Mrs. Thos. Benstead, of Strathroy, returned home recently from a trip to her old home in London, England, where she visited her mother, who is very poorly. Mrs. Benstead reports the prices of nearly everything higher there than in Canada, with the possible exception of women's apparel. Living costs are high, and rentals more so in that great teen-ing metropolis, where there are nearly as many people as in the whole of the Dominion of Canada. Mrs. Ben-stead says there is much unemployment in the old land, and she was surprised to find that thousands of able-bodied people are contentedly eking out an existence on the Government doles (the introduction of which she believes was a terrible mistake).
Mrs. Benstead naturally loves the dear old home land, but would not care to leave Canada.

THE SIDE FLARE
In this frock of cuckoo tan crepe Roma, the side flare finds graceful expression. The neck is cut in oval outline, the applied sections of the front being gathered into the neck band. The dress may be made with or without sleeves and the side draperies may be of lace, if preferred.
Nothing is softer for the front-tied sash than the same material of which the dress is made, medium size requiring 4 1/2 yards 36-inch material.

Breaking New Ground in the Rockies

19-year-old son of J. B. McIntyre, of Providence R. I., with the the Illecillewaet Glacier at Glacier B. C. (3) The summit of the small bobsleigh each having 12 spikes distributed evenly over the surface and about 1 1/4 inches long.

Travelling along these huge crevasses is very thrilling, as there was only a walking surface of 2 feet and either side of this narrow ledge of ice were drops from 100 to 200 feet. Chris Haessler the Swiss Guide led the way and roped to him was Paul McIntyre and self. Our course over the ice field was continually brought to a halt on account of a huge gulch in the ice being too wide to cross we would then have to travel either up or down until our guide could locate a place narrow enough to cross. Finally we located the ice cave after travelling along the base of one of these huge crevasses, it proved to be 10 feet high and 20 feet long, the sides were worn like the sands after an ebbing tide and with the strong sunlight that was coming in at its entrance these pieces of jutting ice scintillated like huge diamonds. Right in the centre across the valley, framed by this wonderful oval cave stood the Swiss Peaks and Mt. Hamit.
"Leaving here we travelled on to the ice seracs near the top of the Glacier and it made the unaccustomed stand in awe to see the Swiss Guide and Paul McIntyre run around these ice columns and up and down the sides of their steep ice banks like children at play."

Southern Alberta is Beekeeper's Paradise

Upper—Examining the bees in George Riedel's Applary in the Coaldale district.
Lower—A colony of Bees in the Riedel Applary.

Southern Alberta's irrigated districts, with their large fields of alfalfa and sweet clover, promise to become the beekeeper's paradise within the next five years.
Two years ago, less than 10,000 pounds of honey were produced in Alberta. Last year, 60,000 pounds were produced—and 32 carloads imported into the West to supply the demand. This year, on the C.P.R. irrigated project at Lethbridge, there will be produced more than 100,000 pounds. And this is just a start.
"Southern Alberta's irrigated districts will be shipping trainloads—not carloads—of honey to the markets within five years" declared Frank C. Pellatt, field editor of the American Bee Journal, Hamilton, Illinois, on the occasion of his visit to Southern Alberta late in July this year. "This is the greatest potential honey producing district in North America." Today, one apiarist in the Coaldale district has 600 colonies of bees. This man, C. George Riedel, came to Southern Alberta from California in the spring of 1924 and started with 300 colonies. In 1928 he will have 1800 colonies and will make more than 150 tons of honey. This year his bees will make him about 50 tons, and one wholesale firm having branches throughout the West is handling the whole output.
Each colony of bees makes about 200 pounds in a season, though one colony at the Lethbridge Experimental Farm broke all records for Canada by making 472 pounds in the season of 1923. A record of 21 pounds in one day by one colony was made in 1923 when the bees at the Experimental Farm averaged 189 pounds for the season, the high record for the year at the experimental farms across Canada.

New War in Balkans
The flame of war has again broken out in the Balkans and Greece and Bulgaria have developed all the symptoms of a bad attack of war fever. While Bulgaria may have irritated the Greeks into retaliation, it remains a fact that Greek troops have actually taken up their position on Bulgarian territory. Bulgaria made an appeal to the League of Nations for intervention and M. Briand, acting president of the League, called a meeting for Monday to deal with the problem, a meeting which was attended by Austen Chamberlain, as both France and Britain are distressed by the outbreak of war following so closely on their peace efforts at Locarno. It is indicated that the great powers will use very possible effort to quench the fiery spirits of the Greek and Bulgar militarists.
Both combatants agree to accept the ruling of the League, and Greece explains that her army became unruly and got beyond control.
