BASEBALL

Scott's Start

"Death Valley" Jim Scott, curve ball wizard of the White Sox, owes his rapid flight to the big top of baseball to Frank Ibbell's ambition to be a manager after he purchased an interest in the Wichita Western League Club, says The Detroit News Tribune.

Ibbell and Jack Holland, owner of the St. Joseph Western League Club, purchased the Wichita franchise at the end of the season of 1907, while Ibbell was still playing first base for Comiskey. When the season was over Ibbell took the first train to Kansas to look over his new possession. Ned Egan, who broke Ibbell into the semi-pro game around St. Paul years before, was piloting the Burlington team in the old Iowa State League, and Ibbell appealed to him by wire for a tip on a pitcher.

"I've sold you a pitcher," "Very well," drawled Comiskey, "but I can't use him without his name." "Jim Scott, Wichita, Kan.," replied Ibbell, and the famous curve ball expert has been working continually for the master of the White Sox since the opening of the following season.

Baker Will Rejoice Athletics Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—J. P. Frazzetta, Baker will rejoice the Athletics. This does not mean that it is certain that he will be seen capering around the hot corner wearing an Athletic uniform next spring, as it is possible that he will be traded in the winter.

A few weeks ago Connie Mack journeyed to the home of Baker at Salisbury, Md., where a very satisfactory preliminary conference was held. Today it was learned that Mack had made a second trip to the Baker domain, where all details were discussed and an understanding reached that will bring Baker back into the fold of organized baseball.

This Speaker of the World's Champion Red Sox, settled for $200 a $3000 suit against him in the Massachusetts Superior Court. He was sued by Alfred U. Stone, who was run down by his automobile in Hemenway street, Boston.

CRICKET

Dr. W. G. Grace Dead

Dr. William Gilbert Grace, a famous English cricketer, died last week in London. He was sixty-seven years of age. Dr. Grace was for many years the undisputed king of cricketers, and his familiar designation, because he had brothers who were also great cricketers.

Dr. Grace was a son of Henry Mills Grace, a famous surgeon. He attended the medical school at St. Bartholomew's and practiced as a medical man in Bristol. From the time he was a small boy he gave a great deal of his time to cricket, and it was not long before he was recognized as the coming champion. When at his best he was a very large, heavily-built man, rugged and brawny. While the champion cricketer of the world he was very careful in his habits and did not train for a match as did others.

Dr. Grace was the wonder of the cricket world from 1864 to 1888, and during the twenty-five seasons he played in first class matches 80 complete innings, and scored 84,070 runs, averaging nearly forty runs each innings. He had made 100 runs and upwards no fewer than 180 times, being not out in twenty-five of these innings. His highest scores are 400, 344, 318, 238, 221, 220, 224, 221, 217, 216, 210, 210, 197, 198, 198, 198, 198, 197, 197, 178, 177, 177, 174, 173, 173, 170, and 170.

His 400 not out was made against twenty-two in the field, and included four sixes, twenty-one fours, six threes, fifty-eight twos, and 188 singles, the last item proving that the bowling was not so very weak. This score has been exceeded only four times, and then in minor matches with only eleven in the field. He made his 844 for the Marylebone Club against Kent at Canterbury. In August, 1876, it being the highest individual score ever made in a first class match. He was the only batsman of modern days who made two separate hundreds in a first class match, but he performed this exceptional feat three times during his career.

The first occasion was at Canterbury in 1868, when he scored for the South of the Thames against the North 180 and not out 102; the second was at Clifton, in August, 1867, when, for Gloucestershire against Kent, he made 101 and not out 108, and the third was at Clifton in August, 1866, when, for Gloucestershire against Yorkshire, he scored 146 and 138.

HOCKEY

Western Star for Ottawa

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—Fred Taylor, a Vancouver hockey star, who was largely responsible for the defeat of the Ottawas in the Stanley Cup game last March will likely come to the capital in the course of a few days in connection with his departmental transfer.

