BODY OF UNKNOWN MAN FOUND UNDER PECULIAR CIRCUMSTANCES IN DITCH ON THE MARSH ROAD

The dead body of a unknown man was found on Saturday afternoon about half-past four in a ditch on the Marsh road, about sixty yards on the other side of the three mile house. Corner Berrymans was notified and viewed the remains, ordering them to be taken to the morgue. Curious crowds saw the body there but although many at first thought they saw resemblances, the man has not yet been identified and it seems to be certain that it is a stranger. There are no marks of violence and so far there has been no suspicion of foul play. Corner Berrymans will probably hold an inquest.

The dead man was first discovered by Robert J. Green, contractor, lying in the ditch, face downward along side the road. To those who first found the body it seemed that life had been extinct for some time. The body was hauled to the roadway and Corner Berrymans summoned. The ditch from which the body was taken contained only two or three inches of water. The coroner gave permission for the body to be taken to the morgue and it was taken there by George Cody of Main street, and Herbert Lob, of Main street, teamsters for Gibbon & Co. in their coal cart.

The dead man and his clothing were covered with mud but when these were partly cleaned away it was found that the remains were those of a well-built man of about thirty-five years of age, about 5 feet 5 inches in height and weight about 150 pounds, of dark complexion, dark hair, heavy black moustache and recently shaved.

His clothing consisted of a coat of a large grey check with brown thread and vest of the same material, dark trousers and lace shoes. All his clothes were in good condition and were neatly new. He wore a striped shirt with collar attached.

A small amount of money was found in his possession, while a number of keys and a time check were tied together with a string. The round brass time tag was such used in numbering their employees by large contracting firms and contained the words "G. and D., 28, time check."

So far as known there are no contracting firms in this vicinity which would be using these letters, and one might be inclined to think he was a tramp but for the fact that his clothes were so new and that he had apparently been shaved a few hours previously.

Dr. Berrymans, upon his hurried examination was of the opinion that the man had not been long dead when found.

Many yesterday viewed the body, which lies in a wooden casket. The suitability of the present structure was most apparent yesterday.

A gentleman connected with the Mispic mills who wished last night to see whether he could identify the body was taken into the dark damp hole while rats scurried away on all sides and was given a chance to view the body by the ghastly light of a dim lantern. In the afternoon the lock to the house was in such condition that it would not fasten and the door had to be secured by the police with their padlock and rings.

BIG FOREST CEMETERY PLANNED FOR MUNICH

Idyllic Character of Its Environments to be Rigidly Preserved.

MUNICH, Sept. 21.—Munich is to have one of the most beautiful graveyards in Germany. The city has purchased about 300 acres of romantic forest land about five miles from its borders, which will be used as a cemetery. It will be the first forest graveyard in Germany, and is to be so used that its idyllic character will be preserved. Orderly disorder will be the rule in marking out the graves, and care will be taken that even in the matter of monuments and grave-stones nothing will appear to disturb the rustic beauty of the landscape. White marble, for example, is not to be used. Preference is to be given to wooden crosses or to rough blocks of stone. There are to be plenty of flowers, but not in ordered beds and rows as in most graveyards. They are to be planted in such wise as to imitate the wilderness and freedom of nature. The new cemetery is rich in springs, which are to be led in meandering streams through the woods or turned into cunningly devised fountains.

THOUSANDS HEARD GENERAL BOOTH SPEAK AT THREE SERVICES YESTERDAY

Head of Salvation Army Tells of Its Success and the Great Work Which is Being Accomplished the World Over—Says He Has Decided to Live as Long as He Can—Excellence of Staff Band.

General Booth was supposed to be resting on Saturday, but even when he rests he seems to accomplish much. He gave a lengthy interview to press representatives, received a large number of callers, attended to a lot of correspondence and was almost continually in conference on Army work, with members of his staff and other officers. In the evening he conducted a rousing Army meeting in the auditorium of the new Army building.

On Sunday morning at 11 o'clock he preached for an hour to an audience of over 4,000 persons, in the Opera House. In the afternoon his lecture on The Secret of Success of the Salvation Army was heard by a gathering which filled the Opera House to its full capacity. In the evening he addressed another large meeting in the Opera House.

Tonight General Booth will address the Canadian Club, at the luncheon, to be given him by them in the Keith assembly room. His address will deal with some aspects of Army government and work in relation to the cultivation of thrift and industrial prosperity, and other points on which the work of the Army comes within the scope of the objects of the Canadian Club.

