

HOLY MASS

HOLY MASS is the Feast of feasts. Thro' its divine flesh and blood we are made one with Christ in His fulness. Of Mass the Psalmist sang prophetically : "Thou hast spread a table before me against them that afflict me. With oil hast Thou anointed my head, and how glorious is my inebriating chalice". (Ps. 22). And yet this astounding mystery is overlooked by reason of its familiarity and practically unknown to most Catholics by reason of its very excellence. Because with human nature in its fallen state, familiarity breeds contempt and invisible things can be known only by spiritually contemplating their greatness. It is
