Both slides and prints may be entered but prints must be 5 x 7 or larger and mounted. Entries should bear a title (if any), the entrant's name, and telephone number, and should be placed in an envelope with a 75 cent per item entry fee. Anyone can enter -- there are no restrictions.

Exceptional Children Week set

During the week of February 15th to the 19th, the Student Council for Exceptional Children (SCEC), at the University of New Brunswick, is holding Exceptional Children's Week. This week is set aside to promote an awareness of and an interaction with exceptional children and youth. By exceptional children and youth, we mean any child who cannot progress in the regular school system, from the mentally retarded to the gifted.

To begin Exceptional Children's Week, the SCEC is sponsoring a "Walk-A-Mile-In-My-Shoes" Workshop. This workshop is designed so that members of the community can gain insight regarding the needs and capabilities of exceptional persons. Participants will interact with persons with special needs and discuss the problems faced by these people.

This workshop will be free of charge and the SCEC is urging all members of the community to come and participate. The scheduled date of the workshop is February 15.

For more information phone Beth Cain at 454-2587 or Jeanne Gormley at 455-4336.

Would-be senators interviewed

Fraser Dickson

Second year computer science student Fraser Dickson lists previous experience on the SRC as Rep at Large and as a member of three SRC committees. Dickson says he is seeking a Senate seat because he wants to become more involved in student and university related matters.

Dickson says he is not a member of the student party and sees this as one of non-issues. Dickson says he hopes to represent the students properly if elected to Senate. He said he will not hesitate to take student issues and concerns to Senate. Dickson says he would be interested in serving on the Senate Bookstore committee among other committees if elected next Wednesday.

John Jerney

John Jerney, a second year computer science student, has participated in the debating society and is a member of the Computer Science Association and the Business Society.

John is a member of the student party and is supporting their platform of upgrading student services and facilities, cutting tuition costs and expanding student action through more university participation in films, lectures, etc. Jerney said he supports the call for a student grievances council which would have the power to investigate staff, faculty, policies, and curriculum policies at the university.

Randy MacDonald

Third year science student Randy MacDonald is also seeking a senate seat. MacDonald cites his experience as a key factor. He has served two years as Rep-at-Large on the SRC and has been a member of the Orientation, Winter Carnival committees. He has also served a term on the executive committee of the Computer Science Association.

MacDonald says this is really a non issue election, but one major problem he sees that he would like senate to investigate is the allocation system at the computing centre. MacDonald believes a better system could be devised.

MacDonald stresses his experience as a major factor because of his student involvement. MacDonald is running on the Student Party platform which he says he fought hard to achieve.

He says he hopes there will be a large turnout at the polls as students have some clear choices to make on Wednesday.

Orientation holds first meeting

By TIMOTHY LETHBRIDGE
Brunswickan Staff

The orientation committee held its first general meeting Sunday, and about 50 people showed up. Chairman Wayne Schreurer said he plans to start a good training program for those involved this year.

He said they were trying to form a "good quality committee," this year; and with that in mind a university-knowledge quiz was distributed to everyone in attendance. He said even those on the committee previously would be screened carefully, and some in attendance would have an interview.

He attended a conference in Utah in October and this gave him some good ideas for Orientation '82.

People selected to be group leaders, said Schreurer will be given a list of names to contact, to give the freshmen the best possible introduction to the university.

If anyone could not be in attendance at the meeting, and would like to be on the committee, they must contact the orientation office in the SUB Monday at the latest, to fill out the questionnaire and test.
