WATERING HORSES WHEN WARM.
 There is a common notion among users of horses that if a horse is warm he should not be allowed to drink, many claiming that the "first swallow" of water either "founders" the animal or produces colic. This is not true. It does not matter how much heated the horse may be, it is always safe to give him a half dozen swallows of water. If this water is given just before being put in the stable, the animal should be immediately given a lusk of hay, and should not be given grain until he has rested about an hour. The danger is not in the "first swallow" but is always due to the large quantity which the animal will take when warm, if allowed to drink without restraint. Over one half of the digestive disorders are undoubtedly caused by improper feeding and watering, hence one must readily see the importance of a proper understanding of these subjects. The question has also been asked "what quantity of water does a horse require?" When horses can get water whenever they wish it, they never drink enough at one time to injure them. When the horse is dependent upon his attendant for water, he commonly requires about eight gallons a day. This will vary with the class of food. If green food is used a portion of this is supplied and a less quantity needed than when fed on dry hay and grain. The horse should be watered at least three times a day when idle, and often when at work, and a bucket of water where they can get at it. To take a swallow while eating will not hurt them in the least, although some people have the idea that it will.

ATTEMPTED TO DERAIL TRAIN.
 Maybourn Moore, a 17-year-old boy, has been arrested by the I. C. R. police, charged with attempting to derail a D. A. R. freight train near Halifax on the 26th April. Moore, who had been working at farming, left his position on that Friday afternoon and walked down the track bound for no place in particular. On his way along, he noticed the drawbar and spikes on the side of the track, and he placed the bar and a number of spikes on the rails. He told the officers that he concealed himself a short distance from the track, and for over an hour he waited for a train to come along. As no train passed during that period Moore became tired and leaving his place he proceeded down the track. That night he attended a dance at Beaver Bank. On Saturday he went to Halifax to work for Mr. Cross. While Mr. Cross' house one of the occupants of the household read from the Chronicle the account of the narrow escape of the train. That night Moore disappeared from the house and had been on the tramp ever since. He was greatly alarmed over the seriousness of the offense.

THE SPITTING NUISANCE.
 In view of the steps which are being taken to enforce the anti-spitting ordinance in Halifax, it is interesting to note that the Massachusetts law may be made more drastic. A Bill pending before the State Legislature provides that an officer may arrest without warrant any person violating the law. This is somewhat summary, but it is held to be necessary. It is urged that one or two arrests and fines, or even imprisonment, where the offense was particularly flagrant, will do much to put a final stop to an inexcusable public nuisance and tanger.

NEW POSTAL RATE IN FORCE.

RELIEF FROM RHEUMATIC PAINS.
 "I suffered with rheumatism for over two years," said Mr. Roland Curry, a patrolman of Key West, Fla. "Sometimes it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my hands and feet so I was incapacitated for duty. One night when I was in severe pain and lame from it my wife went to the drug store here and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found that it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease for over three months." For sale by W. A. Warren, Phm. B.