Taylor, who has been doing clerical work at Vancouver for the immigration branch of the department of the interior, received notice last month that he had been transferred to the eastern service with headquarters in Ottawa.

WALKING

Goulding Makes New Record

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 24.—Geo. H. Goulding, Central Walker's Club, Toronto, won the Amateur Athletic Union national championship seven miles walk here yesterday, breaking the world's record by ten seconds. His time was 20:40-4-5.

WRESTLING

Aberg Defeated Zysko

Alexander Aberg of Russia, world's champion Graco-Roman style wrestler, defeated Wladislaw Zysko, Polish champion, in a finish match in Madison Square Garden last evening. Aberg threw his opponent in one hour and four minutes.

FOOTBALL

Yale Was Defeated

Owing to an error in transmission Yale was credited with defeating Washington and Jefferson University in their football match on Saturday afternoon. Yale lost by a score of 15 to 7. Last year Washington and Jefferson also defeated Yale.

PAT MORAN WANTS
A LARGER SALARYNational League Champions
Leader Demands Substantial Increase

New York, Oct. 25.—Philadelphia baseball critics appear to be worried over the fact that Pat Moran has not yet signed another contract to manage the national league champions. They say that Moran, who received a nominal salary this year, has made a demand for a substantial increase and that the officials of the club are in a hurry to talk business with him.

Those who know President W. F. Baker, however, insist that Moran will be liberally treated. Moran built up a personal winner with rather crude material. He was an experiment when he took hold of the Phillies last spring, but he succeeded from the outset of his managerial career. Incidentally he made a pot of money for his employers who had been forced to make good a deficit in 1914.

Moran may have received $5,000 for his services this year. Stallings, who landed the Braves in second position, received, it is said, a salary of $12,000, while Robinson, the leader of the Superbas, who finished third, drew a salary not in excess of $4,000. Brannan of the Cubs is said to have received at least $10,000. Herzog of the Cincinnati Reds may have pocketed $7,000. Clarke of the Pirates got $10,000 while Huggins of the Cardinals drew about $6,000. McGraw's salary for managing the Giants is believed to be more than $20,000 a year.

Carrigan, leader of the Red Sox, has a contract which calls for a salary of about $7,500. Jennings of the Tigers commands $10,000 a year. Rowland, manager of the White Sox, gets at least $5,000 while Griffith of the Washingtons, in addition to being a stockholder, is paid $10,000 each season. Donohue, the leader of the Yankees drew $5,000, perhaps more this year and Rickey of the Browns possibly received $7,500. Folsie, the Cleveland's new manager will draw about $5,000 next year, while Connie Mack, a half owner in the Athletics, is said to be on the club's annual salary list for $20,000.

Margaret Greene, who is being featured in "Needs" the Pathé Gold Rooster play produced by Edward Jones from George Barr McCutcheon's well known novel is one of the better known Broadway's younger stars. She is a New York girl and though only twenty-three years old, has held a series of remarkably fine engagements. Among the plays in which Miss Greene has had prominent roles on Broadway are "Tipping the Winner" at the Longacre Theatre; "Seven Keys to Baldpate" at the Astor; "Broadway Jones" with George M. Cohan; "Brendy Money" at the Maxine Elliott Theatre; "The Patted Cal" and "The Common Law." The new Pathé star was also William Mack's leading woman when he made his vaudeville appearance at the Palace Theatre, New York.

WANT BATTALION TO WINTER HERE

Merchants Co-operate With Citizens Committee to Get Information and Results—Another May be Raised

The effort to ascertain what battalion is to be stationed in St. John this winter and to secure arrangements for at least one unit if St. John has been overlooked received the support of the Retail Merchants' Association at a meeting last evening. The association appointed A. O. Skinner, F. W. Daniel and B. J. Hooper to co-operate with the citizens committee. They also sent a telegram to Hon. J. D. Hazen asking him what battalion, if any, is to be quartered in St. John, pointing out that there is ample room for two battalions. It is likely also that the matter will be brought up at the meeting of the common council today.

