THERE is no better companion for man than a good wife, but next comes a good book, and if it is instructive as well as entertaining, the time in reading it is well spent. Dr. Foot's "Plain Home Talk and Medical Common Sense" is held in high esteem by the judges of good literature, and all classes of readers praise its clear style, enjoy its variety and profit by its instruction. Thousands have bought it, and more have borrowed it, but every family should have one of its own now that the price is only $1.50, and it can be had by mail, prepaid, from the Murray Hill Publishing Co., 129 E. 28th St., N. Y. City.