The great interest in General Booth's visit has been shown by his enthusiastic reception, the large numbers who have gathered to hear him on every occasion, and the close attention paid to every word he utters.

The playing of the Toronto headquarters staff band has been a feature of the General's meetings. The band is under the direction of Brigadier Howell, and led by Major Morris. It is a well balanced collection of instruments, and its performances show much talent and careful training. The members of the band also know how to sing when they are called upon to do so, and the work shown at the meeting last Saturday night at King's Hotel, and the last night at the Opera House.

Secret of Army's Success

To an audience which packed the Opera House to its full capacity, General Booth spoke yesterday afternoon on The Secret of Success of the Salvation Army. The relation of the subject to his subject was enough to draw an enormous audience anywhere, for who is more qualified to speak of the secret of the Army's success than the man in whose brain and heart the organization originated, who has given his life to its growth and training, and who is a great agency for the moral and material uplifting of mankind?

Leut. Gov. Tweedie presided, and welcomed General Booth to the province.

The general spoke for an hour and twenty minutes. He was listened to with rapid attention and frequently applauded.

As evidence that the Army has been successful, General Booth referred to the fact that the British, the United States, Germany and other countries, which from active opposition and acknowledgment of the great work the Army is doing. This approval and sympathy had been shown, first, because of the organization itself. He believed it would last and every humanly possible arrangement had been made to secure its continuity in the work.

When he stepped off the stage another group would immediately step on. It is only 42 years since he stood alone, now the Army works in 53 countries, with 15,000 officers and hundreds of thousands of soldiers. He referred to its social work in 70 institutions, its emigration work, its work among the homeless multitudes, for the inebriate and criminal classes, its work among the unemployed, of whom 40,000 had been sent to Canada alone. This is the secret of the Army's success; it is a mighty force of devoted workers, with methods which reach the individual, and zeal founded upon active, working religion. He concluded with an appeal for a practical demonstration of sympathy in the way of a large offering.

On the platform besides the general's staff and other Army officers were noticed Mayor and Mrs. Sears, Mrs. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bullock, Alderman Hamm, Baxter, Sprague, Kelley and Sproul, J. D. Hazen, M. P., George Robertson, M. P., Col. G. R. White, D. O. C., John P. and Mrs. Bullock, G. A. Henderson, Rev. Wellington Camp, Rev. Charles Combs, G. S. Mayes, G. H. V. Belyea and many others.

Before the arrival of the general the fine headquarters staff band from Toronto rendered several selections in excellent style.

General Booth's Reception

General Booth received an ovation when he came upon the platform. He bowed his acknowledgments and took his seat at the governor's right.

Commissioner Coombs opened proceedings with a few remarks. General Booth then spoke for an hour, and was followed by the migration staff in London, led in prayer.

Leut. Governor Tweedie, in welcoming General Booth to the province, said he was glad to see the general here again with his eye undimmed and his vigor unimpaired. He felt like saying to General Booth "Servant of God, well done."

General Booth thanked the audience for the reception given him, and hoped his observations would tend to increase

The General's Address.

The topic, The Secret of Success of the Salvation Army, implied that the Army had been successful. They had done something, and his only regret was that they were not able to do more. It had not been everywhere and always a success, because war meant disasters and backward movements as well as progress. He did not consider the Army the only organization in this field. While acclamating the soldiers of the cross who had fought under other banners in days gone by, he claimed that in the estimation of the truest friends of mankind the Army in its particular sphere had been a success.

Public Opinion

As evidence he would refer to public opinion—an unreliable and changeable quantity, but one which spoke with some authority.

Twenty-five years ago the Army had unfurled its flag in Australia. They had been given the opportunity of reaching the classes they desired to benefit, and what had been the result? On his recent visit he had been assured by governors, prime ministers, clergymen and others in a position to judge, some of whom did not approve of Army methods that the Army had made a great blessing, and those colonies subsidized the Army's operations to the extent of about $10,000.

The playing of the Toronto headquarters staff band has been a feature of the General's meetings. The band is under the direction of Brigadier Howell, and led by Major Morris. It is a well balanced collection of instruments, and its performances show much talent and careful training. The members of the band also know how to sing when they are called upon to do so, and the work shown at the meeting last Saturday night at King's Hotel, and the last night at the Opera House.

He had come to Japan in doubt as to whether he would get other than from officers, soldiers, Christian missionaries and friends of philanthropic interests. He found the emperor, the emperor down, waiting to receive him, and the common people by whom he set most store, came by thousands to bless him and the Army.