The announcement has been made that the 64th is going to Halifax, and that the 104th will be split up throughout the province. The 104th now has 400 men, 400 more are being transferred from the 64th, all the New Brunswick men, and only about 800 more are required to fill the ranks. It is believed that the 104th effort might be made to raise another New Brunswick battalion which would be located here.

AN APPEAL TO WOMEN'S INFLUENCE

Amidst the many differences of political opinion, all are undoubtedly agreed on one thing, namely, that the whole empire has reached a crisis. That being the case, it is almost inconceivable that we should read in the columns of the daily papers of the grave recruiting problems.

We wonder why this can be, why at a time when the nation has sounded the bugle call to her sons for assistance—in that very call showing a confidence in their loyalty to her—that the call should have to be repeated, not only once, but again and again, until the nation has to acknowledge that perhaps her trust in her sons was, after all, misplaced.

Madame Emma Trentlin, who since last June has been at her home in Mantova, Italy, may not return to New York this autumn. Recently she underwent an operation on her throat in Milan, and while she is recovering from the effects of it, her physicians have forbidden her to undertake an ocean voyage for the time being. As her brother is serving in the Italian army she has assumed personal charge of her estate.

CLEAN LIVING SECRET OF GOOD HITTING

Cobb, Crawford and Veach, Slugging Trio, Give Rules For Success

Cobb, Sam Crawford and Bob Veach who give the Detroit Tigers the greatest hitting outfield in baseball, say puritanical methods of living make it possible for them to keep in the condition needed for them to get out and play ball every day.

"The old dope—'Early to bed and early to rise' sounds good to me," says Crawford. "I'm generally in bed at ten o'clock and up at seven. That gives me nine hours sleep and that seems to be about the right amount for storing up energy for use the next day."

Cobb says:—"My idea of the best way for any one, whether athlete or business man, to keep in good trim is to be careful not to eat too much or sleep too much."

"I always figure on getting nine hours of sleep and I eat only twice a day, in the morning and in the evening. I have found that when I eat heavily I lose some of my 'pep', and I think, too, that too much sleep makes a person sluggish."

"Health is the biggest thing in life," says Veach, "and the way to have health is to live right. I think the rules that apply to ball players apply to most other people. The amount of food one eats is important. An overloaded stomach has about the same effect on a man that an over loaded wagon has on a horse."

THE KAISER AND PAVLOVA

(Toronto News.)

"That was a pretty decent thing for a brute to do."

The "brute" was the Kaiser, the "thing" was the shipping of the properties of the Pavlova Company from Berlin to the United States, and the speaker was Max Robinson, manager of the Boston Grand Opera Company, who arrived at the King Edward today.

Pavlova with her company was in Berlin when the war broke out. Some of the company got out next day. Some did not get out for seven days. But they got out—without their properties. Because Pavlova is such a favorite with the Kaiser, five months ago the properties were shipped to America. It was with regard to this that Mr. Robinson made the remark about the brute.

Pavlova gave $15,000 to keep the company going on this side of the water. The company was composed of citizens of the allied countries. Europe is closed to theatrical companies of the size of hers.

Mr. Robinson objected to the term "grat" as applied to Russia. He preferred to talk of "irregularities." He admitted that there were plenty of things in his country. If the head of the department were "irregular" his subordinates were apt to be "irregular" too. The commission in the United States had been changed three times. He believed that now ability was taking the place of blue blood.

Russia was "overrun with blue blood." They had to find places for the sons of the aristocracy. That was why the Russian diplomatic service was so rotten. The word was Mr. Robinson's.

He could not speak on the war. He could not read the newspapers. It disturbed his artistic temperament. His wife had just returned from Paris yesterday. For fifteen minutes she told him of friends who were killed. It was too much. He stopped her. The horrors of war and the artistic temperament were incompatible.
