

announced in the last number that as the name of Rover was not suited to an elegant magazine of polite literature, "this number concludes the present and last issue of the Rover, and next week we shall publish the first number of the New York Illustrated Magazine." The line engravings which were a feature of each number were by well-known engravers such as J. G. Chapman, V. Balch, Fk. Halpin, Durand & Co., A. C. Warren, M. Osborne, and others. A complete set of the magazine is located at the New York State Library by the Union List of Serials, which also credits the American Antiquarian Society with vols. 1-4, the Library of Congress with vols. 1-3, and 5, the Boston Public Library with vols. 1-3 and part of 4, and the Brooklyn Public Library with a good though not perfect set of vols. 1-5. The New York Public Library has vols. 1-2 and a few numbers of vol. 3. The magazine under its new name was continued until 1847.

[SMITH.] The Select Letters of Major Jack Downing of the Downingville Militia, away Down East, in the State of Maine. Written by Himself. . . Philadelphia, Printed for the Publisher. 1834. 16mo, pp. xi, 212, incl. frontispiece. C., H. 84155

With Pennsylvania copyright by R. Withington and H. Davis. The book is an unauthorized edition made up mostly of Smith letters, originally published in the "Portland Courier," and collected in the "Life and Writings of Major Jack Downing," (the imitation letters from the appendix to that work being included also), and of ten or more Davis letters, which came out in the "New York Daily Advertiser," and were later issued as the "Letters of J. Downing, Major." The style of the preface, dated Jan. 30, 1834, is inferior to, and differs in dialect from the writings of either Smith or Davis.
