on a telegraph pole at Kilbride, St. John's West, with the following words printed thereon:
"What we have well hold. Therefore Cashin Wins." Of course everybody can see that Mr. Squires had but one object in view in making this appeal--and that one object was to be seen by Opposition as well as Government supporters, is we think the best proof that there was nothing to hide, and that no sinister meaning attached to them, such as Mr.
Squires tried to attribute. When Mr.
Squires explains why his candidates or their agents are disturbing copy-ies of the Archbishop Howley letter and the Greenpond letter and the "Morning Post" headline throughout different districts, the public may listen with some attention to what he has to say regarding alleged secretarian issues--but not until then.

Where Was Jethro?

People who follow the trend of political happenings closely were remarking yesterday a very pronounced omission from the personnel of the Squires "team" that visited Brigus last Monday night. It will be recalled that a few days after the Crosbie-Penney incident, Mr. Squires held a meeting at Broad Cove, and brought out there for exhibition purposes, Mr.
Jethro Penney, who was held up to the crowd as the hero of St. John's.
People were not told at the time whether Jethro revealed what he had said to Sir John Crosbie to provoke the remarks attributed to him in the Royal Stores, although the question as to "What Jethro said" has been acute ever since the incident occurred. Another question is now going the rounds of the city and it is this:
--Where was Jethro on Monday night, and why didn't Mr. Squires bring him over to Brigus and act the role of showman as he did at Broad Cove a week or two previously? Perhaps Mr. Squires or his organs will explain. We presume it is useless to request an answer from Mr. Penney.

Methodist S. S. Convention.

The session of the Convention will continue to-day, but will close with this evening's meeting. Yesterday's meetings were both helpful and instructive, and a good time is assured all who attend to-day's sessions. In these days when child education is so much in the public mind, all who are deeply interested in that phase of our Religious work should spare no effort to be present at these sessions of the Convention.

TESTIMONIAL!

The White Clothing Mfg. Co. Ltd. * Oct. 15th, 1919.
GENTLEMEN--We received your bill and the 59 Suits O.K. and let me congratulate you and the working people on the workmanship of the clothes.
I inspected the Suits and they were done to the "point." You can show this letter to your workmen as they deserve it. I just came from the States and I consider the style and fit wonderful, and we can assure you that as long as we receive work 's good as these you can be assured of our trade.
Hoping you will do all of our work like this, and thanking you very much,
I am, respectfully yours,

We received the above testimonial from one of our most pre-ticular outport merchants. We value his opinion and pass it on to our many customers.
Testimonies like the above have helped us to overcome the many difficulties essential to the starting of a new industry.
WORKMANSHIP AND VALUE have been the main driving points in forcing us to the front after four months' operation as the LEADING CLOTHING MFG. INDUSTRY OF NFLD.

THEN HE VANISHED.

Gwendoline, the eighteen-year-old daughter of the family, had received a splendid present from her "young man," an engagement ring set with diamonds and rubies.
That evening at tea, when the happy pair were present, the conversation, naturally enough, turned to jewellery, and someone remarked that it was funny to think that we got pearls from oysters.

Whereupon Gwendoline's horrid little brother edged towards the door, and remarked loudly:
"Oh, that's not half so funny as getting rings from mugs, is it, Gwen?"

HE OFFERED A LOT.

In a principal street of a provincial town there were two florist's shops, and, naturally, the rivalry between them was intense. They dealt in potted
