

Most people know that if they have been sick they need Scott's Emulsion to bring back health and strength.

But the strongest point about Scott's Emulsion is that you don't have to be sick to get results from it.

It keeps up the athlete's strength, puts fat on thin people, makes a fretful baby happy, brings color to a pale girl's cheeks, and prevents coughs, colds and consumption.

Food in concentrated form for sick and well, young and old, rich and poor.

And it contains no drugs and no alcohol.

THE HOME

MOTHER'S TROUBLES.

The leader of a mother's meetings gave a talk on the foregoing subject, and it was so full of vivid, helpful things that it deserved a much larger hearing. She began with the morning and took up in detail the trying things that might occur in the care of the children during the day. The careless, boisterous child has torn the new, little dress. Perhaps angry words spring to your lips and you think of punishment. It seems such an inexcusable thing. But pause a moment. Are you allowing yourself to feel more troubled about this than if your child had told a lie? Many mothers do. Yet the accidents, the torn frock, the broken dish, the muddy shoes, are little things, not wrong at all, only vexing to our caretaking spirits. On the other hand, the lie, the deed of selfishness the impure word, may be the beginning of a habit that if not checked, will blight the soul. We mothers need to distinguish between the two classes of childish offenses. There are the really wrong things, and the other things, that are the result of the unguided activity of the young animal. We are not surprised that a puppy tears to pieces anything left in his reach. Let us have at least as much consideration for the child that is blundering through his awkward, destructive period. Unfortunately, the child's mischief is especially trying to the tired mother. "I have dressed a child in a white frock to take it out, and, having neglected a warning, I have come down to find it contentedly making mud pies." The little one was doing nothing wrong, but one finds it costs a struggle to keep patient at such a time. Yet we must keep patient if we are going to be good mothers. If we have a shower of reproaches going all day long we shall soon lose control of the children and ourselves as well. Then meet the accident with an unmovable spirit. If there is a natural penalty that will teach caution for the next time, impose it without harsh words.

Another hard place taken up was the following. Perhaps the mother goes into the children's room and finds it in the wild disorder that children some times leave a room after a frolic. The impulse is to do the picking up herself in order that it may be thoroughly done, and punish the children by some quite unconnected penalty. The one effectual thing to do is to call the children and insist pleasantly but firmly that they report on their state of order. It will be better, too, if the mother remains out of the room while the work is being done, gives no more thought to it until the children come to report on their work. Finished. Then, and not until then, the children are in a frame of mind where they may hear with profit a few remarks on the necessity of order.

"Again, the child comes in and covers a disagreement with a playmate. We all know how prone we are to think our own child has not been at fault, but has been sooty smudged against. If we voice this feeling, we do the child a serious wrong. Here is our opportunity to start in him a frame of mind that will save him much sorrow and many mistakes in the future. Help him to look at the other child's standpoint. It is a wonderful education if just dealing this looking for the other fellow's viewpoint. "If you were Mary, would you have been really kind?" Do not let the child think that he is always in fault. That breeds the temper of "I'm right, Margaret Walters.

If the color has been taken out of a fabric by an acid try sponging it with a weak solution of ammonia. It will sometimes restore the color.

The finger-marks so frequently left on painted doors by children or careless maids may be removed by rubbing with a perfectly clean cloth dipped in a little paraffine. The place should be afterwards carefully rinsed in cold water and given a final polish with a clean soft cloth. There is no real remedy for finger marks on light wall-paper, but sometimes simply rubbing with a clean cloth will help. Water usually not injure it, and should be left alone to dry, as interference may cause a lasting stain.

It is curious, but a fact gathered from years of observation, that the worst-tempered children often make the best-tempered men and women. Girls who are fretful and selfish may, if properly guided, grow into sweet, unselfish women, and become excellent wives and mothers. In the same way boys who have been most mischievous and unruly frequently make the clearest and kindest men. This being the case, what is the treatment for head-tempered children? The answer is, "Be patient."

