

SUNLIGHT SOAP

"Tommy, Tommy Atkins, you're a good 'n heart and hand,
You're a credit to your calling and to all your native land."

No one can pay too high a tribute to the bravery and efficiency of our gallant Soldiers—the cleanest fighters in the world.

We could not associate Sunlight Soap with our clean fighters if it were not for its high standard of efficiency. Just as there is no better Soldier in the world than the British Tommy, so there is no better Soap in the world than Sunlight Soap. It is used in the homes of our clean fighters, and by our Soldiers in the trenches, billets and camps.

GERMAN "STRIKES."
A great deal of space has been given in the London newspapers during the past few days to the strikes in Austria and Germany and especially of late to those in Germany. Two conflicting editorial views are expressed with regard to this labor unrest in the enemy countries. On the one side we have the "Daily Mail" leading the champions of the camouflaged theory. They declare that the German and Austrian strikes are all well pulled by the governments of these countries with a view to defeating the workmen of the Entente countries. Whenever they have fulfilled that purpose the strikes will disappear as by magic. On the other hand we have the party headed by the "Daily Telegraph" which pronounces itself against the camouflage theory. This party states that the German and Austrian strikes are genuine, spontaneous outbreaks on the part of the working people of those countries who want bread and peace. Towards the end of the period under review these conflicting views have rather shaded off into a third and more neutral view which declares that so far as Germany is concerned the government of the Kaiser thought quite well to tell in detail to the world. There are many signs that official views on the subject have largely changed, and it is probable that we shall read much more about the "trenches in the North Sea" than we have been allowed to do before. The pictorial record should be very interesting. Sir John Lavery is going to paint the navy in the Mediterranean.

PAINTING THE FLEET.
The appointment by the Admiralty of six artists to make a pictorial record of the navy's work in the war will do something to give the public which, for good enough reasons at the beginning, has still been denied to it. Now we are in the fourth year of the war matters which were formerly thought secret are now common knowledge, and a very large part of the vast work of the navy can quite well be told in detail to the world. There are many signs that official views on the subject have largely changed, and it is probable that we shall read much more about the "trenches in the North Sea" than we have been allowed to do before. The pictorial record should be very interesting. Sir John Lavery is going to paint the navy in the Mediterranean.

MAN WHO SAVED THE STOCK EXCHANGE.
Ex-Superintendent Melville, who died in London on February 1st, at the age of 70, was the most famous detective of his time. When he retired in 1903 he had been thirty-one years in the force, which he joined as a constable. In his later years at Scotland Yard (the headquarters of the detective force) Melville had charge of the special department working for the Home Office—a department responsible for the safety of monarchs and other people of high rank visiting this country. He was on occasions ordered by many European countries. He had many rings and pins presented by Queen Victoria and King Edward, and once the Shah of Persia astonished him by casually presenting him with one of the largest turquoises known. Melville once frustrated an attempt by two Italian anarchists to throw a bomb into the London Stock Exchange at its most crowded hour.

ERRANDS. He is well accustomed to the climate and the lighting there, for he had a house in Morocco where he regularly spent part of each year. Philip Comand will paint the light craft of the Harwich flotilla. Charles Peers, who is a well-known yachtsman, and Nelson Dawson will be on board ships. Glyn Philpot and Ambrose McEvoy will paint naval portraits.

MR. BALFOUR'S DICTAPHONE.
It is a sign of the times that a dictaphone has just been placed in Mr. Balfour's private room at the Foreign Office, so that the Foreign Secretary will in future be able, by the aid of this instrument, to dictate his official correspondence for reproduction on the phonograph. This ingenious expedient is not by any means new to Whitehall, for some years ago, when at the Scottish Office, Graham Murray, M.P., now Lord Dundee, had regular recourse to this time-saving appliance between London and Edinburgh. It was the practice of the then Secretary for Scotland to dictate the replies to his correspondence while in the train going north, and on reaching his destination in Scotland the cylinders were returned to Whitehall, there to be dealt with by an expert typist.

