Ozone Has Cured Many Others.

The cases of dyspepsia that have been cured by Powley's Liquified Ozone are sumbered among the hundreds. Many of them had been chronic for years. Drug preparations had been used to such an extent that the system was literally filled with them, and drugs had become almost as much of a necessity as food. Ozone corrected all this, for it not only destroyed the disease germs that caused the dyspepsia, but it cleaned the system of drugs and rendered their use unnecessary. What Ozone has done it is doing and will do rendered the system of drugs and rendered their use unnecessary. What Ozone has done it is doing and will do for others. The following are a few of the many persons who have been cured of this most distressing complaint:

W. J. ADAMS,

W. J. ADAMS,

428 Wellesley street, Toronto, writes:

"For years I suffiged from dyspepsia.

My food seemed to be in a solid lump in my stomach, causing great distress
I tried physicians and advertised cureas well as dieting, but got no relief.

Three bottles of Powley's Liquified
Ozone cured me completely and I can now digest anything I care to eat."

MRS. ANDREW CARLSON.

Lachine, Que., writes: "I suffered from dyspepsia and heart trouble for two years and was so bad that I could not sleep at nights. Finally I had to give up my household work and was a physical wreck. Four bottles of Pow-ley's Liquified Ozone cured me com-pletely. I eat and sleep well and am strong and healthy in every way."

MISS ANNA MAHON,

MISS ANNA MAHON,

"Stries: "Powley's Liquified Ozone cared me after I had suffered from dyspepsia for three years and several good physicians had failed to give me relief. I have recommended Ozone to all my friends and will do all in my power to bring it to the attention of any person suffering from dyspepsia. I will gladly answer any questions as to what it has done for me."

Powley's Liquified Ozone is sold by all reliable druggists at 50 cents and 131.00 per bottle.

COLONEL BUNKER

He Tells of His Many Experiences
With Editor

[Copyright, 1902, by Warner Muller.]

S a public man for forty years past," said Colonel Bunker as he sipped at his glass and set it aside for a moment, "I have met up with a large number of editors. Very few of them have un-derstood me from the first, but in the end most of them have become my good friends.

"Take the case of the editor of the Clarion," resumed the colonel as old recollections brought a smile to his face. "It was years and years ago, suh, and I was a candidate for the legislature of my state. I opened the cam paign with a speech that went hustling over the state like grapeshot and gave me instant standing as an orator, but the Clarion saw fit to criticise and ridi-cule and pronounce it an old woman's lament. As soon as I had read the criticism I took a walk. I found the editor in. Without the slightest reference to his article and in my suavest tones I

"'My deah suh, at what hour in the mawning do yo' generally arise?'
"'About 2 o'clock, colonel,' was the reply.

"'Would yo', in order to oblige me, make the hour sunrise tomorrow mawning? Also, would you put in an appearance at the place known as Scott's grove? There is to be a little shooting match there at ten paces, and it will furnish vo' an interesting item.

"Do I know any of the parties?" he asked in a voice full of anxiety.

"I think yo' do, suh. One of them will be Colonel Bunker and the other yo'self. As to which one will be left on the ground L cannot say, but yo' can rest assured that only one will survive. I await yo'r answer, suh.'

"The gentleman was not present next mawning," continued the colonel as he reached for his glass, "and the Clarion contained a double headed editorial in which it stated that my elec tion to the legislature was of more importance than anything else on the

ONE OF THEM WILL BE COLONEL BUNKER. boards. It was a beautiful thing—a beautiful thing, suh—and it was only last week that I stood up at a bar with that same editor and touched glasses. He has been my friend for thirty years, suh, and he will continue to be. He simply made the mistake of not under standing me at the outset.

"And there was the editor of the Banner-of the Banner, sub. I had made a speech in the legislature advocating state protection for the catfish of our rivers and bayous. It was needed, suh. The catfish is the pore man's beef and mutton. Its skin could be turned to a dozen uses. Its very bones are of value. He was being caught in such numbers that in another decade he would have been extinct when I introduced a bill for his protection. I had certain statistics and facts to offer, and the bill went through. The editor of the Banner, standing entirely alone referred to me as Colonel Catfish Bunk er and suggested that I draft bills to protect frogs and gallinippers. I was on my way to his office for an interview when I met him on the state house steps.
"'Mistah Blank,' said I when we had been introduced and shaken hands, 'will yo' have half an hour to spare during the day?'

"'I will,' he replied.
"'Then, suh, at what particular hour will it be most convenient for yo' to receive my friend, Majah Worthing-ton? Shall we say 3 o'clock this evening?'

"'What is the majah's object in calling?' he asked as he looked at me rather queerly.

