If "A Bruce of Partridge" is to be taken as a criterion of the quality of the productions to be presented at the Grand this season, the patronage of the house should mount up by leaps and bounds, as a genuine, clean, up-to-date farce comedy it was A No. 1 and has not been beaten in this city for many seasons.

H. Reeves-Smith was all that has been claimed for him in his complicated dual role and his support was without a flaw. It was a captivating presentation and well pleased an audience which was, unfortunately, none too large.

The Brownies will be presented at the Grand by local talent on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 3 and 4. Malcolm Douglas, of New York, who will stage it, will arrive here with costumes on Monday next.

The Detroit News says:

To the blaze that regaled there was a welcome change to be found last night at the Detroit Opera House, when the stage was given over to children in a musical opera, "The Brownies in Fairyland." When the curtain rose on the first act last night, disclosing the stage filled with tiny maidens in white dresses, spangled and decked with gold, an involuntary burst of applause greeted them. "The Brownies in Fairyland" is a jingling introduction for a number of pretty songs, dances and clever specialties.

THIS BOVINE

Is a Winner at Milk Giving—Tired Ex-Alderman Liddy out.

"I've got something to tell you and it's straight. It's the truth and I want you to fix it up so that it will read all right," said ex-Ald. John Liddy to The Planet this morning.

"I've got a three-year-old Jersey cow on my place," continued he, "which I'll wager gives more milk than any other cow in the country, barring none."

"Well, she gives so much milk that I can't milk her all alone. I tried to do it this morning, but I got tired out before I got half through and had to get one of the men to finish the job for me."

"I got two pails of milk from her this morning—and mind, I am not saying this because I want to sell the cow, for she is not for sale. I just want to let outsiders know what kind of cows we raise around here."
