Painting the House.

By RUTH CAMERON.

There are many things that even after painstaking effort to get the other fellow's point of view, I simply cannot understand. A n d one is why people paint their houses pink or blue.

In an ideal location, nestling in among the fir trees on a beautiful upland road which I frequently traverse, is a small old fashioned house. No, I take back that word "nestling." It doesn't nestle, it shrinks away from the first and they from it, for the house is painted a bright, salmon pink.

The road is a favorite drive on which we always take our visitors, and I do not think one of them fails to express surprise and distaste at that unfortunate house. Yet someone must have admired it, else it would not have been painted that miserable color.

The whole question of house painting is a very interesting one to me. I think the color and paint condition of a house has more to do with its power to attract or repel than any other single factor. The girl with nondescript features but a fresh, pretty color is usually hailed as a pretty girl by the casual observer; whereas the girl with well cut features but a pale or muddy skin is passed by without notice. And so it is with houses. The thoughtful observer may appreciate good lines, but the casual passerby will never be attracted to a house if its fine lines are obscured by ugly or dingy paint.

Of course the whole question of painting is a question of personal preference. Yet there are canons of good taste and of bad taste here as in everything.

Personally I like a white house best. "Paint it white," is always my cry. But a letter friend with whom I have been discussing this subject presents a point of view which is worth considering. "Don't paint your house white unless the lines are perfect,—it will look like a tombstone. And don't outline the windows of a dark house with white. That is a common error and is so ugly. If they do not plumb you see it instantly. A window is not generally a thing of beauty in shape; why should each one be outlined and strike the eye first. It is like sewing the seams of a black dress with white cotton—they must be perfectly straight, and even then, who wants to see the shape of the seams?"

Anything that blends with the outside world is right for a house color. The harmonious shades of brown and green, and of course that exquisite shade of gray which weather worn shingles assume, will make a house become a graceful and rightful part of the landscape instead of standing stiffly aloof from it.

Though space presses I cannot close without including another hint which my letter friend, a woman of wide experience in home making passes on. "Tramp in the path," she says in regard to the color to paint the piazza floor, "and scrape your shoes on the porch floor,—then have the painter match the color so that every careless person's foot prints will not show."

Lord Kitchener and the Boy.

Ambitious to become a soldier, a Ramsgate boy, Reginald Smith, whose father and five uncles served with the colors, ran away from home and walked to London. He called first at Buckingham Palace and then at New Scotland Yard, where he asked to see Lord Kitchener. By chance Lord Kitchener called at Scotland Yard at the same time and was stopped by the boy, who told him that he wanted to enlist.

Putting the boy on the shoulder, Lord Kitchener said: "You're too young, sonny; wait until you get older."

The boy, whose father works at Ramsgate Railway Station, is to be sent to a military school so that his ambition may be realized.

Humility.

Oh, why he swollen up and chesty, because, forsooth, we're half way great? And why be insolent and testy with people of a low estate? A little honour, is more than some cheap men can stand; a little taffy from the fawnier, and they swell up to beat the band. Look back, my friend, one generation, and note the great, who flourished then, believing, in self-administration, they far outclassed their fellow men; a little while we saw them trotting, the heroes of a passing day, and now they're dead and all forgotten, their gravestones falling in decay. A little while in awe we wondered, a little while we gaped and stared; a little while they pawed and thundered, and then they died—and no one cared. We stand beside the marble shutter that hides the dead, once bold and free; "Here sleeps the mighty Jones," we mutter, and someone answers, "Who was he?" Ah, many a fellow, fairly clever, is ruined by a slice of fame; he thinks the fickle world forever will cherish and adore his name; and so in majesty he poses, until the people, sick and tired, start throwing rocks instead of roses, and see him through the transom fired.

"Lizbeth."

"Lizbeth" an interesting love story produced by the I. M. P. Photo-Play Company is the head liner at the Crescent Picture Palace this week end. Clara Merceveau and Wm. Shea are the principals engaged in this fine domestic drama. The Powers Company give us "The Sea Urelin," this story is enacted in a fishing village; some of the scenes are very exciting especially when the two fishermen, in spite of the girl's entreaties, grapple in the boat and overturn her; the photograph of this picture is very fine. Bob Leonard and Marguerite Fischer, the great Rex actors, feature in "A Woman's Folly," a story of wonderful heart interest. "Their Only Child," Lady Sprockum engages a French artist to paint Bay Sprockum's portrait, he tries his best but can't do it. Another comedy mixed in with a clever love story is "Pawnee Romance." Miss Maudie Bob goes west for excitement and gets plenty of it. Frederick Kistebis, tenor, sings: "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold." Don't miss this great show at the popular Crescent.

Ira Thomas.

Red McGehee says: Yes, Ballston Spa is on the map. But don't it seem a handicap to have one's birthplace there? Well that's where Thomas first saw light in eighty-one, one winter night. They say he yelled for fair. He yells some yet at first or third Mack slips him the word to do a coachin' turn. From Ballston Spa when twenty-one young Thomas beat it. Twa'n't no fun to work that butter churn.

Some lad, he was. Stood six feet two an' had the beef an' muscle, too, to star behind the plate. Hartford an' Newark had him first. With Providence he next rehearsed, then struck his big league gait. New York, Detroit, his schedule went before ol' Mack got on his scent an' landed him with cash. He made a star right off the bat, but no one was surprised at that 'cause Connie don't buy trash.

His size, his eye, his ol' right arm, his battin' prowess boded harm to all the other clubs. Last year his hand went bad an' when they gave him charge o' green young men he made stars out o' dubs. An' now when Mack goes sick or lame ol' Ira steers the Mackmen's game in this year's pennant hunt. We're not forgettin' Schang or Lapp, but Ira is the battery chap who oughta rank out front.

Stop Coughing.

It's quite as foolish as it is annoying to keep on coughing since "PHORATHONE COUGH MIXTURE" is guaranteed to soothe and heal the irritated parts at once, and to rapidly destroy the very cause of this aggravating nuisance. Hundreds of persons are complaining every day about the cough or cold they have had for a long time, and they are not able to get rid of it. Don't let a cough or cold hang on to you day after day and run the chance of catching and developing the "cough" that is not easy to throw off. You will avoid all this worry (about the cough or cold you have) by obtaining "Phorathone Cough Mixture" at once. Sold at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. Price 25c; postage 5 cts extra. "Phorathone Cough Cure is prepared only by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Newfoundland."

Household Notes

A large hole cut higher up in a chimney means a distinct saving of heat.

It is a great comfort to a child to have small furniture in its own little room.

Dried vegetables have to be cooked longer than others to make them digestible.

To prevent valuable vases from toppling over and breaking, fill them with sand.

Jelly may easily take the place of cranberry sauce in the Thanksgiving dinner.

Read candle shades are easy to make, and excellent from a decorative point of view.

If gold fish become ill, the chances are it is due to overfeeding or lack of cleanliness.

Mix your soapsuds and do your washing with brains, and see how much easier it is.

In washing, always try to have the water the same temperature throughout the wash.

To clean stained eggs for shipping, place them in vinegar and wipe off on a cotton cloth.

Marvels can be done with the old portieres, couch and table covers, by dyeing them a new shade.

If the contents of the garbage can are drenched with kerosene daily, it will discourage the flies.

Always, if possible, cook the pumpkin the day before the Thanksgiving pies are to be made.

Don't forget that if you leave non-safety matches about, mice may nibble them and start a fire.

Don't wash stockings after other clothes, such as flannels, unless you want them covered with lint.
