Mrs. Eliza McCoskery.

The death occurred Wednesday at the New Victoria Hotel of Mrs. Eliza McCoskery, widow of John McCoskery, the original proprietor of the old Globe hotel, Prince William street, which afterwards became the New Victoria. Mrs. McCoskery had passed the allotted three score and 10 years and was a wonderfully smart old lady up to about six weeks ago when she complained of feeling unwell. Last week her condition became serious and although every effort was made to combat her ilness she gradually sank until death came. She will be sincerely mourned by all who knew her as she was a lady of sterling Christian character, highly esteemed by all. She leaves one son, C. A. McCoskery, of New York, and two daughters, Miss Sarah A. McCoskery and Mrs. Ritchie, wife of Joseph Ritchie, of the post office staff. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed pending advices from the deceased's son in New York.

It is expected all the troops, numbering 1,500, will be on the ground by daybreak. The governor has been kept fully advised of the situation. At 6 o'clock the following message was received from the sheriff and two assistants surrounded and one killed, three of mob shot by sheriff, three local police officers shot, one possibly fatally. Town is without police protection and local government terrorized. Threatened by mob if they sign petition. The leaves one son, C. A. McCoskery, of New York, and two daughters, Miss Sarah A. McCoskery and Mrs. Ritchie, wife of Joseph Ritchie, of the post officer staff. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed pending advices from the deceased's son in New York.

Hoe Factory Employes Threw Pails of Water on Mass of Hebrew Mourners as Funeral of Chief Rabbi Passed--Several People Injured.

New York, July 30-The funeral of Chief Rabbi Jacob Joseph, head of the ortho-dox Hebrews of the United States, which was held here today, was the occasion of one of the most remarkable demonstrato a collision between the masses of Jewish mourners and the police.

The streets were packed with thousands of Hebrews, stores were generally closed, and every point of vantage along the route taken by the funeral procession to the different synagogues was crowded.

After the services at the house the body After the services at the house the body was taken to each of the six synagogues on the east side where brief services were held. When the procession was passing the printing press factory of R. Hoe & Co., on Grand street, on its way to the cemetery in Brooklyn, employes of the factory emptied pails of water from the windows of an upper floor on to the spectators massed upon the sidewalk.

The angry populace, most of whom were Hebrews, retaliated by throwing stones, sticks and other missiles into the factory windows, and in a few! minutes there was streets and other missiles into the factory windows, and in a few minutes there was scarcely a whole pane of glass on the Grand street side of the factory. Then someone in the factory turned on a hose and played it indiscriminately all over the funeral procession.

NEW EXPLOSIVE SHELL OF TREMENDOUS POWER.

United States Army Claims Secret Which May Revolutionize Naval Construction.

Washington, July 30-The United States army possesses a secret in a high explo sive shell which may revolutionize the construction of battleships, and have a far-reaching effect upon the design of future ships of war.

Gen. William Crozier, chief of ordnance declares that his explosive shell will pen etrate any war vessel now built. The army ordnance officers claim to have solv ed the greatest problem in the develop-ment of ordnance equipment in the discovery of this high explosive, which will be effective under normal conditions and at average fighting distance. General Crozier withholds all information regarding the properties of the new explosive. The shell can be carried through the heaviest armor plate, and will not explode until the armor has been penetrated through its entire thickness. penetrated through its entire thickness.

A prominent naval architect and designer declares that warships have been designed on the supposition that their armorphated sides could not be pierced by an explosive shell. He knows about the army invention, and admits that the navar will not be able to diargard it in navy will not be able to disregard it in its designs for battleships in the future.

The Girl That Will be Wanted.

