

Useful Information.

Young Man (airily)—Excuse me, but haven't I seen your face before?

Col. Scrap (who suffers from dyspepsia)—Quite likely; I've never worn it behind.

At Fort Smith.

Lieut. Boxer (showing his cousin around the cantonment)—Would you like to look at the magazine? It's just over there.

Miss Stuyvesant—Thank you, no. Papa subscribes for them all.

I have sold your medicines very successfully among my friends near home, and at a distance, some persons have taken it that could not keep corn starch gruel on their stomach without vomiting it up, and in a week they could eat anything, their appetite craved, and in two weeks they could eat any hearty food without any distress whatever. And numbers have told me that have come quite a distance to buy it, that they could not do without it, and I have also sold it for other things besides dyspepsia, some use it for coughs, and liver troubles and jaundice. What I have told you is correct, and what has come under my observation with a girl that stated to me she had dyspepsia so bad that she could not keep the choicest corn starch gruel on her stomach, and in less than two weeks she could eat any kind of hearty food, and numbers have told me the same.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. BYRON HINES.
