Dorothy Dodd
Keep The Feet Young

The woman of forty who shows a glimpse of a dainty ankle and snug-shod foot instantly obtains credit for more youthfulness. Old womanish shoes take the sprightliness out of a costume.

DOROTHY DODD SHOES
are designed for young women's standards of taste and need. They are all shaped and modelled to give the effect of youth and race and they succeed in doing so.

THE IMPERIAL NOW

Singing Team Make Fine Impression on Tremendous Crowds

That the people of St. John—at least that quota represented by the large crowds at the Imperial Theatre yesterday—like the best of the late music definitely served to them, was evidenced by the plaudits that followed each appearance of the Josephine Lillie Duo. The newcomers seemed to tickle the patrons of the big house greatly and it is safe to assume their jingling numbers will be hummed throughout the town before the week is far spent. Miss Lillie and Lorne MacAdam are two operatic people who broke away from company work and entered the vaudeville field. They evidence culture, stage experience and best of all, they know what to put into their act. Well dressed and agile, they go through their two solos, two duets, and medley number smartly and pleasingly, making a finished refreshing performance. As a central item in the Imperial's bill they fit finely.

The leading picture shown in this programme yesterday was Leah's Temptation drama under the caption The Road to the Dawn. It was strong and startlingly real for the simple reason that Arthur Johnston and Lottie Briscoe played the leads and Mr. Johnston directed the whole production which was enacted in rural Maine. Mr. Johnston is a master producer and when he plays in the piece himself no detail is left out. The lesson taught by the feature picture is strong and up-to-date. There were a Pathe scientific film dealing with the wonders of oxygen, a travel scene in China, and a Vitaphone comedy. Miss Brock, who is on her farewell week, sang The Nightingale very artistically.

Tomorrow the Imperial will have the first of the sequel series to the now famous Mary story. Mary, having become a million-dollar "catch," is being shown on all sides by suitors and this is the first of her love tangles. It is also Pathe Weekly day. Next week John W. Myers is coming back for a season of those long lingering love ballads of the day.

THE COMMON COUNCIL

At the weekly meeting of the Common Council yesterday afternoon the commissioner of finance reported expenditures during October of $116,067, and recommended for payment accounts totalling $8,587.

He reported that D. C. Clark had submitted a tender of $1,600 for repairs to North wharf, damaged by storming waves. It was agreed to award the contract at this figure if the Dominion Coal Company would reimburse the city.

The lease of a city shed on Union street, W. E., to the J. S. Metcalf Company until March for $75 was authorized.

The commissioner also reported that he has accepted the tender of George McKean for 17,000 feet of spruce for sidewalk repairs on the west side.

The mayor drew attention to the continual need for repairs for the city wharves, and said:

"The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners were expending money on the city wharves. It is also an investigation into the collapse of the house on Peters street, and the Common Council was instructed to reply that the city had no authority to conduct such an investigation, and that the city was in no way liable.

The mayor was authorized to ask the mayor of Toronto to represent St. John at the session of the Canadian Union of Municipalities, at which the subject of level railway crossings is discussed.

A request from the St. John Railway Company for permission to erect a pole on Reed's Point for lighting purposes was referred to the Commissioner of Public Works.

"I'M MY OWN PARTY!" SAYS GOV. FOSS

"Parties Aren't Necessary Any More Anyhow! It's Only Principles That Count!"

The Man-Without-a-Party Who Is Bucking the Republican, Democratic and Progressive Candidates For the Governorship of Massachusetts, In an Interview, Declares the Personal Equation is All That Cuts a Figure in 20th Century Politics

(Times Special Correspondence)
Boston, Mass., Nov. 1.—The Governor without a Party stood under the gilded dome of the capitol on Beacon Hill, an image of confident energy.

"I'm my own party," he said. "And, my boy, I'm going to win!"

"Well," said the interviewer, "your excellency doubtless belongs to a very estimable party. But what's wrong with the Democratic party?"

"A great deal," replied the independent and protean governor, while bushy eyebrows and bristling moustache lost their fierceness in a patronizing grin.

"The Democratic party, of course, is not any worse than the Republican—but it ought to know better! I'm out of both and glad of it!"

"I'd leave the Progressive party, too, if I belonged to it!"

Beyond preadventure, Governor Foss is a fine little party leaver. He formerly ran for congress as a Republican. After the perpetration of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill he suddenly flipped and ran as a reciprocity Democrat—and won, to the consternation of the G. O. P. machine.

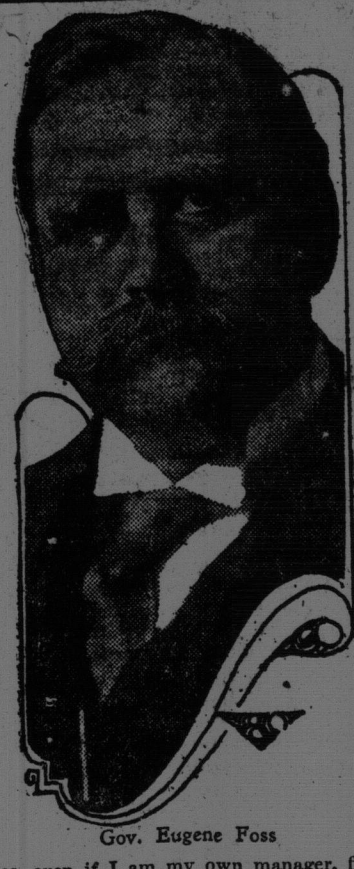

Then he jumped to the top of the democratic ticket and ran for governor, winning again, with still more G. O. P. consternation.

Machine politicians and reputable citizens of both parties acquired the habit of shaking their fists toward the capitol dome, as Mohammedans pray toward Mecca, and muttering incoherent profanity. But Foss kept right on governing and running, and was re-elected twice.

Now he is running for his fourth term—which is sacrilege, according to Massachusetts tradition.

He is running as an independent candidate, with no organization whatever, in a whirlwind ten days' campaign. And, for the first time in history, the state has four strong candidates in the field.

"Now," said the governor, "don't assume that this jumping parties is just a nervous habit of mine. I don't assume that I think I'm bigger than all parties."

Gov. Eugene Foss

ies, even if I am my own manager, financial backer and press agent.

"I left the Republican party because, in this state, it was dominated by a corrupt machine, and because nationally it was blind to tariff iniquities and the value of reciprocity as an international principle of trade.

"I left the Democratic party this year, because the Democratic organization of Massachusetts is corrupt and hopeless and because, though I supported President Wilson, I fear the results of his tariff legislation and other activities.

"My present campaign is directed against the transportation monopoly that is throttling the industries of New England."

"My record in behalf of popular government, election reform, prison reform, improved labor conditions and other progressive principles speaks for itself. The three other parties are merely advocating things that I have long stood for and largely achieved.

"The Progressive party, with its dray loads of craters, scattering over Boston, each carrying his own soap box, has borrowed nearly all of my platform. I alone have a clear-cut issue.

THE FOUR CANDIDATES WHO WANT TO GOVERN THE BAY STATE

Eugene Noble Foss, republican-democratic-independent, one of the wealthiest manufacturers of the state, already three times democratic governor.

David I. W. Whelan, democratic, supported by the democratic organization; present lieutenant governor.

Augustus P. Gardner, republican, congressman and son-in-law of Senator Lodge.

Charles Sumner Bird, progressive, who is waging a vigorous "soap box" campaign.
