with disc cultivator after previous pasturing by sheep. It was necessary to change the sheep to another pasture and Professor Maw had expected that they would return to the Poultry range. Professor Ness, however, had not understood this. The second field of the College range has been used for adult stock only and has not yet been treated. The third is in orchard. The orchard is operated by the Horticulture Department, the Poultry Department's interest in it being the shade provided. There is a fine crop of Fameuse and McIntosh Red apples on the trees and until the crop is removed it is impossible either to cultivate the land or pasture sheep in that field. Dr. Conklin admits that he was not fully informed as to what had been done in the treatment of the soil by liming and cultivation. I am asking him to make an inspection of the Poultry plant and either approve of the measures followed by Professor Maw or prescribe changes.

Yours faithfully,

Acting Dean.
