WHEELER TURNS TRIBE BACK IN RIGHT PATH

Kuhn Also An Aid With Homer, Triple and Double in Huron's Defeat in First of Series.

July 5.—Pitching superb LONDON ball, Wheeler tossed the Cockney's to Sarnia-Port Huron a 4-3 win over the Hurons in the prepring game of the series at Watkins Hamilton opening game of the series at Watkins Field this afternoon. Some loose work afield by the Hurons was directly re- Kitchener sponsible for the last two runs coming , indirectly through muffs in the infield. McMillan, who started, kept the Londoners' hits well scattered until the eighth, when he was yanked, after Kuhn and Malmquest tripled in succession. Winters replaced him and checked the London rally. The Hurons scored first in the first inning, then Kuhn evened up in the fourth, when he punched a homer over the centre field fence, only to drop back again when the Hurons hammered out another run across the plate.

when the Hurons hammered out another run across the plate.

In the eighth successive triples by Kuhn and Maimquest and an out resulted in two more runs. In the ninth, with two on and two down, and the tieing run on third and the winning run on second, Worley popped out to Stutz, ending the rally.

JUST BETWEEN US

The formation of a central Manufacturers' Athletic Association which would control all industrial athletics in the city, including baseball and hockey, appears to have almost been completed on paper, but inquiry amongst the officers of the Manufacturers' Baseball League, the biggest industrial organization going during the summer, reveals the fact that their co-operation has not been asked, nor have they any information relative to the proposal other than that appearing in the papers. The same inquiry also revealed the fact that they were not any too pleased with the arbitrary manner in which "the committee" have decided to get to work on the proposed organization without even so much as "with your help." As a matter of fact, quite a bit of public opinion can see no crying need for central control of industrial athletics. The Manufacturers' Hockey League, after won the first of the series with Brant- a long struggle, are doing nicely, and are not so badly out of control they can't This goes still more for the Manufacturers' Baseball League, now playing its schedule through with eight clubs. This league struggled along for several years, Brantford came close to tieing the count, those behind the league actually dipping in their pockets several season as well following "a committee" from nowhere would step in and take control. This is the way the proposed organization is looked upon by men interested amateur sport, and they seem to have good grounds for their attitude. "If the new organization planned an industrial club on a large plan," said one of the followers of the Manufacturers' League yesterday, "with a large club house, swimming tanks and reading room, or something along that line, then there might be some reason for central control, and it would be a good thing. But unless they have something ambitious in mind like that, and the fate of the arena and other sporting propositions don't make big projects look any too promising, then I don't see why any central control or such organization as proposed is needed. no benefit accruing to either of the latter sports.

continued on the downward path, the first half race wouldn't have been such a continued on the downward path, the first half race wouldn't have been such a pipe affair at all. London's string of defeats came at just the right moment for the introduction of the second series schedule. There was more to it than the fans getting fed up on the team's continued winning. The other teams were beaten a couple of weeks back, before they got through batting practice, a bad 30, an open date in the American 0 pipe affair after all. London's string of defeats came at just the right moment beaten a couple of weeks back, before they got through batting practice, a bad situation of affairs for both the London fans and the London Club for that

Bay City Wolves, however, have led the way to a new view of the London eam by the other teams of the league. The majority of them will get into the second half of the series just as hard against London as against any other team in the circuit. Had the London team continued in their winning streak instead of falling into an awful slump, splitting the series wouldn't have had the beneficial result it will have as things are going with the Wetzel crew at present.

Even if the Tecs strike their stride again, and they likely will within the week, the Wolves stuck a pin in the bubble that won't be forgotten for some time. It should have a salutary effect on any of the teams facing the local braves to realize that they've got a chance instead of going on the field prepared for the vorst, as they were undoubtedly doing a while back.

The fans are still wondering how it all happened and there is nobody to tell them. It was, and probably is yet, just a plain slump that strikes teams, players, and even ordinary individuals at their ordinary tasks and makes the unexpected in life for everybody. Ring Lardner, writing merely a humorous account of the big fight Saturday in which strict attention to the details was not looked for, succeeded in giving the landing spot of the two blows which sent Carpentier to the canvass in the fourth round, while the fight experts roamed all over the anatomy of the fallen Frenchman trying o landomy of the control of the cont the heart," and Georges, who ought to the know, confirmed Ring's good eye when he said in his published account of the fight that it was two blows to a spot over the heart which sent him down twice in the fourth.

Tommy Gibbons, whose brother Mike ently mentioned as ehe next in ine for Dempsey, is one of the most re-markable men the ring has ever known. Of acknowledged championship calibre St. Paul ghost has never challenged the St. Paul ghost has never challenged for the middleweight championship, though he could have beaten, it is conceded, all the champions from Frank Klaus to Wilson of the present day.

Packey McFarland was remarkable too in the same way that he never tried for the title of his weight.

The association competition is well on the same and the finals will be reached by Thursday.

The weather today was somewhat cooler and there was less distress among the bowlers. Judging by the way things are running the tournament may finish by Friday. Though there has been a good deal of complaining about the condition of the greens, they are conceded to be better than in previous years.

Manager Wetzel returned from Fort Huron this morning for the purpose of closing several deals, which he calculates will strengthen the London Club for the second half of the M.-O. ## DEMPSEY MUST STRIKE ONE OF THESE ONE DAY

As veteran followers of heavyweight championship competition sat around he ring at Jersey City the other day and watched another title holder battle against another challenger their minds turned back to other contests, other gladiators, other arenas Some bridged the span of years back to the ring at Carson City, in which Bob Fitzsimmons electrified the pugilistic world by wresting the title from Jim Corbett. Some let their memories wander even further back, to the day at New Orleans when the renowned John L. Sullivan, most popular of all champions, was cut and downed by the new sensation, who had been a bank cierk-Jim Corbett of San Francisco.

There is a strange tinge of romance to the ring. Some may call it sordid, some may call it brutal. But romance there is in every tale of a heavyweight title defended—successfully or otherwise. The final minutes of championship fights of the past are of as great interest now as they were on the morning after the fight. Here are some of the most important last rounds:

CORBETT—SULLIVAN. clinching promptly clinching promptly. Getting clear of his man again, Johnson whipped three lefts to the law, and the boilermaker reeled. The negro, realizing that the end was near, rushed his man to a point near the ropes, and with a right on the law, followed with a left uppercut, he knocked Jeffries down upon his back. The white man got up on one early collapse. Corbett, smiling like a schoolboy, nooked a right-hander to the side of the head.

Corbett steadled himsel. He sent a hard right to the ear and followed with a terrific left to the jaw, and Sullivan sank helpless to the floor of the ring. This time the referee's count was slower, and Jeffries managed to craw to his feet in a dazed and helpless and unconscious, but was too exhausted to rise. The round lasted a little over a minute and a half.

FITZSIMMONS—CORBETT.

Round 14—Corbett landed that left rigab again on Fitz's head. Fitz countered-with a heavy right swing on Corbett's neck and he had Corbett going back for a few seconds. Fitz landed a staggering left-hand on Corbett's stomach, and Corbett went to his knees with a look of agony on his face. He tried to pull himself to his feet by clutching the ring ropes, but failed.
The timekeeper called the seconds. "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten." Then Corbett came to his feet and rushed to Fitz and endeavored to strike him. George Siler declared Fitzsimmons had won.
