Looking Old Too Soon The Condition of Too Many Women and Too Many Girls

Too many women and too many girls look old long before they should. Their faces become pale and drawn, wrinkles appear and their eyes lack brightness. Can this be wondered at when they so frequently have headaches, backaches and a general feeling of wretchedness and weakness? In most cases it is the blood that is to blame. From one cause or another the blood has become thin and watery and it is a fact that anaemia (bloodlessness) more than any other cause, gives women this prematurely aged appearance. It is important that the blood supply of girls and women be regularly replenished—important not only on the score of looks, but to restore robust health, which is of greater value. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood and restore the system shattered by overwork or worry. These pills give a glow of health to pale faces and make tired, weary women and girls feel bright and happy. With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at hand there is no need for any woman or any girl to look ill or feel ill. Mrs. J. McDonald, Jr., Hay, Ont., says: "I honestly believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life. Some years ago I had an anaemia, and as I did not realize the seriousness of the trouble I soon became a complete wreck. I neither ate nor slept well, and could not go upstairs without stopping to rest. At times I had an almost unbearable pain in my back and would have to remain in bed. I suffered almost constantly from a dull headache, and when sweeping if I would stoop to pick up anything I would get so dizzy that I would have to catch hold of something to keep from falling. At times my heart would beat so fast that I would have a smothering sensation. My eyes were sunken and my hands and limbs would be swollen in the mornings. I tried several kinds of medicine without benefit and my friends thought I would not recover. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before long could see and feel that they were helping me. I gladly continued the use of the pills until I was completely cured and I cannot say enough in their praise, and I strongly recommend them to all run-down girls and women.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any dealer in medicines or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

W. Grant Smith returned to the city yesterday morning from Boston accompanied by his aunt, Miss F. E. Henderson, of that city.

Five Year Sentence and $4,000 Fine Imposed on French Millionaire Perfume Maker.

Montpellier, France, Oct. 30.—Henri Racine, a millionaire perfume distiller of Montpellier, has been sentenced by a court martial here to five years imprisonment and to a fine of 20,000 francs ($4,000) for having supplied essences of neroli to a firm of perfume manufacturers at Cologne. The court also ordered goods belonging to the perfumier to the value of 270,000 francs ($54,000) confiscated.

Racine originally was sentenced by a court martial sitting at Marseilles to perpetual deportation. He obtained a reversal of judgment by an appeal to the court on technicalities, and was sent here for trial by court martial.

London, Oct. 29. KING HURT IN FALL FROM HIS HORSE

Received Severe Bruises But Injuries Not Considered Very Serious.

London, Oct. 29.—An accident to the King happened yesterday morning. The King was thrown from his horse and severely bruised.

The following official announcement was made:

"While the King this morning (Thursday) was inspecting his army in the field, his horse, excited by the cheers of the troops, reared up and fell. The King was bruised severely, and will be confined to bed for the present.

Horse Fell Backwards

A Reuter despatch from British headquarters, describing the accident to the King, says he had just completed inspection of one corps, and was on his way to inspect another, when cheers from the troops, who threw their caps in the air, caused the horse to rear. The King managed to remain control of the horse, which, however, reared again and fell backwards, throwing the King to the ground.

He was immediately assisted to a motor car and while driving away was able to return the salutes of the troops, as he sat in the corner of the car.

That the King was not more seriously injured was doubtless due to the fact that he is very much at home in the saddle, and is considered more than an ordinary rider, being quite as good as the average mounted officer in the army. When at Windsor he rides in the great park every day, and even when he is in London he is often seen in the early morning riding in Hyde Park, with Princess Mary.

The King's horses, of course, are well trained and they are accustomed to music, firing and the cheering of troops. The horse which he was riding yesterday, it is said, had been put through a special course of training for the reviews, and already had gone through one ordeal yesterday morning.

The great outburst of cheers and the appearance of thousands of waving caps, however, went too much for the animal on the second occasion.

A heavy rain was falling, and the slippery conditions of the road made it more difficult to control the horse, which apparently lost its footing when it reared the second time.

Gov. General Cables Regret of Canadian People.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught cabled today to King George a message, in the name of the government and the people of Canada, expressing deep regret at the accident sustained by His Majesty while visiting the battlefield in France. The Duke expressed his sympathy with his army in the field of battle when he received his injuries.

