Interesting Facts from the Health Officer's Report.

The Semi-Annual Milk Inspection Shows Good Results.

The final meeting of the Board of Health for 1894 was held in the City Hall yesterday afternoon, and the business of the year was practically concluded. There was not a quorum of members present, but the four who were present—Ald. F. J. Fitzgerald, Wm. Heaman, E. Parrell and Dr. English—received the two reports by the medical health officer. They were:

"It gives me great pleasure to state," said Dr. Hutchinson, in his annual report, "that the public health during the year has been unusually good. The sanitary condition is also good. There were fewer deaths from infectious diseases than in any former year." Comparatively few deaths occurred among infants or children. The reduction in the number of fatalities was due, in the doctor's opinion, to the improved quality of milk supplied, which cuters so largely into the food of the young. No epidemics visited the city, although small-pox existed in a few neighboring towns. Its proximity, however, had a stimulating effect upon vaccination. The death returns made to the city clerk were inaccurate, and would be as long as the present system of collecting mortality statistics was in vogue. The death rate, therefore, could only be approximately estimated. The total number of cases of infectious diseases reported, including those sent to the two hospitals, was 215, as follows: Typhoid fever 43, diphtheria 130, scarlet fever 34, measles 8. Sixty-seven of these were treated at the General Hospital—typhoid fever 14, scarlet fever 3, diphtheria 50—the latter five deaths resulting from the latter complaint. At St. Joseph's 45 cases were treated—typhoid 24, scarlet 2, measles 8 and diphtheria 11, with no deaths. The number of typhoid cases were considerably less than in former years, due to the sanitary condition of the city and the good water supply. London's citizens were beginning to realize that the immunity from diseases could only be obtained through the prompt destruction by fire of all organic refuse matter. Although 130 cases of diphtheria were reported, only a comparatively few deaths occurred.

The report then dealt with the necessity for a rigid quarantine and isolation in all cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria, and emphasized the danger of spreading these complaints through the schools. The number of places inspected was 7,349, and only 2,543 orders were given to clean up.

The ice supply for domestic purposes was brought from the river north of Sunby's dam, the use of ice from the coves being allowed for cooling purposes. The house plumbing was still in an unsatisfactory condition.

In regard to the sewage system, Dr. Hutchinson said: "It is far from being perfect. The original sewer on King street was based upon a system for a town of 6,000 or 7,000 people, and from time to time branch lines have been added to it. It was impossible to have a good system as if trunk sewers were laid originally."

The semi-annual report of Dr. Hutchinson on the milk supplied to London's residents was presented as follows: The quality of the milk never was better. The average percentage of butter fed of the 92 samples examined was a fraction over 4 per cent. On account of the exceedingly dry weather in July and August samples of genuine milk went as low as 3 per cent. In September and October, which were wet months and pasture extremely good, the percentage became high, some samples giving over 5 per cent of butter fed. No diseased cows were found, and every inspection showed a growing improvement in the cleanliness and condition of many of the herds. The following are the names of vendors and quality of the milk, the latter being determined by the percentage of butter fed contained in a given quantity:

The Industrial School entertainment last night in the town hall was a very pleasing affair, and the heart of many a child was made glad by the bestowal of Christmas gifts and a bag of sweets. That it is more blessed to give than to receive was exemplified last night as one looked upon the joyful countenances of the children. An excellent programme was rendered after a bountiful lunch had been partaken of by the juveniles. The young ladies having charge of this school are to be highly commended for their zeal in the Master's service along this line.

Special musical services are to be held in most of the churches on Sunday, and on Christmas day in the Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches the usual Christmas services will take place. The decorations in the latter places will be worth seeing. A union service will also be held in Charles street Methodist Church at 10:30 a.m. on Tuesday, when Rev. J. H. Hazlewood will take charge of the service.

The hen roost of Mr. Holmes (colored) was raised on Wednesday night, and eight of his choicest hens stolen. The thief cut off the heads and plucked the birds on the premises. Mr. Holmes is curious to know why the scoundrel didn't take the whole of his fifteen hens, as well as the coop.

"A fearful crank, an awful croak, So said a friend, one dreary day, In confidence to me.

"Didn't ever inquire," said I to him "What pains and aches he knows! As like as not she's tortured by Some one of woman's woes."

Uterine disorders especially depress the spirits and sap the energies and vital force. For these distressing complaints, functional irregularities, unusual discharges, constant pains, weak back, lassitude, dullness, sinking sensations, and all weaknesses peculiar to women, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the specific.

A wedding took place on Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. Smith, Esq., near street, when his daughter, Katie, was united in marriage to Mr. M. Fadden, of Dresden. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Bardette.

The Collegiate Institute concert to be given tonight at the opera house promises to be a grand affair. The young folks have gone to a lot of trouble and expense and deserve a good house. The proceeds go to the Literary Society.

Can anyone tell us why the institute "boys" are wearing Old Shanters?

There will be a meeting of the town fanatics tonight to consider the advisability of holding a winter exhibition. There is no good reason why such an exhibition couldn't be held here with great success.

The ministers of the town will be kept quite busy Christmas day. We are informed on good authority that eight weddings will take place.

Both Messrs. Milton Bros. and Craig have special Christmas windows. They are fancy and quite in keeping with the general appearance of their respective stores.

The Art Loan in connection with the Epworth League of the Methodist Church is a very great success.