ALFRED DE ROTHSCHILD.
To a large part of London society the late Alfred de Rothschild was known as a great host, and he did not confine his hospitality to his own homes or to one class. It was his daily habit to send from his kitchens the best of his cook's efforts for his many friends, especially to those who went to the poor. He would help anybody, but was not glib. The three Rothschild brothers had certain resemblances to Charles Dickens's Cheeryble Brothers. They met every day, except for a month in the year, and spent most of the day together, having most things in common. They have all died within three years. Alfred de Rothschild was a close friend of Lord Kitchener, and he was much affected by his death. He was also on intimate terms with King Edward, who sought his advice on many occasions. He was not a dilettante but a real connoisseur of old pictures, and might easily have been a great art dealer. There is scarcely a picture in his collection which has not appreciated value. His favorite picture was "Lady Bampton," by Reynolds. His taste in furniture being of later date than his operations. He loved French and Italian music, but disliked German opera. He rode easily and shot a little, but never went to races. He was a notable figure of pre-war London of a sort that will hardly be seen again.

SUGAR REGISTRATION CLEARING-HOUSE.
Sugar rationing for a population of 48 million is naturally a work of much complexity, but a visit to the Registration Clearing-House of the Ministry of Food at the Imperial Institute, London, where there is a staff of 800 girls, revealed the existence of a smooth and effective system, which is claimed to be as near "fool and fraud proof" as possible. At the moment the activities of the department are chiefly concerned with the two million people who through one cause or another require ration papers. Over one million persons did not wake up till after the "appointed" day to the fact that they had to register. Deaths, births, alterations of names, cases of emigration and immigration, as well as removals, have all to be dealt with, involving a prodigious amount of clerical work in keeping up to date. An ingenious method of scrutiny has been devised, so that anyone applying for two ration papers must ultimately be found out. The oldest person to whom a ration paper has been issued is a lady living at Ramon, a South coast watering place, who claims to have been born in 1800. Another is aged 100. The girls are all between 16 and 18 years of age. Their comfort and welfare are being well looked after, and as many have come straight from school to what is a "dead end" occupation, it has been arranged that six hours out of a 48 hours week should be devoted to educational instruction of one kind or another.

Adventist.—Service at 6.30 p.m. Subject: "Tragedies and Their Message." All welcome.

C. E. I. Annual.

There was a large attendance of members at the annual meeting of the Church of England Institute last night. Mr. C. E. Hunt, President, presided, and the reports of the Secretary and Treasurer and that of the various committees showed the club to be in excellent condition both numerically and financially. Upwards of 60 per cent of those on the roll in 1914 have been on active service, twenty having made the supreme sacrifice, while upwards of fifty have been honorably discharged or at present invalided from active service. Two former members of the club, Messrs. William J. Moore and James Miller were among the missing passengers of the ill-fated Florizel. The Secretary was instructed to send a note of sympathy to relatives of deceased members. The election of officers for the ensuing year was conducted by Mr. John Davey and resulted as follows:—President—Mr. C. E. Hunt. First V.P.—Mr. F. C. Willis. Second V.P.—Mr. Jas. Claffey. Secretary—Mr. B. B. Harris. Treasurer—Mr. John Fairdale. Council—Messrs. W. Winbarrow, J. Long, E. T. Snow, A. Omond, C. Grant, E. Hawkins, C. K. Miller, S. Hart, C. Godden and J. Wellman. The price of papers realized excellent sales.

W. C. T. U.

On Thursday afternoon last the Women's Christian Temperance Union met at 191 Gower Street for their regular meeting. Pres. Mrs. Hunter in the chair. The meeting was opened with the singing of a well known hymn, a portion of Scripture was read, and prayer offered by Mrs. Adjutant Cole. When the roll was called, and minutes read and confirmed of the former meeting, the business of the day was proceeded with. The attendance at the meeting was fairly large. The desire was expressed, that Mrs. Pippy, whose many years of self-sacrificing work in the Union's departments will not soon be forgotten, and who has just gone abroad to receive treatment, may by its means be restored once again to her wonted strength and vigour. An interesting service was held in the Penitentiary on Sunday past, when the Rev. Mr. Thomas gave an account and took lessons from the life of "Francis Willard" and Miss S. Soper contributed in beautiful voice the solo "Simply to Thy Cross I Cling." The next meeting of the Union takes place on the 14th of the present month, the second Thursday, and it is particularly desired that every member may if possible be present. The meeting will be held at the same place, Miss Neyle's residence, 191 Gower Street.—Rec. Secy.
