THE NEW PRESIDENT

Mr. Woodrow Wilson will tomorrow become the President of the United States. His first message is awaited with keener interest than any message of any president for many years. There has been a great deal of speculation regarding his probable policy, and he has at least shown that he possesses the admirable quality of being able to keep his own counsel. This has troubled some of the Democratic stalwarts, who felt that they should be taken into the confidence of the man whom they had supported; and many articles in the press have tended to convey the impression that there is some misgiving in the minds of strong party men lest the new president should prove intractable when urged to do things for his supporters. Mr. Wilson is a progressive Democrat. It was only the other day that the leader of the Progressive party in New York declared that they intended to have Mr. Wilson at the head of their ticket in the race for the presidency in 1916. Of course if he pursues a radical course he will gradually lose the support of the conservative wing of the Democratic party; but he will gain that of many progressive Republicans. It would not be surprising, therefore, if during the Wilson term there should be a re-alignment of parties in the United States. If we may judge from his utterances, Mr. Wilson will not be the tool of any clique or party, but will endeavor in reality to be the President of the United States. He has risen to the presidency as a result of the wave of protest against the evils of Republican rule, and no man realizes more clearly than himself that changes must be made in relation to the tariff and the currency, the control of trusts, the question of conservation and other matters of great importance to the welfare of the republic. Mr. Wilson is a strong man, and there are those who believe that he will prove to be the greatest president since Lincoln. On the other hand there are those, of course, who believe he will not prove to be a big enough man for his task. He will certainly have a hard task to perform.

THE ST. JOHN BOARD OF TRADE

It is also the birthday of another noted man of science, Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone who was born in Edinburgh in 1847. He was educated in Scotland and in 1870 came to Canada, where he invented the telephone while living in Brantford. He has lately become interested in flying machines and at his summer residence at Baddeck, N. S., is busy studying out problems of aviation. He has received many honors in connection with his work for science.

W. S. CALVERT, A PROMINENT LIBERAL POLITICIAN, AND MORE RECENTLY ONE OF THE NATIONAL TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS, WAS BORN FIFTY-FOUR YEARS AGO TODAY, IN LAMBTON COUNTY, ONT.

He has always taken a prominent interest in politics, beginning with municipal work and entering parliament as M.P. for West Middlesex in 1886. For eight years he was chief Liberal whip, becoming in 1909 a member of the railway commission.

SCALLOPED CHEESE

Out the crust from three well-spread slices of BUTTER-NUT BREAD. Grate fine a quarter pound of good cheese; place bread, in layers, in buttered bake dish, then sprinkle it with the grated cheese with salt and pepper to taste. Mix four well-beaten eggs with three cups of milk and pour it over the bread and cheese. Bake in hot oven as you would bread pudding. The use of BUTTERNUT BREAD adds zest to the flavor.

NOCTURNES

Now cometh night, soft-slipped maid
Tip-toeing down the dwindling paths of day.
Bearing above her garb demure and gay
The tiny candles given to her keep.
Ere's curtain drawn, she lifts her arms to sweep
The clouds of hair from her pale brow away.
She threads her needle with a silver ray
Of moonlight, and with stitches long and deep
She mends the robe of slumber. Fold on fold,
She wraps it round her mistress and her queen.
Till hush and dark her regal dreams embrace,
Softly the little maid slips out to hold
With random Morpheus' tryst upon the green.
And close, upon his breast, her weary eyes!

IT IS THE HOUR WHEN CLOCK AND CHANTICLEER

Midnight forgotten, overlook the dawn;
When dewdrops stay the flanks of hare and fawn,
And roes blink at morning through a tear.

IT IS THE HOUR WHEN HUSH AND VIGIL CLEAR

The world of every music. 'So, I saw
One hour of dreams to watch the coming on
Of sunrise to your dreams of morning, dear;
The first deep sigh, like lilies in your breast;
Stir from the snow, and watch your covered eyes
Awake to purple violets from the dew;
To feel your arms, the ferns of spring's surcease,
Reach up unto the call of golden skies,
And draw the smile of heaven down to you!"

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Rome, March 2.—Solomon Joseph, a young South African artist while leaning on the balcony of the Hotel Sirena at Tivoli, admiring the wonderful cascades, lost his balance and fell 200 feet.

BIRTHDAYS OF NOTABILITIES

MONDAY, MARCH THIRD

Sir John Murray, a noted British scientist, was born on this date in the year 1841, in Cobourg, Ontario. He is known to fame principally by virtue of his work in connection with the Challenger Expedition, 1872-76, which made a physical and biological exploration of the great ocean basin. Sir John Murray became editor of the report on the results of this expedition. He has also taken part in numerous other deep sea investigations, for all of which he was knighted in 1908.

This is also the birthday of another noted man of science, Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone who was born in Edinburgh in 1847. He was educated in Scotland and in 1870 came to Canada, where he invented the telephone while living in Brantford. He has lately become interested in flying machines and at his summer residence at Baddeck, N. S., is busy studying out problems of aviation. He has received many honors in connection with his work for science.

He has always taken a prominent interest in politics, beginning with municipal work and entering parliament as M.P. for West Middlesex in 1886. TOLL OF THE SEA HAS BEEN HEAVY THIS WINTER

The toll of the sea has been heavy this winter and the Lutine bell at Lloyd's of London, which clangs when a big vessel founders, has rung the knell of many a stanch schooner and steamship. For more than a century the Lutine bell has pealed joyously at the receipt of tidings of the saving of a vessel considered lost or mourned in doleful tones the tragic end of thousands of gallant craft. But it is many years since the brazen tongue has cried the loss of a fleet of five steamships in one day, as it did some weeks ago during a gale which drove to destruction a score of fishing smacks and smaller vessels.

A Dainty Little Story

Richard Wilson, the English landscape painter, was not of a pliant disposition; conscious of his own merits, he disdained to humble himself to those who measure men by rank and value them by pounds. But Wilson's friends liked him no less for his brusque manner.

Goldsmith, Sterne, Wilson and Dr. Johnson were assembled at Garrick's house with a party of ladies for supper. "We were very lively at your expense indeed, gentlemen," said Mrs. Garrick, smiling them for having arrived late. "To be sure, you are not obeying our summons, the ladies looked you all to plants and birds and flowers."

"Pray, let us hear," said Wilson, "Doubtless I come in for a sprig of laurel."

"No, sir," said the pretty, lively lady, "you are wrong."

"For me, perchance," said he. "No, sir, guess again."

"Why, I am dabbled bitter enough; perhaps a crab," said he, "for that man 'Sour Dick.'"

"Guess again," said Mrs. Garrick, laughing. "Will you give it up?"

"Yes, madam."

"Why, then, sir, you are likened to a live one. Now, will you dare to inquire further?"

"Let me see," said Wilson, with all eyes upon him. "Well, then, my dear, out with it! I dare."

"Then know, Sir," said she, rising and curtsying most gravely. "Mr. Wilson is rough to the taste at first, tolerable by a little longer acquaintance, and delightful at last."—Lippincott's Magazine.

The thread spun by a spider is so excessively fine that a pound of it would be long enough to reach around the earth. It would take 10 pounds of it to reach to the moon, and more than 2,000 pounds to stretch to the sun. But to get a thread long enough to reach the nearest star would require 500,000 tons.