The Work in Germany

He would take the German nation as an instance. When the Army flag was unfurled the police regarded them as probable authors of confusion. The police examined obsolete laws, and would not allow them to play a cornet or even to clap their hands on the streets. They had to be told that they were not to be without those demonstrations. They had fought their way, however, until not long ago they had received Frederickstrasse 1000 strong, with 50 policemen to take care of them, and on his last visit he had preached to 6,000 people in the largest hall in Berlin. £100 had been taken as an offering, and 200 had sought salvation. In England the principal civil authorities had told him of the great benefits of the Army's work. Oxford had honored him by conferring a degree on him, and he had received the assurance of sympathy from the King and Queen.

What had been done to secure these evidences of approval? What was the secret of the Army's success?

Won't Die Till He Has To

There was the organization itself. It was a great movement which he did not believe earth or hell could ever destroy. There had been a good deal of inquiry as to what would become of the Army when the general had passed away. Don't worry about it, said the general. He had been possessed of the idea that his life was of some importance to his own people and the world, and he made his mind to live as long as he possibly could. But if he were called away by the death angel, even from this earth, the same electric flash that carried the news would also say, "Long live the general," for he had made all arrangements in his mind to carry on the work of the Army here in Canada. Help with their prayers, their sympathy and their money.

At the conclusion of his address there was prolonged applause, after which a vote of thanks was moved by J. D. Hazen, M. P., and seconded by George Robertson, M. P., both speaking in highly appreciative words of the work of the Army and of General Booth.

After the vote of thanks to General Booth had been put by the Governor, and carried unanimously, and a vote had been given to the Governor for presiding had been proposed by the general and carried, the Doxology was sung, and the meeting closed.

In 53 Countries

Today the Army flag is planted in fifty-three countries; other nations are beginning them to enter, but their hands are tied and their steps stayed by the lack of suitable men and of money. Seven thousand five hundred separate societies preach salvation in thirty-two different tongues. There are 15,000 officers working to forward the movement. Twenty-five papers are published in seventeen different languages. Twenty thousand musicians, many raised from the lowest dregs of the people and taught every note of music they know, and march 74,000 miles a week in England alone and play for the glory of God—for no bandman is paid for any musical performance. He did not pretend their music was perfection, but they had lately received a high compliment. Bernard Shaw, who is not in sympathy with religion had said that so far as rendering religious music was concerned, the Army bands are at the top of the tree.

Army's Social Work

In social work the Army had 700 institutions, which housed about 22,000 homeless people every night. Six thousand unfortunate girls passed through their 130 rescue homes every year, thousands of them being permanently rescued. There are the bureaux, homes, emigration efforts and a host of other agencies maintained by the Army. The organization is not only evidence of its success but is one of the secrets of its success.

General Booth next spoke of the Army's work among the churchless multitudes. They were found everywhere. Even in Japan he had found people grown careless about their idols and looking for a new religion. Are these multitudes to be allowed to travel the dark mountains and fall over the dark precipices unwarmed? The Army workers formed a mighty force to save souls, not because they were ordained, appointed or paid, but for the love of God.

He felt that the Army had been a success, they had done something. They had made up of converted drunkards, however, as many thought. It included many such, and he gloried in them as trophies of the war to which, dying beside the Saviour, was an instance of sudden conversion, and that's the kind of trophies the Army is sending along. The Army also includes many from the upper ranks of society, "all sorts of notabilities," said the general. "Some have been sitting behind me on this platform."

The general here spoke of what the Army is doing to get rid of social ills in the homes of the people. He illustrated his statements by the story of the rescue of a whole family from intended suicide.

He told the story of a family who had been converted by the Army. The father had been a drunkard, and the mother a prostitute. They had been converted by the Army, and now they were a happy family.

Hein to Wayward Girls

Proceeding, he said the Army had done something for the daughters of shame. Something like 40,000 girls had been rescued from a life which is the nearest thing to damnation and death. Much had been done for the inebriate classes. He did not know the statistics of this province, but believed there were more drunkards in the world today than at any other period in its history. Much remained to be done, but he was confident that the Army would do it.

He told the story of a family who had been converted by the Army. The father had been a drunkard, and the mother a prostitute. They had been converted by the Army, and now they were a happy family.

Amusements

Ladies' Night.