LOVELY LITTLE FELLOWS.

The lonely little fellow sits among his little toys.
And finds no charm about what once he thought his greatest joys.
He does not run and laugh and play he would but sit still and wait
And listen for a football or the rattling of the gate,
And watch to see somebody coming through the open door—
Somebody who will chasp him and sing to him once more.

He is too young, they tell us, far too young to know at all
The truth about the sorrow that the hand of fate fell full—
And yet he sits and watches, with his hope told in his eyes,
And oft with lips a quiver will still little sighs;
He gazes from the window in the sunshine and the rain,
And none of us may fathom how his heart is wrong with pain.

At night he bravely clambers in his little bed alone
And whispers little prayers that his trusting soul has known
Since first he leaped them slowly kneeling at somebody's knee—
And should we tiptoe lightly to his bedside we should see
Dim tears stain on his eyelids, for, the same as you and I,
The little boy has stumbled on the tarring question "Why?"

He cannot understand it. Ah, we try hard to believe
That lonely little fellows know not what it is to grieve,
But they waken in the morning and they look about to find
The aims that once would hold them in endearment warm and kind,
And they cry, "where's their sorrow,
And they dumbly hold and keep
A memory that mocks them of the grief that will not sleep.

The lonely little fellows! Do you know of one some where?
Then go take him and scotch him while you smooth his sunny hair,
And sing to him and whisper little stories all his waking
Until his eyes are laughing and his lips will wear a smile,
And life is sent of gladness, and the shadows dull the day,
When the lonely little fellows do not sing and laugh and play.

Spent Eighteen Dollars
"Gentlemen—I have pleasure in stating that I have used $18.00 worth of Psychine, and as a result was cured of very serious throat and lung trouble. My case was a most difficult one, and the doctors had practically said that I could not get well. I tried Psychine, and it did me so much good that I certainly feel safe in saying that I have made my money back. I am now a new man physically. I have gained thirty-five pounds.
For life is with the greatest confidence that I recommend Psychine to all who are afflicted with throat or lung trouble.
Yours truly, C. A. PINKHAM.

JOKER'S CORNER

AS BARGAINED.
Jimmy's dog, Tiger, was a nuisance. The animal's pet theory must have been that all things were created to be destroyed; at least, so his practices indicated. Jimmy's parents were anxious to get rid of the nuisance.
"Jimmy," said his father one day, "I'll give you a dollar if you'll get rid of that dog."
Jimmy gasped at the amount and said he would think it over. The next day at dinner he announced that he had got rid of Tiger.
"Well, I certainly am delighted to hear it," said the father. "Here's your money; you've earned it. How did you get rid of the nuisance?"
"Changed him for Johnny Morgan's two pups," answered Jimmy.

FIRST AID.
A Washington doctor was recently called to the telephone by a colored woman formerly in the service of his wife. In great agitation the darkey advised the doctor that her youngest child was in a bad way.
"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the doctor.
"Doc, she done swallowed a whole bottle of ink!"
"I'll be over there in a short while to see her," said the medico. "In the meantime have you done anything for her?"
"I have done give her three pieces of blotting paper, Doc," said the negro, doubtfully.—Harper's Weekly.

HONEYMOON READING.
The house had quieted after the wedding; mother and Aunt Mary were in the parlor talking it over.
"So it's over," said Aunt Mary smiling into mother's eyes.
"Yes," said mother, bravely although a little tearfully, "it's over and begun."
"They'll be happy, I'm sure."
"Yes. They are very well suited to each other."
"Very. I could see that. They both have staid habits."
"Yes, but, Mary"—mother paused and the gleam of mischief evoked by Aunt Mary, sooner than anybody else, darted into her eyes. "Mary, they can't have made a mistake. In fact, though it's my own girl, I say it."
"Do you know what she took to read on the wedding journey?" "Stevenson's Travels West a Donkey."
NOT NATURAL FOR HIM.

