mor, since this time last year. Truly, a mighty turn over! In that state the democratic candidate for governor announced himself in favor of free trade, and that announcement helped to overwhelm him; for the fear of competition from the "pauper labor of Europe" appears to be a perfect nightmare to the people of New England. Ohio, where our old friend McKinley was the republican candidate for governor, the contest assumed almost a national impor-

the republican candidate for governor, the contest assumed almost a national importance. The newspaper spoke of the fight in that state as the last battle over protection. There the contest became largely one between free trade on the one side and pretection on the other, and McKinley's victory has been seemphants and decisive that the is already spoken of as the republican candidate for president in 1896.

All these results will prove disappointing to those people who have hoped that the days of unreasonably high protective tariffs were about over. When President Called and his party made such a clean sweep last year the results was halled as the turned in marriage to be tide, when protection so great an extreme in the adoption of the McKinley tariff, had received its death blow. Now, however, before any change can be made in the McKinley tariff, and received its death blow. Now, however, before any change can be made in the McKinley tariff, and received its death blow. However, President Cleveland is a brave man as well as a wise and far-seeing statesman. He still has three years of office before him, and he is just the man to go on perseveringly with his policy of tariff reform, trusting to the sober second thought of nation to sustain him in so doing. In a few weeks at most we shall know just what changes the democratic party propose to make, as the Committee on Ways and Means the Rev. P. A. MacEwan being the officiating ceremony. The principal parties were Capt. Clement Barkhouse of the schr. Harris, and Miss Addie Saunders, third daughter of the late Major John Saunders, of Paradise. The bride's going away dress was a tasteful costume of green cloth, and she carried a handsome boquet. After partaking of an elegant lunch the happy couple drove to the station, where amid the congratulations of numerous friends they took the evening train en route to line and the heroine is named Evangeline.

NOTICE.—The ladies of the Baptist church at Evergreen intend holding a tea-meeting in Wednesday evening, Nov. 22nd. Tea to Wednesday evening make, as the Committee on Ways and Means which is now preparing a tariff measure will then have completed its work. We shall then be able to discover to what extent the recent republican victories have scared the and prosperous voyage.

During a recent business trip to Kingston and vicinity, in looking in upon some of the patrons of this paper, we were pleased to see many evidences of progress and prosperity in that thriving community. Mrs. Woodbury, at the Village, has a large and varied assortment of goods in her store, ity in that thriving community. Mrs. Woodbury, at the Village, has a large and varied assortment of goods in her store, equal to that to be found in the stores of any of our towns. Mrs. Woodbury was the pioneer in adopting the no-credit system of doing business, and she reports the results most satisfactory. At the station, the stores of T. A. Tufts, J. F. Burns & Co. and George Armstrong are well stocked, each in its nor. of T. A. Tufts, J. F. Burns & Co. and George Armstrong are well stocked, each in its particular line, with everything customers require, at prices exceedingly cheap. If we mistake not all three of these firms have also adopted the cash system of doing business. Indeed this is the only method of doing business which is just and fair to both buyer and seller. The man who does a large creating the second many solutions, is seen the same purpose,—some schools are far behind in these matters; missionary work; and an effort to be made with the government for the law of consent:

The man who does a large credit business must from the very nature of things make some losses through bad debts, interest, bank discounts, etc., and in order to recoup himself for these he must place a larger percentage of profit on his goods, larger percentage of profit on his goods, which the prompt paying customer has to pay. Thus the honest customer who pays his bills has also to help pay what the merchant loses through the dishonest customer. Then too the indiscriminate giving of credit on the part of our business men frequently leads to extravagance on the part of the customer, and the purchase of much which he could well do without, and before he is aware of it a heavy store bill has been run up which frequently leads to trouble or inconvenience. It is a very good principle for a man to adopt, to earn his noney before he spends it, instead of spending it first and then trusting to luck to earn it in time to meet the bill. In short the credit system is an evil, which injures both the merchant and his customer as well, and the sooner our business men as a whole realize this fact the betness men as a whole realize this fact the bet- tance of a crutch. ter for all concerned. In NEWFOUNDLAND, where a general elec tion has just taken place, the result is somewhat of a surprise, as the defeat of the government led by Sir William Whiteaway was generally looked for. Instead of this, howhe comes out of the contest sustained by a majority of over two to one. Mr. Morine, formerly of the Spectator, is one of the ten opposition members again returned. He seems to have more than held his own, defeating the ticket headed by Sir Robert Thorburne by over eleven hundred majority. Political parties in Newfoundland do not seem to have any fixed principles, the dividing line between government and opposition being more imaginary than real. In the recent contest both sides made extravagant and unreasonable promises of what would be done in the event of success. If one half the railroads and other public works promised, were to be actually constructed, the ancient colony would as a result be burdened with a debt far beyond what the population of the island could possibly sustain. A Newfoundland despatch to one of the Halifax papers intimates that this may be done, and that the next election may turn on the question of confederation or union with Canada. That is to say, the politicians of the island, in order to keep themselves in power, propose to run the colony into debt, recklessly, and when the burden has become to heavy te carry, they propose to unite ing line between government and opposition counted for nothing. Men did not appear to think or reason. They were told by interested politicians that the democrats were to blame for the hard times and they rushed to the polls and voted for the other side.

The result in Massachusetts shows a change of over 40,000 in the vote for governor, since this time last year. Truly, a larger and they are the democratic many and the state the democratic many and the state of the evening was an address on Oddfellowship by T. H. Bohaker, D. D. G. The address was one worthy of being given before a much larger audience, as it was full of information and showed a great deal of careful research.
