

THE CEMETERY.

It is matter of surprise that while all are made to feel occasionally the want of a Chapel at the Cemetery of this City, wherein to perform with decency and effect, the last solemn rites over the departed, no effort has been made to accomplish it. The exposure there, is such, under present circumstances, that many suffer severely (sometimes fatally) from their attendance, and many are deterred from following their friends to the grave. And besides, as regards members of the Church, a large and most consoling portion of our sublime Burial Service, namely, the Psalms and the Lessons is necessarily omitted altogether, and the part which is used, often loses its effect upon those around, in consequence of the state of the weather, and their anxiety to be quickly sheltered from its inclemency. All, whether ministers or hearers, must surely desire that a remedy should be provided against these inconveniences and evils. Why then is no attempt made to erect a suitable Building, which would be at once a shelter from the elements, a safeguard to the health of the living, and an ornament to the consecrated repository of the dead? We question whether any object can be named for which contributions would be more readily obtained. All that is wanting is that some one should set about it, and perhaps none could do so more feelingly than the Clergy themselves. Another desideratum in connexion with the Cemetery is the plantation of numerous evergreens around the premises, for protection and ornament. Much has been done by private taste and by mourning friends to deck the spot where their loved ones lie, but much remains yet to be done, to render it what it ought to be,—attractive to the living, and impressive upon the hearts of all who enter its gates.

FOR THE CHURCH TIMES.

In looking over the pamphlet put out about a month since by the Alumni of King's College, Windsor, I find in pp. 13 to 16 under the head "Names subscribed to the permanent fund of £2000," a list, which I suppose is intended to be a complete and perfect list of all those who have subscribed anything towards the College funds.

There are sundry omissions in the list which require some little explanation. In page 18 of the tenth Report of the proceedings of the Diocesan Ch. Society, 1847-48, the "fund" paid over to John Halliburton, Esq. in aid of the funds of K. C. from the Yarmouth Committee £15, and from Dr. Farish £10; making altogether from the local society at Yarmouth £25. This amount is irrespective of several private contributions of £1 each and upwards from individuals in Yarmouth, four only of whom I see made mention of.

The only parish which has credit for having contributed to the College funds is Aylesford; other parishes have done the same, and why is not mention made of them.

An explanation of the above would very much oblige one who contributed to the fund, and who is A CHURCHMAN IN YARMOUTH.

Nov. 23d, 1852.

[Our correspondent is quite right to look after the funds, which he and those around him may contribute to the College or any other object. We have made enquiry in the proper quarter, and find that the four individuals whose names are given in the last Report of the Alumni, are the only contributors to their funds from Yarmouth.

The £25 mentioned above has become part of the funds of the Governors of the College, who do not, like the Incorporated Alumni, publish annually their proceedings and their receipts and expenditures; which however many think would be a decided improvement.

In fact, if we expect the public to come down with pecuniary aid in behalf of the College, it will be absolutely necessary to make its necessities appear in figures, and to give a candid exposé of all its affairs.]—Ed. C. T.

The above Almanack can also be bound and illuminated with an ENGRAVED VIEW OF A SCENE IN THE BAY OF ANNAPOLIS.

BELCHER'S FARMER'S ALMANACK—This time honoured Annual is just out of the Press. It shows not the least decline in the quality and usefulness of the contents, through which it has attained the widest celebrity of any similar publication in Nova Scotia. The materials of Belcher's Almanack are so skilfully arranged, that the work presents a vast amount of information, needful to every body in a very compact and neat form, and the price is considerably under its intrinsic value.—Academy Reviewer.
