Mr. Oliver-Unless otherwise structed by the House I certainly do I do not accept this resolution as instruction on that point. If the House so instructs me then the responsibility is taken off my shoulders and I care not. But so long as the responsibility rests on my shoulders I feel bound to discharge that responsibility according to my conscience Mr. Bristol-I would ask the minister if it has not been customary in his department for a long time past to allow members of parliament to

Ames said he was allowed to examine the Galway-Brown papers? . Oliver-Not to my knowledge. Mr. Bristol—Was it done without your knowledge in the department? When did you first learn that your officers had been accustomed to show original documents in that way? Mr. Oliver-I never learned the were accustomed to show original doc uments in that way. If they have been accustomed to do, as I will take occasion to show, it was contrary to my orders and contrary to the order given before I entered the depart-amine original documents, just as Mr.

Mr. J. D. Reid-Did not the minister invite members from this side of the House to go over to his department last session and the session be fore, to inspect original documents? Mr. Oliver-Certainly not. But in the case mentioned by the hon, mem-ber for St. Antoine (Mr. Ames) there was a question raised before the House to the correctness of a return and in order to facilitate business, order to assist in clearing up an doubt or question there might be that direction, permission was given
