That mortgages, railway, bank and all company stocks and debentures be withdrawn from the list of properties exempted from taxation, and that taxes be required to be paid upon the values of such mortgages in lieu of the properties is so encumbered, and on such stocks and debeutures instead of upon the incomes derived therefrom as at present.

2. That the superior courts of the requires has money that had been paid on mortgage, from which the assessor could ascertain the amount of the occupant's mortgage indebtedness and could apportion the taxes between the two parties.

"That would be complicated," commented Sir Oliver. "But your first plan seems simple enough."

"But the assessor may not always know who holds the mortgage," broke in Mr. Hardy. "The mortgage may have given it to a bank as security."

Sir Oliver suggested that the mortgagor might be given credit in the payment of interest or principal for the amount he had paid in taxes. "That might be a simpler way of getting at it. Take up your next point, please."

Vice-President T. O. Currie presented a Alfred Reid, son of James Reid, 18 Pearce petition of the Patrons of Industry at Strath-street, who had his right arm terribly lacers socked it to the hilt on the manufacturer.

"I suppose it was a manufacturer who wrote it," said Mr. Gibson, and Mr. Kennedy emphatically assented.

Secretary L. Weich took up the matter of combines. He stated that Sir John Thompson had told him, when presenting a memorial to the Dominion Government, that it was the duty of the province to make a test case and that the Dominion would pay half the costs. Mr. Welch wanted the province to pay the other half.

costs. Mr. Welch wanted the province to pay the other half.

"I don't see why the Dominion doesn't carry out its own laws," Sir Oliver commented. "Have you any specific charge. Mr. Welch? Is it a question of jurisdiction or as to whether the Act is operative?"

And then, as it was near 3 and the Cabinet were about to hold a private caucus, Sir Oliver said smilingly, but firmly, "We are glad to have seen you all. Your suggestions are very worthy of consideration," and the deputation withdrew.

He Says "We Compare Favorably With the Metropolis in Many Things—Ahead in Others."

[From a New York Correspondent.]
"New York is a wonderful city," said ense the Planks of the Yeoman's Platform, Make Suggestions and Promise to Take the Views of the Delegation Into Their Most Serious Consideration.

The Commissioner of Public Works was the only member of the Cabinet absent when the Executive Committee of the Patrons of Industry waited upon the Government yesterday afternoon. Those composing the westerday afternoon. Those composing the deputation were Grand President Mallory, Warkworth; Vice-President T. O. Currie, Strathroy; Secretary L. A. Welch, Strathroy; E. Gifford, Meaford: Fergus Kennedy, Camlachie; T. Lockie Wilson, Alexandria, of the Patrons of Industry, and Henry Glendenning and Jabel Robinson of the Dominion Granga.

Although the proposals of the deputation were formally presented the Socratic method of information ruled afterwards. Each point of the petition was elucidated by a different spesker, who was briskly interrogated by all the members of the Cabinet in turn.

Grand President Mallory made a few introductory remarks about the importance there are many things which places

Toronto in the First Rank as an intellectual, moral and progressive city. Her educational institutions are second to none; her streets and pavements are rapidly improving and soon she will be the best paved city in the world. Substantial residences, with charmingly picturesque grounds, clean streets, pure water, and perfect drainage make Toronto a most desirable place to live in. But it is her Perfect Street Railway that is her crowning glory. This stamps Toronto as the city unique, as the city determined to go ahead at any cost. You have in New York a most convenient systematics.

Grand President Mallory made a few ingrand remarks about the importance and wide extent of the Patrons of industry throughout Ontario. He then read the petition of the deputation, which prayed as follows:

ronto. Why, our street railway has re-moved several streets intersecting Yonge-street a whole block back from the street facilities, and this enables them To Make Time.
"How they fly! Oh, it is grand to stand decentralized, and that the jurisdiction of division courts be increased.

3. That the Government take such action as will give effect to plank 8 of the Patrons' platform, which reads: A system of civil service reform that will give each county power to appoint or elect all county officials paid by them except county judges.

4. That the Workmen's Compensation Act be amended by adding to sub-section 2 the words "save and excepting when such employes shall be engaged in the ordinary work of the agriculturist."

5. That it be made the duty of the County Crown Attorney to prosecute any persons who conspire, combine or associate themselves for the purpose of controlling the price of any manufactured or commercial article, and that a test case be made under the present Dominion Combines Act, and that the province bear one-half the expense of such test case.

The Cabinet Takes a Hand.

The Cabinet Takes a Hand.

The first prayer of the petition caused possibly more comment than any of the others, and Mr. Gifford, who pleaded it, was assailed by a battery of questions. He held that a mortgage should be taxed the same as other capital that farmers had invested in their operations. His proposition was that the man who held a mortgage should pay taxes upon his interest in the property mortgaged, while the man who gave the mortgaged, while the man who gave the mortgage should pay taxes upon his interest in the property.

"Would you have the mortgagee pay his share of taxes in the municipality where he resides?" asked Sir Oliver.

"Oh, no! Let him pay it where the property lies."

Mr. Gifford went on to explain that the property lies."

Mr. Gifford went on to explain that the property lies."

Mr. Gifford went on to explain that the property were at a disadvantage.

"But if New York does not want to be left bases the amount of taxes, which the mortgagee should pay it he second that the mortgagee should pay the second that the mortgagee should pay the second that the mortgagee should file in the Registry Office a receipt for money that had been paid on mortgage, from which the assessor could ascertain the amount of the occurant, was much a could ascertain the amount of the occurant of the land mortgagee should file in the Registry Office a receipt for money that had been paid on mortgage, from which the assessor could ascertain the amount of the occurant of the land mortgagee should file in the Registry Office a receipt for money that had been paid on mortgage, from which the assessor could ascertain the amount of the occurant of the land mortgage.

Mr. Gifford suggested two plans. The first was that the occupant of the land mortgagee, less the amount of taxes, which the mortgagee should file in the Registry Office a receipt for money that had been paid on mortgage, from which the assessor could ascertain the amount of the present and the property like and the latest styles. Vice-President T. O. Currie presented a petition of the Patrons of Industry at Strathroy urging the necessity of dealing with the second point. He pointed out the inconvenience and expense to farmers and others in having to attend superior courts at Toronto. He suggested that a superior court be established in the eastern part of the province and one in the western. It was also urged that division court powers should be extended.

T. Lockie Wilson gave his reasons why lank 8 of the Patrons' platform should be enforced. The people of the municipalities, he said, were better fitted to judge who should fill those positions than those who lived at a distance. The school inspectors appointed by the county councils had given excellent satisfaction, and he saw no reason why license inspectors and registrars should not be similarly appointed, especially as their salaries come from the county pursa.

Fergus Kennedy of Camlachie prayed that the agriculturist be freed from the liabilities of the Workmen's Compensation Act. He had no objection to its being imposed upon manufacturers.

"You see," said Mr. Kennedy, confidentially, "our farm help is not nearly so good now as some years ago. A lot of useless young Englishmen come out here. They couldn't earn $1500 in 50 years, and in order to get that much they wouldn't object to slicing off two or three toes on purpose."

Defending the Juries.

Everyone laughed and the Provincial Secretary remarked that he had says a letter in one of the papers stating that every time a jury of farmers had a chance to do so they socked it to the hilt on the manufacturer."

I suppose it was a manufacturer who wrote it," said Mr. Gibson, and Mr. Kennedy emissioned the factor of the department of the papers stating that every time a jury of farmers had a chance to do so they socked it to the hilt on the manufacturer.
