

Cleveland Tractor

The Cleveland Tractor does more than plow

Your tractor, to be of real service and value to you, must do more than simply draw a plow. Plowing is only the beginning of what a tractor should be able to do.

It should also be able to do everything else in the preparation of the seed bed—the discing and harrowing, the planting. And it should do these things in a way that will not injure the coming crop.

The tractor should not only be able to draw the implement easily, but it should not spoil the good work the implement has done.

After the ground is broken, The Cleveland Tractor goes over it with the disc and the harrow, then goes over it with the seeder.

The Cleveland rides on top of the seed bed; it does not sink into it and it does not pack the soil.

The Cleveland goes over soft ground because it travels on its own endless tracks which it picks up and lays down as it goes along.

These tracks have about 600 square inches of traction surface, so the pressure on the ground is only about five pounds to the square inch—therefore there is not enough weight on the ground at any one point to inflict damage.

We repeat, The Cleveland Tractor rides on top of the seed bed. It does not sink into it, therefore it does not have to wade or wallow through it.

And because it does not sink in, it does not have to push the dirt in front of it and pack it down in order to navigate.

And because it is not obliged to push the earth in front of it and pack it down, the greatest possible amount of The Cleveland's power is available for accomplishing the work it has to do.

This is one of the reasons why The Cleveland performs so much work on such a small amount of kerosene.

These are but a few of The Cleveland Tractor's many advantages. It is capable of performing almost endless tasks in both tractive and stationary engine work.

The Cleveland does its work. It does it well. It keeps on doing it. It is the tractor that does the work you want a tractor to do, in the way you want it done.