The weekly ladies' night arrangement will be in effect tonight at Victoria Rink, with the latest popular music by the band. The lucky door prizes on Saturday evening were No. 66 ladies and No. 31 gentlemen. The door prizes will be given again tonight. Everybody attending has a chance to win.

Queen's Rollaway.

There will be a band at the Queen's Rollaway tonight. Those who want an enjoyable place to spend an evening and at the same time an opportunity to see a good show, will find it well to visit this popular place of amusement. Every pair of skates in the rink have been thoroughly oiled, and the skaters will find it a pleasure to glide and the smoothness of the floor is commented upon by everyone. Under these conditions roller skating at the Queen's is what it should be, a very enjoyable and healthy pastime.

Best Moving Pictures Ever Shown

Here at Nickel Today.

On Saturday the announcement was made that the Nickel Theatre would have the best moving pictures ever shown in Eastern Canada. This guarantee will be fully lived up to as today's patrons will readily see upon witnessing the programme, which is educational, descriptive, dramatic and comic in its variety. Every film is brand new, flickering and dimness will be entirely absent, and even the high standard of Nickel excellence will be surpassed in their methods, which were now being copied by other organizations.

Speaking to his hearers personally, he would say they must not think they were being asked to support the Army. All must do their share.

The general concluded with an eloquent and earnest appeal to the audience to help the Army here in Canada. Help with their prayers, their sympathy and their money.

At the conclusion of his address there was prolonged applause, after which a vote of thanks was moved by J. D. Hazen, M. P., and seconded by George Robertson, M. P., both speaking in highly appreciative words of the work of the Army and of General Booth.

Grand Military Opening at the Happy Half Hour.

Commencing today and continuing for the first half of this week the ladies, and also the gentlemen, will be greatly interested in the picture which will be shown at the Happy Half Hour entitled "Selecting an Easter Bonnet." It's very funny, the ladies will appreciate it and the poor men who pay but rarely see the fun will have a chance to enjoy a genuine military opening. Dear Mother-in-Law is a very funny picture and should not be confounded with other mother-in-law pictures seen here. She visits son-in-law, he is not delighted to see her, and tries everything to chase her, spending a small fortune to do so, and finally the smallpox chases her home. A Trip Through India will prove to be one of the most interesting and instructive pictures ever seen here. It shows the natives at home, at play and at work, and also shows life on the River Ganges with its thousands of floating homes. All through the picture there is shown much of the beautiful and interesting scenery of this mysterious country. This picture is sure to make a hit. The Had Shilling will appeal to everybody, and particularly to those who have had some

MORNING AND EVENING SERVICES

Yesterday morning at the Opera House General Booth took as his text Isaiah, 53rd chapter, 11th verse: "He shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied."

He said there was no doubt this prophecy meant that Christ should eventually see the results and marvelous consequences of His sacrifice, and be satisfied.

The prophecy also referred to those charged with carrying on the work of Christ, and to those who have endured suffering for salvation.

The salvation of Jesus was intended to be satisfying. Many have experi-

Sudden Death of GREAT VILLAGE MEN

HALIFAX, Sept. 22.—At Great Village Friday occurred an accident which resulted in the death of Dr. Neppard of that place and Samuel Lindsay of Londonderry station. The two men were out working at a farm, and becoming thirsty the doctor went into his office for a drink. On his shelf were two bottles, one containing strychnine and the other a drink of some sort. After taking the drink the two men went back to the fields. In a few minutes Dr. Neppard died. The cause, Mrs. Peppard came running out, but before she could assist her husband to the house he was dead.

Samuel Lindsay took sick shortly after the doctor fell from the rake and died the following day at five o'clock.

ANOTHER PARTY IS EN ROUTE TO ST. JOHN

On Tuesday morning the Marston's party of Hartford will arrive in the city by one of the Eastern Steamship Company's steamers. The party will leave Hartford on Monday morning at eight o'clock and arrive in Boston the same day, leaving at once by steamer for St. John. Upon arriving in this city on Tuesday morning they will go to the Victoria Hotel, where they will stop while in the city. During the day they will visit Rockwood Park, Rev. Father's and other places of interest in the city.

On Wednesday they will leave by steamer for the "coastwise" trip to Portland. They will arrive in that city at seven o'clock Thursday morning and will leave for Boston at seven o'clock in the evening, arriving at an early hour the next morning. The party will be accompanied over the whole route by a conductor who is familiar with all the spots of interest.

This will probably be the last excursion party to arrive in St. John this year.
