

tain grandeur and mountain gloom are best seen. The beautiful view of the Coast Range from Esquimault harbour reminds one of that of the Jung Frau from Interlaken or of the magnificent view of Mont Blanc from Geneva. Graphic illustrations are given of the tremendous precipices of the Cariboo road and of other striking aspects of British Columbia scenery. The view of Yale on the Frazer river, with its environment of towering cliffs, where the serried ranks of pine trees cling and climb, is quite Swiss-like in its picturesqueness. The steamer in the foreground furnishes a scale of measurement of the mountains behind.

VIEW FROM ESQUIMAULT.
(From a sketch by the Marquis of Lorne.)