JEROME'S INQUISITION ENDS IN THAW'S FAVOR

Prisoner Holds His Own, Parrying Lightning Thrusts of District Attorney.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 29.—William Travers Jerome, district attorney of New York, prosecutor at both Thaw murder trials, finished his inquisition of Harry K. Thaw in the supreme court at 5.25 o'clock this afternoon.

All told, yesterday and to-day, Harry Thaw faced Mr. Jerome's lightning thrusts for ten hours, yet he held his own at all times and to-morrow he will be in the hands of friends. His attorney, Charles Mohrhauser, expects to call him in the morning. This examination may be as long as Jerome's, and after it the district attorney may have a few more questions to ask.

Notwithstanding the mental strain he was under yesterday and to-day, Thaw labored late to-night with his attorney in Justice Mills' ante-room, going over the multitude of records used to-day by Mr. Jerome in his rapid fire of cross questions.

On the whole, Thaw and his attorney were satisfied with the day's work. Thaw showed even more confidence than yesterday; in fact, his self-satisfaction at one time almost cost him a fight when he ventured into a heated passage-at-arms with the district attorney. But he checked himself when he realized that he had nothing to gain and everything to lose by a show of temper.

Yesterday Mr. Jerome devoted himself to the prisoner's life history. Today he based his questions chiefly upon various documents, letters and memoranda which he produced in surprising numbers. The one he found most useful was a tablet containing 26 sheets of foolscap paper, on which were pasted a strange variety of newspaper clippings and scraps of manuscript. Thaw identified it as something he had prepared and sent to Delphin M. Delmas, his chief counsel during the first trial, for use in preparing his closing speech to the jury. Some of its contents, and by persons who had read and intended to publish, were better than their mental balance.

"Lots of it was rubbish," he added, "but some of the letters contained ideas I thought Mr. Delmas might use."

WANT TO SEE CARS GO ROUND

Question of Belt Line on Roncesvalles Exciting the Residents.

A tremendous amount of energy is being expended by the Toronto Railway Company at the corner of Queen and Roncesvalles-avenue, where gangs of men are working overtime to complete the laying of the new tracks and intersections. The came feverish excitement is in evidence up at the Dundas-street end of Roncesvalles, where a smaller, tho not a bit less enthusiastic set of workmen are making a "Y" to connect the Dundas and Roncesvalles lines. The strange thing about the proceedings is that the officials of the Toronto Railway Company seem to be completely in the dark regarding the outcome of all these pell-mell improvements.

The public, during the past few days have pretty well put their minds that a belt line or some similar circumambulation is soon to be put in operation between King, Queen and Dundas streets. If this is really what is going to happen, the railway officials will be taken completely by surprise. Superintendent James Gunn was visibly alarmed yesterday afternoon when the World intimated to him the suspected result of the Roncesvalles track-laying scheme.

"To tell you candidly," said he, after recovering his breath, "I don't know a thing about it. I haven't been out that way for some time and haven't the slightest intimation of what has been done. Perhaps Mr. Fleming will know."

But whether the general manager really is "on the inside" of the work being done, he was not in his office yesterday afternoon.

The foreman out at the Roncesvalles car barns is also to have a surprise sprung on him, if a belt line is to be put in operation there.

"As far as I know," said he, "the stub line is going to be continued. The 'Y' at Dundas and Roncesvalles will enable the cars to turn, and will make things much more convenient. Besides, preparations will have been completed for any emergency that may take place."

Nordica Weds.
LONDON, July 29.—Geo. W. Young, the banker of New York, and Madame Lilian Nordica, were married in King's Welsh House Church in Grosvenor-square at half-past two this afternoon, in the presence of a few friends, most of whom are well known in American and English society. Madame Nordica wore a gown of pale gray satin, the corsage being covered with rare old Venetian lace. She wore no hat nor veil, but instead a chaplet of laurel leaves. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom.

James R. Carter, the secretary of the United States embassy in London, gave away the bride, and Frederick Townsend Martin of New York was best man. The service was that of the Church of England, and the Lohengrin wedding march was played when the bridal couple entered the church.

Crucifix Pierces Lungs.
MONTREAL, July 29.—Amere Lamarre, a bridegroom of two weeks, died yesterday because of his devotion to the Roman Catholic faith. He stepped on a loose plank on a scaffold, and fell feet first to the ground, 25 feet. He had a crucifix five inches long on his breast, and a heavy leather belt round his waist kept it tight against his body. The fall would not have killed him, but as the upper part of his body was thrown forward, the big cross broke his ribs and pierced his lungs.
