Experts of the Mercier Type Soon to Exploit the Federal Treasury.

MONTREAL, June 26.—A great demonstration took place here last night in honor of Mr. Laurier. He spent the day at the St. Lawrence Hall and was joined in the evening by Sir R. Cartwright. Mars, where many thousands of people were awaiting them. They were joined here by Messrs. Tarte, Ethier, Madore, Bruneau, Monet, McShane and many others. Mr. Laurier was kept bowing his acknowledgments several minutes before he was able to speak.

Discussing the Liberal victory, Quebec he said had taken its place at the head of confederation. As to the school question, the people had tried six years of a wobbling government, and he was confident that by making an appeal to the generosity and sense of justice of the Manitoba government "we will succeed in restoring to the minority the rights of which they have been deprived." the tariff Mr. Laurier repeated his remarks made earlier in the day about being reformers, not revolutionists. He dians, without distinction of origin, creed or race, will be equally loyal subiects to Her Maiestv."

Sir Richard Cartwright had an enthusiastic reception, and in a brief speech expressed the hope that the past election would to no ordinary degree sweep away those foolish prejudices which had in the past divided English from French and Catholic from Protestant. Never, he said, was a leader found in Canada more calculated or better able in every possible shape and way to reconcile and bring together those jarring elements which in times past had disturbed the common peace, than his friend Wilfrid Laurier.

THE BROTHERS KITCHENER.

(From the Montreal Witness) Major-General Kitchener, commander the Egyptian and British forces, whose ultimate object is now apparent is the re-conquest of the Soudan, has had a stirring story.

A glimpse of this was offered this morning by Lieut.-Colonel Kitchener, brother of the distinguished General who is now at the St. Lawrence Hall Lieut.-Colonel Kitchener has himself had a long and honorable record, although not so brilliant as that of him who is manifestly destined to make history in Egypt. He has been in active India and Burmah for many years, and latterly he has been chief of the staff at Jamaica.

The Sirdar of the Egyptian army had his training in the Engineers at Wcol-wich. His first public employment was in the exploration of Palestine. Here he was occupied for years, at the instance of a large company which carried on ex-tensive exploration and excavation work, in which he played a conspicuous part. Incidentally, he learned the language, and lived and comported himself in all respects like an Arab.

When Great Britain acquired the island of Cyprus, the General was emploved by the Salisbury government to make plans and maps of the same, and, generally, to do important surveying work. Shortly afterwards the first Egyptian war broke out, and the Genobtaining a short leave of absence, found himself on board the flagship at the shelling of Alexandria. Sir Alexander Alison desired to make him his A.D.C., but he was recalled to his work at Cyprus, much to his disgust, for it was his hope to distinguish himself in Egypt, whose problems he understood, the language of whose people he spoke, and which, with unerring prescience, he divined would in the near future be the theatre of large events. However, he returned to Cyprus, finished his work, and received the thanks of the government. We next find him in conjunction with a French and German Commissioner, engaged on be-half of the government in the work of delimiting the boundary line in Zanzibar. That he rendered signal service to the government in this connection is appared from the fact that upon the completion of his labors he was knighted. There was a second Egyptian war; there were defeats, and the death of was employed in the intelligence department, from his acquaintance with the country and his familiarity with the tongue spoken by the native.
