AERIAL TORPEDO NEW WEAPON OF OFFENCE

The fear of overwhelming attacks from the air, which prevailed among the allied nations at the outbreak of the war, and until recently, when the comparative ineffectiveness of the Zeppelin seemed demonstrated, is likely to be revived and the terrifying power of these monster airships fully realized if the reports which are being received from the front are true. The September Popular Magazine, in an illustrated article, says:

"The accounts of the operation of these torpedoes read like the fantastic tales with which readers were regaled before the great war became a reality. In the respect that torpedoes resemble a submarine torpedo and is said to possess all its destructive power. It is simply propelled by a piston directly into the water, where it is exploded by a steering mechanism, and through this body of the torpedo is from 100 to 150 ft. of high explosive, enough to cause great havoc, especially when exploded above the object to be destroyed and is then turned vertically downward and dropped like an ordinary bomb."

"The aerial torpedo is said to be about seven ft. in length and to have a war head like that of a submarine torpedo. In order to allow it to penetrate a roof or other obstruction before exploding, the war head is equipped with a time fuse that delays the explosion for a few seconds after the impact. Carried in the body of the torpedo is from 100 to 150 lb. of high explosive, enough to cause great havoc, especially when exploded above the object to be destroyed and is then turned vertically downward and dropped like an ordinary bomb."

"While this torpedo can doubtless be made somewhat more effective than a bomb that is simply dropped, it has one serious limitation when launched from an aircraft, and that is the fact that it is not safe from the fire of anti-aircraft guns the airship must either be considerable distance from the target or at a great height above the ground. In either case it would be extremely difficult to determine when the torpedo was anywhere near a point directly above the target. In spite of this, however, the Germans have apparently perfected themselves with an exceedingly effective weapon of offense in this torpedo."

NEW YORK REMOUNT BUYER CALLED TO ORDER BY SIR CHAS. DAVIDSON

After his outburst Woodworth settled down and was questioned by counsel as to checks drawn payable to his order for horses. Thirteen checks were drawn to the value of $21,750 and were payment for 128 horses bought in Halifax, New Glasgow and Truro. The average cost per horse was $169. He did not draw up the checks. He could not give the names of all the vendors, but had kept data relating to horses bought. He had also kept his averages and the totals of checks for horses, so that he did not exceed the amount of the checks drawn in a small book, but he tore that up after the sales.

The average cost to which he was allowed to go by Col. Neal was $170 to $172. His final average was $168. After he had worked out his buying deals from the tags he gave them to A. DeWitt Foster, M.P., about two months ago in New York. He could see that this was a very important matter now to the commission, but it was a small matter with him, as the buying happened a year ago and he had been very busy since.

Prevent Injury to Your Sight

Preventive Optometry is just as essential as preventive medicine or preventive dentistry. The specialist on eye-sight and eye-strain—the optometrist—by making a complete scientific examination of your eyes, can detect defects, if they exist, before they have progressed enough to injure vision permanently, and by providing properly fitted glasses prevent growth of the defect and injury to sight and health.

Sensible people have their eyes examined by an optometrist every two or three years, in order to see if any change in their glasses is needed.

Sharpe's offer you the best in every detail of optometrical service.
