Sir Charles proceeded to reply to Mr. Blake's speech on the Canada Pacific, delivered during the early part of the session. He said the government organs appeared to be very much afraid that the speech would be allowed to pass unchal-lenged, but in view of the fact that the people of the dominion had declared so largely against Mr. Blake's view of the question, he did not think that his speech really required any answer. Nevertheless he proceded to answer it for nearly two hours. He made elaborate calculations to show that Mr. Blake's estimate of the profits of the company was greatly exaggerated.