"To arrange our little affair, subour little affair. The choice of weapons will rest with yo', of co'rse, but I hope yo' can name an early hour.'
"There was no meeting," said the colonel as he emptied his glass and set it down with a sigh. "The editor was taken with a chill that day and could not see callers, and next day the Ban-ner devoted two columns of space to my catfish bill and declared that it was the wisest measure of the whole sion. Many were the poker games I sat in with that editor in after years, and it was my painful pleasure, suh, so to say, to be one of his pallbearers five years ago. It was simply that he didn't size me up correctly at the start. "And I direct yo'r attention, suh," resumed the colonel after his glass had been refilled—"I direct yo'r attention to my little misunderstanding with the editor of the Courier. I was a judge on the bench at the time, and the Courier found fault with my railing in a cer-tain case. Indeed, suh, the paper went so far as to question my legal abilities to decide on such a farreaching matter and to advise an appeal from my rui-

One thing that hinders many rarmers from making a good profit on their farms is keeping scrub stock instead of SECURITY.

good breeds. No one who has ever tried feeding a Poland China or Berkshire hog in the same pen with a scrub would need anything else to convince him of this. A good thoroughbred will simply return twice the increase for the same amount of feed that the scrub will. This is a matter of far greater importance than most people think. There is no money in scrub stock, and the sooner it is universally known the Little Liver Pills. better it will be for the country. feel and realize, says John A. Wallace, in the Farmer's Home Journal, the fact that Kentucky loses thousands of dol-fars each year by feeding inferior hogs. There is quite a large number of hogs now being fed in Kentucky which would not pay for half the care and feed given them

Just why this is so is hard to explain, when we know that there is a good profit in good hogs and a good sow and boar can be bought so cheap and soon stock any farm with good hogs. A good brood sow can be bought for $15 or $20 and upon an average will bring from six to eight pigs. A good boar pig can be had for $8 or $10 and from 25 to 90 per cent of the feed now con sumed can be saved thereby and this alone would buy good hogs by the dozen. Not only this but if you do not want to put an advertisement in a paper and breed for breeding purpose on could sell all your surplus pigs to neighbors at from six to eight cents per pound. We have tried several experiments with good Poland and China pigs and good scrub pigs finding from $3.50 to $4 difference per head in a year Now, this would make a difference of from $30 to $40 in a scrub sow and a good sow in a year, when we remember that a sow will bring two litters a year. A number of the breeds of hogs are now being bred for early maturity, and need not be kept till one year old to mature, but can be kept to six or eight months old and be turned off to top the market the sweetest and best beacon, and the pigs in the fall turned off to neighbors at from $3 to $5 per head at four to six weeks old, or fed for spring market, as may be desired, not forgetting that extra attention is what makes the extra profit, especially dur-ing the winter months. Now, young man, are you in the old rut, breeding that old roach-back scrub? If so pull out this fall while you yet have time to make preparations for next year by buying a bred sow or sows, as needs be, and a good boar to breed to next sum mer for a fall litter, and don't forget to get a good pedigree with what you buy, which will induce your neighbors to buy from you at good, if not fancy prices.—Rural World

Filtered Milk, William Curry, an old north Texas dairyman, who has traveled extensively abroad, says, according to the Dallas News, that central depots where milk is received and filtered before being taken to the consumer are now a feature of several Europan cities.

Large cylindrical vessels are divided horizontally near their centre by compartments containing sand of three successive degrees of fineness, the coarsest being the lowest and as the milk arriving from the country is poured through a pipe into the bottom vessels it rises through the sand filter and is run off by an overflow pipe into a cool cistern from which it is drawn directly into locked cans for distri-

The sand is renewed each time the filter is used. The dirt is separated from the milk, the number of bacteria is reduced to one-third and an astonishing quantity of mucus and slimy matter is removed, the loss of fat being very light.

Rapid Milking. It is a common mistake to suppose that the faster a cow is milked the better is the milk product drawn from the udder. It is certainly not so until practice has acquired, and the muscles of the hand have been trained so that the teats may be compressed gently and without apparent effort. The pulling and hauling worries the cow, and often causes her to hold up the milk so that no one can rapidly draw it. As a rule cows should be milked always by same person. If a change is made the cow at once discovers it and makes the milking harder.

The operation of milking, if gently terformed, is a pleasure to the cow.

This pleasure promotes milk secretion, so it is not an absurdidity so say that a good milker will get more milk from a cow at the same milking than an unskilful one could get, though each secured all that the udder would afford to him or her. The change from one milker to another is never made with out some loss. Therefore where a large herd of cows have to be milked, and several milkers are employed, each milker should have asigned to him the cows he shall milk, instead of milking one or another indiscriminately. The cow will discriminate, even if the milk-er does not.—American Cultivator.
