Raising Reindeer in Alaska. WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 27.—Capt. Healey, of the revenue cutter Bear, reports his arrival at Port Clarence, Alaska, on July 9. He had just returned from Siberia with 48 head of reindeer, which he obtained from natives by trading calico, flour, etc., for them. He found that the herd at Port Clarence had increased 150 head since last year.

The Girl Came Back. CHATHAM, Aug. 27.—The young girl Lizzie Kelley, whose sudden flight from town a week ago caused such a sensation, returned on Saturday night via the Lake Erie and Huron Railroad, from Cleveland, whether she went from Detroit, she said she had not gone away with Jones, nor did she know where that gay young barber was.

The Toronto Dog Show. TORONTO, Aug. 27.—The directors of the Toronto Industrial Fair, which opens Sept. 4, received official notification from the secretary of the American Kennel Club, stating that the wins of the Pittsburgh Kennel Club show, the dates of which conflict with the bench show at the exhibition here, will not be recognized by the American Kennel Club. The wins of the Toronto show will be recognized by both the American and Canadian clubs.

—F. Marx, of Chatham, describing a trip through Ontario cities in the Banner, says: "My next station was London. This place was hardly recognizable. Instead of a lively inland town, as of yore, I found it changed to a veritable maritime city, a quiet respectable flourish of vessels of various kinds, such as H. M. ships Hyman, Macbeth, Reid, Clark, Hobbs, Davis, Little, Gibbons, Purdon, and Leviathan, commanded by an admiral, rear admirals, captains, midshipmen, ordinary and extraordinary seamen—all at anchor except the torpedo boats, Adam and Eve.

That whole force was packed with each other to capture the town, and to such an extent had they intimidated the land ladders, that even the street car—one horse of course—did not venture out. Being somewhat timid, the presence of so many mariners made me nervous. I sneaked out and went to the safe haven of Chatham.

—Home, sweet home. Daughters and Maids of England.

A very enjoyable supper and reception was tendered to the Daughters and Maids of England at Kent's confectionery parlors, Dundas street, last evening. The grand president, Mr. F. H. Bell, of Hamilton, and Mrs. C. E. Smith, of Whitby, grand vice-president, were present. A number of members from St. Thomas also arrived.

A business meeting was held after supper in Cullin's Hall, Wellington street. Mr. S. T. Cook is secretary and Mrs. A. Ware treasurer of the local committee. The order has some 1,500 members in Canada, besides a large number of girls who are titled Maids of England.

Busy Bee Entertainment. That well-doing, charitable little organization of the Queen's Avenue Methodist Sunday school, known as the Busy Bees, held one of their delightful semi-annual entertainments last evening. Wesley Hall was very prettily decorated. In the different corners dainty booths were erected, where, at the close of the entertainment, refreshments of all kinds were sold, the proceeds going towards their funds, out of which many poor children are clothed.

A very choice programme was rendered. Rev. J. W. Annis officiating as chairman. Songs were delivered by Miss Eva and Lily Harding, Maud Parsons, Belta Chapman and Beatrice Hunt, Myrtle Wilson and Miss Chapman; recitations by John Riddell, Nettie Chapman, Nettie Cunningham, Jeanie Perkins, Birdie Gunning and George Matthews. Four little Busy Bees gave an admirable temperance dialogue, and the Busy Bees in a body gave some hymns and kindergarten songs. To Mrs. Greggett the success of the evening was largely due.

For the Big Fair. The usual preparations for the big Western Fair are rapidly being made, and everything augurs well for a most successful nine-days exhibition. The sale of booths, dining halls and refreshment stands was held yesterday afternoon and Mr. J. W. Jones had no difficulty in disposing of them on favorable terms. The bidders were unusually numerous, and in consequence the prices were good. The big dining hall near the south end of the grand stands started at $100. Representatives from the Centennial and Southern Congressional Churches both kept the price of the Centennial securing it. The dining hall under the stands went for $51, the remainder of the booths bringing from $12 to $25 according to location.

Entries are still on the rush. The agricultural implement men are sending along requests for space, but it will be a very difficult task for the chairman of the committee to accede to every demand. Dairy-men from Prince Edward Island are going to show Ontario what they can do in the manufacture of cheese and butter. This exhibit will be one of the leading attractions in the dairy hall.

Créig, of Montreal, will also send along his celebrated herd of Polled Angus cattle.

FATAL RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Joseph Hyslop, of West Nissouri, Thrown from His Rig,

And Has His Neck Broken—Died Instantly—Formerly Resided in This City, and Was Highly Esteemed.

A runaway accident, attended with fatal results of a very sad nature, occurred on King street yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock, and now a lady of West Nissouri and three little children are mourning the loss of a husband and father.

Mr. Joseph Hyslop, who resides near the village of Wyton, started for the city about noon yesterday with a big load of oats. The heavy wagon was drawn by a team of horses of a usually quiet disposition. The city was reached without a mishap, and Mr. Hyslop avoided the heavy traffic of Dundas street and turned to King. Slater's storehouse was his destination, where he was going to dispose of his grain.

Hyslop was seated on one of the bags, and as he neared Colborne street, it began to slip from under him and towards the horses. An effort was made to prevent the sack from going down, but it failed. Hyslop did not fall, saving himself by getting further to the rear of the wagon.

As the bag dropped behind the horses they sprang forward and started down the street at a terrific gallop. The sudden jerk thrown to the block pavement—a distance of about eight feet, striking on his head, and never moving afterwards. A big crowd soon gathered around, and the ambulance was immediately telephoned for.

The body was removed to the hospital, where it was found that the neck was broken. Death must have been instantaneous. The team continued west on King street, but were captured near Clarence, none the worse for their run.

About a dozen different versions of the accident were going the rounds, but the above was given by a party claiming to be a witness, and is believed by the fact that King street, from Colborne to Wellington, is strewn in places with oats.

The deceased was about 32 years old, and came from his native country—Scotland—about four years ago. He settled in London and for a time was engaged as a teamster on the Grand Trunk. Later he moved to Nissouri and engaged himself in farming, at which he proved very successful. He leaves a widow and three children, P. C. Music and Elocution. As students are making ready for the coming year the troublesome question presents itself—where can I go to study piano, singing, elocution, etc.? And this certainly is a trying question; for it is so easy to waste the best months and years of student life by poor judgment in the selection of teachers. A student's time is precious—so study where you can get the best value, most advantages, quickest results, and with instructors who are progressive. Such a place is the Conservatory of Music, 340 Dundas street, where, under the direction of W. V. Carver Barron, the best teachers can be had, a musical education systematized, and advantages that cannot be found outside of such an institution. The elocution and physical culture classes will be under the direction of Miss Jessica Terwilliger (late of Emerson College of Oratory, Boston), a young lady who has earned an unusual reputation in the larger American cities by her clever and artistic work, and who has exceptional gifts as a teacher. Miss Katherine Moore (late of the Grand Conservatory of Music, New York), teacher of voice building at Hellmuth Ladies' College, has also been added to the Conservatory staff, and will teach there this coming year. Send for circular, or inquire at above address.
