> The Secretary's Congratulatory Address -Officers Elected-Those Present.

The annual meeting of the East Middlesex Agricultural Association was held in the Court House this afternoon. A large has cured others representation of farmers was present. Mr. Charles Trebilcock presided.

A. R. Rowat, the secretary, presented his report. The spring of 1893, he said, gave every indication that it would be one of great plenty. But the drought later on in the season had a very injurious effect on spring grain and roots. Hay was abundant, fall wheat was a good average, grasshoppers proved a pest, grass was very scarce, apples were a short crop and small fruit was exceedingly plentiful. Horses and wheat, for the most part, were low in price, while cheese and pork sold at good rates. East Middlesex had every reason to be thankful at the outcome of the year's work. In no other part Baker; auditors, N. Bodkin, R. Hamhad every reason to be thankful at the outwere the people more prosperous.

Referring to the Western Fair, he stated that it had been a great financial success. The exhibits in live stock were exceptionally numerous, and the quality unusually good. Great reason there was to feel disappointed at the small exhibit in the agricultural hall, which spoke ill for the county. It would be well to ascertain the cause, and take steps to prevent a repetition. The exhibits in live stock had probably been effected by the large representation which Canadians made at the World's Fair. The grand success of these exhibits there, however, provided ample compensation to the local fair association. He was sure that they were all pleased to see the Western Fair prosper,
