

ceedings will cease, so far as the Canadas are concerned ; and that is a point of magnitude gained.

To our fellow-countrymen in Canada we say, Act as loyal and good citizens ; fence in your constitution with every possible safeguard for property ; create municipal institutions throughout your fine country ; secure peace ; invite wealth and population to settle among you ; petition parliament immediately for the admission of your grain and flour, duty free, into England, and a reduction of the heavy tax levied on your timber ; fit out two or three small armed cruisers, to protect your shores from the encroachments of the American fishermen, and insist on the immediate settlement of the boundary question. Be peaceful and quiet ; foster religion, and extend education ; and in these, and all other good measures, you shall ever find us ready to aid you. And now may Almighty Providence bless your labours, and direct them to a good end !
