TWO TON HOLIDAY GIFT.

San Francisco, Dec. 21.—The weightiest Christmas present that New York City will receive has arrived here on its way to the east. It is a section of a petrified redwood tree, brought here from the "petrified forest" of Sonoma County for shipment by water to New York, where it will become an exhibit in Central Park.

The specimen weighs over two tons, or to be more exact, 5,680 pounds, and was brought to San Francisco on a heavy truck under the supervision of Harold Boche, son of Mrs. Ollie Boche, owner of the famous forest. The change from wood to stone has preserved the texture and fibre completely, and there is no question that the block was originally part of a giant redwood.

Reservations were made in advance for storage of the section at a hotel over Sunday. Its arrival attracted a large number of spectators. It is a gift from Mr. Boche to the City of New York.

Turkish tobacco is being grown extensively in California.

A MENACING MOTHER-IN-LAW

Rural Typhoid Carrier Has Infected Four Sons-in-Law and Others.

(New York Times).

The State and local health authorities have recently succeeded in bringing under a certain degree of control one of the most repulsive "typhoid carriers" that ever spread a trail of disease through up-State New York villages.

The fourth case of typhoid fever among this woman's six sons-in-law occurred a few weeks ago and led to strenuous and that successful effort on the part of the local health officer and a representative of the State Department of Health to obtain specimens, the examination of which at the State Laboratory has proved beyond doubt how serious a menace this particular mother-in-law has been to her relatives for many years.

The first case believed to have been infected by this carrier was that of a boarder in her family who contracted typhoid in 1900. Since that time she has infected four sons-in-law, two sisters and the father and mother of one of the sons-in-law, two grandsons, a visitor, and indirectly a nurse employed in one of the cases. The cases of the sons-in-law have all developed shortly before or after their marriage. Two others have been recovered from their amiable but deadly mother-in-law.

Indeed, the old lady is reported to be a great traveler, visiting the families of her various daughters for weeks at a time, and usually helping out in the kitchen, where she, of course, occupies a strategic position for the distribution of germs by means of food and dishes. For some unknown reason her own children, seven daughters and three sons, have all escaped typhoid, the infection falling by curious chance upon the sons-in-law and other relatives.

It was six years ago that this woman first came under observation as a suspected chronic spreader of typhoid fever. At that time a blood examination proved positive, but she persistently refused to submit more specimens until a few weeks ago. Three of the specimens recently taken are positive beyond doubt to all tests for the presence of the typhoid bacillus, according to the State Department of Health. In spite of the convincing evidence of so many cases among relatives that she had visited, the health authorities would probably not have been able to place her under the usual restrictions for typhoid carriers or to convince her that she was a menace to others had it not been for their success in obtaining the specimens which have at last given such clear proof of her condition.

DISAPPEARANCE OF FISHES LAID TO BIG FOREST FIRES

New York, Dec. 18.—Anglers, guides and sportsmen generally, who are interested in conservation of the country's inland and game fish supply, are warned by the Bureau of Fisheries to take special pains to prevent forest fires, as these have been responsible for widespread destruction of fish.

HID LOOT IN CEMETERY.

Moscow, Nov. 15.—(Associated Press, By Mail)—Ingenuous thieves of this city have been using an old graveyard in which to hide food supplies pilfered from railroad cars. The loot was buried at night under what the next day, it was found, had been a mass of sugar, and half as much cocaine and flour, all of which had been abstracted from relief supplies.

Last year automobiles alone it is estimated, caused the death of about 18,000 people, an increase of 1,000 over 1920 and bringing the daily average of death from this cause up to thirty-six, or about one-sixth of all the deaths caused by all kinds of recorded accidents. In a selected list of fifty large cities, distributed well over the country and embracing an aggregate population of about 25,000,000, the number of people killed by automobiles last year was 155 to each million.

Reliable statistics, which are very numerous, show that in the United States we are needlessly sacrificing a human life every six minutes. Up to the annual toll of death from automobile accidents, the number of people killed by automobiles last year was 155 to each million.

Every Merchant His Own Editor

A merchant talking with the writer said: "I consider my Daily Newspaper Advertising to be the most important thing I do each day. It is the only thing I do that the entire community are simultaneously informed about."

"I look upon my advertising space in a somewhat similar fashion, I imagine, to the way the editor looks upon the whole paper. He has so much space and so much copy to use. His job is to make his paper as interesting as he can, to as many people as possible."

"I haven't as much space as he has; therefore it is doubly important to me to make my space more interesting than his space—IF I CAN."

"Hundreds of people come into my store whom I can never hope to meet personally. So I figure that the next best I can do is to give them a definite impression of my personality through my daily newspaper advertising."

The basis of successful advertising for any local merchant is disclosed in that conversation.

Reason it out.

DEATH ROLL OF THE AUTO.

(Thrill Magazine.)

In the final summing up of all that could be said regarding the industrial progress there is nothing so startling as the startling of human life. It would be of no avail for America to go on plugging up her record of national wealth if she is going to continue to annually snuff out the lives of seventy-five or a hundred thousand men, women and children through carelessness and a disregard of the fundamental laws of precaution.

Reliable statistics, which are very numerous, show that in the United States we are needlessly sacrificing a human life every six minutes. Up to the annual toll of death from automobile accidents, the number of people killed by automobiles last year was 155 to each million.
