scheme apears to be the only feasible one by which fresh eggs can be con-stantly kept on the market. There is suggested constant check on the cases and fines to be imposed on those who are responsible for the sending of bad eggs to the retailer in the city. OPPOSITION'S ATTEMPT

The scheme, if it comes into operation, will dispense with the middle-man and his necessary profits. It will save a considerable amount of expense in connection with the roundabout and that therefore there could be neither two nor any other number of speeches. No Discussion Allowed Speaking to this point of order, Mr. Graham declared that either one of the new rules had been put through the house under false pretences or that he was under false pretences or the motion. aid down the interpretation that debate laid down the interpretation that debate meant at least one speech on each side and therefore, Mr. Graham held, so long as he himself was the only speaker, or so long as there was no speech in opposi-tion to him, there was no debate if the interpretation given by Mr. Meighen was correct. He went on to say that there should be full consideration of each clause before succeeding clauses were taken up and he laid stress upon the contention and he laid stress upon the contention that if the chairman ruled against him that if the chairman ruled against him and thus against the Meighen interpreta-tion, the rules adopted by the govern-ment majority should be reconsidered as they had been passed under false pre-tences and the house misled as to their

Mr. Meighen stated that in his speech on the closure resolution he had spoken as a private member only. He believed that all interpretation of the rules he had given were correct, but on occasions, he said, the rules should be interpreted in the light of common sense and Mr. Gra-

He han's point was not well taken. Twisted Rules to Suit Hugh Guthrie, South Wellington, de-clared that where it suited the govern-ment to enforce a doubtful interpretation of the rules to help themselves they did so but wherever there was a chance of an interpretation working to the advan-tage of the minority the majority denied that interpretation. When the closure resolution had been under disnied coustion, he said, he had pointed out that under the new rules the government could put through legislation without al-lowing the minority to say a word in relowing the minority to say a word in re-gard to it. Mr. Meighen, for the gov-ment had declared this contention un-founded on the ground that there must be debate upon legislation. The house had accepted the Meighen statement when passing the resolution and if taht statement had not been correct, then the house had been deceived. Chairman Blondin believed that Mr. Graham's point was not well taken and that no speeches were permissable on the Graham motion. From this decision, Mr. Graham appealed to the house and the chairman was sustained by a vote of 94 to 53. The Graham motion was then put to 53. The Graham motion was then put and defeated by a vote of 95 to 54. Mr. Knowles, of Moose Jaw, then raised he point of order that the committee could not properly consider clause four of the bill because it was still on clause hree. He said that the premier's motion to postpone further consideration of clause three had been made but had not been passed by the house. He could not find record of its having been passed in either record of votes of proceedings. Mr. Borden said that his understanding was that it had been passed and Chair-man Blondin ruled to that effect. This brought from Mr. Gavreaux, of Temiscouta, the cry "Nationalist gag."
