(M. G. S., in Scottish American.)
Within the last two years in my hospital work amongst the soldiers, I have had endless opportunities of observing their chivalry, which, combined with their chivalry, which, combined with their cherfulness, makes them ideal patients. Incidentally, men always make better patients than women! But soldiers heat them all. They never take (M. G. S., in Scottish American.) t I was theatre sister, and had charge a small surgical ward. ## Everybody Needs Pure, Rich Blood Pure blood enables the stomach, liver and other digestive organs to do their work properly. Without it they are sluggish, there is loss of appetite, some-Says Wounded Men Are Best times faintness, a deranged state of the intestines, and, in general, all the symptoms of dyspepsia.

Pure blood is required by every organ of the body for the proper performance of its functions.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood, and this is why it is so successful in the and this is why it is so successful in the treatment of so many diseases and ailments. It acts directly on the blood ridding it of scrofulous and other hum make better patients than women! But soldiers beat them all. They never take our services for granted, and their gratitude is boundless. Strong language is often—in fact, nearly always—a strong man's outlet in times of severe pain, yet never once have I heard an oath from a suffering soldier. Our orderlies may have heard something stronger, but when a sister is present soldiers behave accordingly. Where I was stationed at first I was theatre sister, and had charge of a small surgical ward. Sitting one ily reassured him that he had slept like a lamb and never even bleated.

A Court Martial.

Conscious or unconscious, our Tommies' chivalry is to be depended upon. On another occasion I entered one of the larger wards and found an impressive court-martial scene proceeding. If there had been any officers about they'd have been much tickled. The Tommy representing the Colonel was irresisting of the pretty pathetic from a surgical point of view, but they, poor chaps, felt that to be back in "Blighty" anyhow was a bit of "all right" and would be good inless.

representing the Colonel was irresistible. The offender was charged with using profane language in the presence of a sister. The defence was that the sister was half-way out of the door, and therefore technically not in the ward. I suggested the case be settled by asking the sister what the profane word had been, and abiding by her judgment. A tactful sister had heard nothing, so the court was dissolved, with a threat of C. B. if the offence was repeated.

One of my patients had been easing the last moments of a Frenchman who seemed anxious about a letter in his breast pocket. The only word the Frenchman was able to say was—"send" and then he died. My soldier had brought the letter back with him and we found it was from a sister anxious for pays of him. It was a beautiful

Amazingly Cheerful.

Yet through al this Tommy manages to keep cheery and to spread around him the most amazingly, cheerful atmosphere. It seems as if the entire British army had taken as its motto, "Be of good cheer," and in living up to it had closed all thoroughfares to depression. Nevertheless we as a people can do much to keep the men cheerful. Its no easy matter for a home loving Scot to launch out into the deeps of a foreign land. The cheeriest of our soldiers admit to home sickness getting a big hold of them in France, and I myself have seen signs of it there.

As a matter of fact, when I was myself out nursing in France, the mere sight of a kilt in a fashionable boulevard in — was enough to raise my spirits for days.

The Scottish soldiers were never much at a loss to make themselves understood in France, signs can do wonders, and in France, signs can do wonders, and broad Scots is often fine French, so that they broke into the language without being aware of it.