Thomas W. Lawson, Boston's noted financier, was talking to a reporter about a notorious New York capitalist.
"Well," said Mr. Lawson, "I have heard that man tell the truth once or twice. He can tell the truth, I admit but it doesn't come natural to him. He reminds me of the Russian mujik."
"A Russian mujik said one day in the ante-room of the military commissioner of his town. There was an anxious frown on his face. A friend approached and said:
"What is the matter, Piotr?"
"I am worried," Piotr answered, "about my son. I don't know what to say when the commissioner asks me about his age. You see, if I make him out younger than he is he will be sent to school, and if I make him out older, they'll sick him in the army. What the deuce am I to do?"
"How would it do," said the friend thoughtfully, "if you told the commissioner his exact age?"
Piotr clapped his leg and laughed delightedly.
"The very thing!" he becried. "I never thought of that!"

THE MOVERS.
"Yes," said the young lady in the brown costume, "we are going to move to avoid having to clean the house."
"And so are we," answered the lady with the golden hair. "I think it will take the new tenants two weeks to get rid of all the rubbish we are leaving behind."
"The same in our case. Our house will need attention from cellar to roof. By the way, where are you going?"
"No. 15 L street."
"What? Why, that is where we are leaving!"
"Well I declare! Where are you going?"
"No. 11 B street."
"And that's where we are leaving!"

THE KICKER.
There has ever been a disposition to denounce the kicker and knocker, but after all, all things seemingly unprofitable have their uses. We can cordially endorse the recent expression of a distinguished statesman: "Heaven bless the kicker." He is the salt of the earth. Without him, nothing worth saving would keep. He never hurt a good thing, and the bad ones he has slaughtered with legion.—Marysville Democrat.

Small-Minded Precaution
DO NOT WITHOLD THAT WHICH DOES NOT BELONG TO YOU, FOR THE SAKE OF PROVIDING AGAINST EMERGENCES.

The following from the New York Outlook is timely and suggestive:
Panics are always irrational, because they are born of un Intelligent fear, or because they greatly increase the possibilities of peril. There are many occasions which justify a panic. When a real danger comes, the first duty is to keep one's mind at the highest point of intelligent action, and to keep one's emotions out of sight and hearing. In the face of a great danger a man ought to listen to his judgment, not to his emotions. The worst feature of a panic is that it makes one covetous where it does not make them brave; and the special form of cowardice which comes with financial stress is unwillingness to part with what one has and increases the peril, instead of generously giving it out and thus removing the cause of the peril. In every stringency a host of people begin by not paying small bills— even more than large ones which prolong hard times and unjustly and unnecessarily lays a heavy burden on the backs of some of the most prudent and honest members of the community. An honest man always pays his debts. If misfortune overtakes him the day of the discharge of his obligation is only postponed; it comes as soon as he can make ready for it. But in a time of panic it is every man's pressing duty to pay his debts with the utmost promptness.

There are hosts of people today who have money in hand and are letting their grocers, butchers, milkmen and others who supply the necessities of life go unpaid simply because they are timid and, like some country and city banks, want to collect and keep as much money on hand as possible as if money were for hoarding, and not for circulation. This small minded precaution is bringing misfortune to many industries and faithful men and women.

Those who supply the means of life whose coming and going from the house are part of the daily routine of keeping the family afloat ought to be the very last to suffer from delayed payment. As a matter of fact, they are the very first. People who can still spend money on the theatre, the opera, concerts and other forms of entertainment, are letting their butchers grocers and milkmen go unpaid thus contributing to the very condition which makes them cowardly. There is no longer any reason for timidity, but if there were, the duty of paying one's small debts with as great promptness as one pays one's large debts would seem still more imperative. It is a great deal more honorable to have a small bank account and no unpaid bills in the house than to have a large bank account made up by keeping many which belongs to other people. The first duty of an honorable man in a time of stringency is to see that he is not transferring to those who furnish the necessities of life the burden which he ought to bear himself.
