Steady Prosperity Seen In the Prairie Provinces

Financial Men Comment on the Economic Sanity of West.

PROGRESS APPARENT

Western Canada is this year displaying little of the spendthrift tendencies which had blossomed in the wake of good crops of other years, according to Morley Aylesworth, assistant general musical comedies touring Canada manager of the Huron and Erie Mortgage Corporation, and D. McEachren secretary of the same firm, who hav returned from a month's tour of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

> A keener perception of the value o money has displaced the usual procedure of exchanging grain earnings for iong-denied luxuries, the London financial men state. Autos, pianos, radio and other modern trappings are still being bought, but with far less abandon than in the big years of 1916-1919. The cities, too, reflect the general trend toward greater economic sanity withh a prosperity that is quiet and steady rather than booming.

"The change of attitude in the farme struck me forcibly on my trip this year. Mr. Aylesworth told The Advertser "Te has brought himself to a more economical basis, and is more concerned about his debts than about the chances of buying a better automobile.

"With the 1925 crop bringing the biggest net return to the farmer of any yield of recent years, an unprecedented improvement in the financial situation of the west is inevitable."

Mr. Aylesworth remarked upon the steady trend of Manitoba toward mixed farming. Everywhere he went, he said, he saw signs of competition with grain, and he believes that eventually Manitoba will be a province of mixed crops and cattle and poultry raising. "A very substantial progress is apparent in all the cities," Mr. McEachren declared. "Western prosperity now will be greater even the give the impression of a boom."
