An indicator shows the amount of oil in the fort. The filler-cap is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain. It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so the wick can be quickly cleaned.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. Finished in japan or nickel, strong, durable, wellmade, bhilt for service, and yet light and ornamental.

FAMOUS GEMS OF PROSE

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

From the Phillips academy (Excter, N. H.) "Lectures to Students," March 4,

Right of St. NGLISH literature is rich in autobiography. It has, indeed, no tale so deep and subtle as that which is told in the confessions of St. Augustine. It has no such complete and unreserved unbosoming of a life as is given by the strange Italian, Benvenuto Cellini, who is the very prince of unconcealment. But there is hardly and self-told life in any language which is more attractive than the autobiography of Edward Gibbon, in which he recounts the story of his own career in the same stately, pure prose in which he narrates the decilne and fall of Rome.

It must have needed a great faith in a man's self to write those tolls and he sonorous pages. Two passages in them have passed into the history market. of man. One is that in which he describes how, in Rome, on the 15th I suppose that was the year when Daley of October, 1764, as he sat musing amid the ruins of the capitol while bid in all the stands? the bare-footed frairs were singing vespers in the temple of Jupiter, the idea of writing the decline and fall of the city first started in You don't mean that you regarded the his mind. The other is the passage in which the great historian records how, on the night of the 27th of June, 1787, between the hours

I certainly do.

Had you rented the stands from of eleven and twelve, he wrote the last lines of the last page in a summer house at Lausanne, and how then, laying down his pen, he I did. I consider the city sold what it "took several turns in a berceau, or covered walk of acacials, which commanded a prospect of the country, the lake and the mountain."

The story is all very solemn and exalted. It is full of the feeling that the beginning and ending of a great literary work is as great

What fees? that the beginning and ending of a great literary work is as great an achievement as the foundation and completion of an empire-as worthy of record and of honor.

No.
Did you do it?
Well, in a way I did.
In what way did you do it?
Well, I rented a couple of stands.
You rented a couple of stands, to whom?
I rented one to Babkirk for a dollar a week and the other for fifty cents a week.

How came he to let you do so?
I don't know why he did it. I know that I did it because the revenue was not, in my opinion, commensurate with the space he was occupying.
With the space he was occupying? What Col. had you to do with that?
and I considered I had a perfect right to do what I did.

ottles I am not asking that way. When you bought the tolls did you understand you a new had got from the city power to let a man bald into the market or keep him out? Did you understand then that you had scalp got more than the right to collect the es-the tablished tolls? Well I don't know.

with that you had the power to collect more ggists from Babkirk? The I told you a moment ago he was getting stuff from the country people who wanted Well, I thought it was much easier to make it a lump sum.

When he was paying 20 and 30 cents a week did you consider that he ought to pay more? Yes; I'm not going to say any more Did you consider you could get more for the stand than from the tolls? No, I don't think I could from the tolls.

What fees?
Just the ordinary tolls.
The year that Daley bid in all the stands were his terms so high that you felt that you were getting less in tolls than you ought to have?
Yes, I know I was.
Well, suppose that Mr. Daley had only bought a part of the stands and the rest were not leased by the city to anyone, would you have felt yourself entitled to dispose of them?
I was under the impression that I certainly ought to have some privileges.

Oh, no. Well, from eighteen years ago to five years ago did anyone collect rent and tolls from you?