The coming woman is anxiously awaited by the twentieth century. She is but a slip of a girl now, but when the new century dawns, with all its gracious promises, she will be there to meet it, equipped for its victories and its defeats. Indeed, is it too much to say that the girl, a woman then, do housework and she was not going to living in the new century? Society and girl! The mother who neglects to teach civilization are to be determined largely by her daughter in household lore, who never women. Whether they be allowed to vote or not, they will have a part in molding human life. This is a strategic point—the of a grave mistake. She has much to antraining of our girls. Mothers bave a large swer for. The social and domestic trageresponsibility put upon them in the nurture of their daughters. It is becoming increasingly difficult to lead them along the perilous path to a gracious womanhood. nice modesty; an intelligent purity of thought and act. Innocence is not prudery, ignerance is not virtue. Our girls should understand the parils and dangers that beset this temple of the body; they should have an exact and truthtul knowledge of she may do much in making this old earth the mysteries of physical life. The bloom an Eden. - [By a of the blushing peach is not impaired by insight into the mystery of prenatal life, Purdy arrived shortly after Warren was birth and progress toward maturity. No shadow will lie on the consciousness of any maiden, because she is perfectly aware of the obligations the fact of her sex has conferred upon her. She should have a frank and genuine interest in those questions which the vile may have distorted to their own evil purposes, but which are a legitimate subject of thought. An honest, intelligent contact with physiological facts will be as a corset of steel to protect her matur-> in our girls; ignorance is often allured by flippant word into unwise thought. Modesty is the basis of all noble womanhood; it is the flower of maidenhood, the inexpressicitadel of a pure heart.

(2). A robust physical life; less perve, The nervous system is abnormally developed to day; the body is allowed, often, American life. Is it a dispensation of Divine Providence that such is the fact, or are there purely physical causes that have much to do with the frail tenure many of our women have upon life? Is this deterioration of physical fiber to go on, the house of clay but a weak and shaking structure for a life attenuated to the very last degree of sensitiveness? Misery, madness and death lie along this line. There will be room enough for the girl who has a robust, physical life, whose body is not the asylum of a tortured spirit. Culture that neglects the body is preparing a scorpion whip that will lash the physical life into despair. A sound body will be the crying need of a coming age. The coming girl will be handicapped by generations behind her, but something may be done for her. The extreme finish of her culture she may spare, but not a particle of vitality.

(3). "Faculty." A provincialism of New England that means much. Ability to turn one's self, power of adaptation, skill, knack, the happy turn to meet the present moment How much it ean accomplish sometimes Its presence or absence may decide grav questions; often the girl that has it will find a large place to fill in life, and duties rich in results to her hand. Its possession society cannot impart it. A girl has never "finished" her education until she has something of it. It will often supply the place of technical knowledge, and enable one with limited parts to occupy responsi ble places in life. The coming girl needs this above all, "Faculty." Will the train ing of to-day evolve these characteristic Some facts intimate the negative.

The character and atmosphere of our fiction. There is much of the fiction of the present day that distils poison. It leaves a subtle blight upon the half-open rose. It lestroys the frank gaze of childhood. It suggests the question often, is life worth living? Genuine modesty is not fostered by much of our popular literature. It breeds discontent, it sugar-coats evil, it covertly sneers at virtue. Healthy, inspiring fiction always has its place. It is peculiarly attractive to girls; but when genius casts a glamour over evil, and hides it under the witchery of words, no girl can breathe the vitiated atmosphere, and have a healthy, moral life. The book in the hand will undo the training of years. Motherhood, with all its sweet influences, is no match for brilliant genius, suggesting evil, in a fascinating book. We do well to exercise a wise caution in the books we allow our daughters to read; a serpent may be concealed between the attractive covers.

The neglect of health producing habits and sensible physical culture. Late hours, not rooms, continued excitement are doing their work. Even the sea, the fashionable spa, the grand tour, will not replace exhausted vitality. The girl buds into the woman, in a moment, and her physical life is not prepared for the new demands then to be made upon it. The habits of life which the American girl has acquired will body. She neglects her body fearfully, and she gives little attention to systematic, scientific training of her corporeal life. These facts have their exceptions, but the custom of the age is true to these statements. The temple of God is fast losing its aivine outline. When it shall become fashionable to make physical health of the first conse that end, there will be the promise of a generation of girls that will be wanted. The failure to put personal responsibility upon our girl. She is guarded too closely. She is sheltered too carefully. I know a young lady, happily married, who boasted, soon after, that "she did not know how to may do much to prove that life is worth learn." What a future there is for such a places responsibilty upon her, who makes a baby of her until she is married, is guilty dies that are so frequent might, perhaps, have been avoided if the mother had really been a mother to her child.
