CONDEMS GERMANS' PITY

Writer Advocates Destruction of Useless

Members of Society

Public and private efforts calculated to prolong the lives of helpless and nonproductive citizens of the German enpire are sharply condemned and the destruction of these useless members of society in the interest of German efficiency and productivity is recommended an article in a recent issue of the Berliner Statsburger-Zeitung, one of the most influential of the conservative and junker organs. The article, which is entitled "More Hardheartedness," reads, in part, as follows:

Out of existence. On the contrary, they are under obligations to aid the life that is coming up. State, law, justice and custom must be changed, and the doctors equipped with powers of rejection, or else humanity will perish as a consequence of civilization and misplaced sympathy."

Commenting on the suggestion of the Conservative organ, German Socialist papers draw attention to the fact that hundreds of thousands of these "chunks of flesh," whose destruction is recommended, are cripples who have fought for the Kaiser in the present war.

and the Braves seventeen. To date it is impossible to form any idea of the winner. Considerable money is being waged on both the Phillies and Brooklyn; the Braves have lost prestige as a result of their recent set-back.

In the American League the Red Sox look like certain winners, unless something unforseen happens. Although they lost yesterday as a result of a fluke home-run they still lead the White Sox by two and a half games and the Tigers by three games. Their advantage lies in the fact that they have twice as many games to play as the Tigers and three more than the White Sox. If they lost half of the eight games they have yet to in the fact that they have twice as many games to play as the Tigers and three more than the White Sox. If they lost half of the eight games they have yet to play they could beat Detroit, and tie the White Sox even if both their competitors won all their games.

Alexander has now surpassed the National League record for shut-outs and incidentally added another $1,000 to his pay roll as a result of his double victory. He was won thirty games and is due for the extra money above his salary.

The Giants look good to eclipse all previous records for consecutive wins. They have now nineteen to their credit and look good to continue unchecked. If they had only another three weeks to play there would be more notice taken of their sensational work; as it is it is a secondary consideration along side of the games played by the pennant contenders.

The Braves are fighting hard to get back into the running. It must be a big disappointment for the management when one considers that several thousand dollars' worth of tickets were sold in anticipation of a part of the world's series being divided between the owners and players. They counted their chickens before they were hatched.

Both Detroit and Chicago received setbacks on Saturday by being defeated by Washington and New York respectively. They cannot afford to lose a game if they hope to have any chance with the Red Sox.

Tom Daly got back into the game on Saturday, relieving O'Neill. He has been on the injured list for several weeks as a result of a flesh wound below the knee, inflicted by Carl Mays' spikes.

Meadows Made Fifty Starts

Lee Meadows, spectacled pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, may not be the best heaver in the world, but he is a record ords show that Meadows has started something like fifty games this season and in thirty of them he has been taken from the mound because he was going so badly. This is no doubt a record in this respect. In spite of his disposition to go badly before the end of the allotted nine innings, Meadows has secured just about an even break in the matter of games won and lost and in point of effectiveness outranks some other pitchers who are more highly regarded.

The Film of a Thousand Wonders!

Most Absorbing of Screen Productions!

A few years ago newspapers and magazines carried long accounts of the adventures of JOSEPH KNOWLES, who penetrated the heart of Maine woods, without food, unarmed and unclothed. The Universal Company persuaded Mr. Knowles to repeat his adventures, the only difference being that this time he had a camera man for a companion and covered his nakedness with shirt and pants.

FIVE REELS OF FILM CALLED

In all the history of moving pictures, there is no production which can compare with it. The time, the energy, the patience of its producers, as evidenced by the rare pictures shown, is nothing short of marvelous. You can see a man enter the primeval wilds of the California Mountains, unarmed, without tools or provisions of any kind, and in a succession of the most intensely interesting scenes you see how he conquers the forces of nature; how he clothes and feeds himself; makes a fire, and emerges conqueror of brute force by the supreme intelligence of a human being. The pictures themselves are the fullest proof of the genuineness of the scenes, and every man, woman and chid, regardless of their moving picture likes and dislikes, will be held in thrilling fascination while the "Nature Man"