THE "TOMMY ATKINS" OF SERBIA A MARVEL OF COURAGE AND STOICISM

Record of the Brave Little Army During Past Year Will Furnish One of the Brightest Chapters in the History of the Present Conflict.

(London Daily Chronicle.)

When, a few days ago, I left Serbia after constantly travelling up and down the country over four months, I carried away with me many different impressions. Some of these impressions, it may be, are curiously confused and conflicting, for Serbia is by no means an open book to be read by all who run as soon they reach her gates. Like the rest of her Balkan neighbors, she is to some extent a paradox—a nation of warring truths. But one impression that I early formed has remained with me so long that it is now among my ripest convictions. On one point I am proof-positive. Today there is no fighting man in the world more wonderful than the "Tommy Atkins" of Serbia.

Wonderful is a big word, but it is not too big to fit the men in the rank and file of the Serbian army. They are wonderful, first of all, in the stoicism—one has almost said gaitly—with which they have borne the heat and burden of four years of war. They were wonderful, again, when, not nearly a year ago, under superb generalship, they successfully drove over 500,000 Austrian invaders from their territories and took 62,000 of their prisoners into the bargain. And leave from France. The prince was in close attendance on his father during the King's inspection of his troops at the front. It is believed the prince has returned for the purpose of reassuring Queen Mary as to the King's condition. His presence here is taken as confirmation of the statement that the accident was not serious.

They are still more wonderful at the present moment, when, after ten months of masterly inactivity, they stand like greyhounds in the slips straining upon the start! for—well, whatever betides!

"Serbia Will Be Ready"

"Don't forget that when the time comes to strike, Serbia will be ready," M. Pasko, the veteran Prime Minister, told me proudly at Nish as far back as last May. And in view of the fact that, five months earlier, our Ally had purchased her victory over the Austrians at a cost of 100,000 lives, this was certainly no mean boast. Even at that incredibly early date Serbia, after having been in the interval ravaged by pestilence and disease and riddled by shot and shell, was once more back at her old fighting-strength, with her forces completely reorganized and better equipped than ever before! Since that time, too, ammunition-making has been proceeding apace. If Serbia, with her army of 400,000, was ready to strike in May, we may be quite sure she is more than ever ready to strike today.

There has been something impressive and grand in the picture of these stout-hearted men of Serbia, massed round the little nation's borders—waiting, always waiting. For several hours nearly every day during the past ten months many a Serbian "Tommy Atkins" has known what it is to stand rigidly on guard, glued like an automaton to his post, his face to wait, a private to-day when I talked with him while off duty through an interpreter who having lived in

Stop those Guns! Said the Goddess

THE strikers had grown restless, lawless and riotous, when the militia was called to quell the disorder. The officers, too, caught the fever of strife and might—the might of gunpowder, rifles and a deadly aim when brought into play. Peace, then? And yet, how the presence of Celestia, with her earthless mien, acted on all—How the non-combatant, true neutral always affects the combatants! Like an oil on troubled waters, both sides flocked to the banner of "The Goddess" and there was strife no longer.

This is a new type of story and picture, don't you think, and one that treats the vital issues of the day with a sense of entertainment supreme.

America, was able to translate very rarely. If only we could have another whack at 'em! I'm just longing for the war to end. You see, I haven't seen my wife and children for three years. My home is so far away and we have been so awfully fighting, or expecting to fight, that I have never had a chance to go back."

And if this has been the lot of some of Serbia's first-line soldiers still in their prime what of those veterans of the third and fourth lines who are to be found guarding the remote places less liable to attack? These grizzled warriors are generally chosen for them also, life holds more than its fair share of irony.

"Of course, I'm only scrap-iron—too old for the firing-line," one of them lately confessed to me. "I'm fifty and I've been in the army thirty-three years. In Serbia, you know, we start serving at seventeen and finish at fifty-five." "Then, in another five years you will be free?" I ventured enquiringly.

"Yes, in another five years I shall be free all right," he replied bitterly. "But please don't forget, sir, I shall also be fifty-five!"

But not for nothing has the Serb been called "the Irishman of the Balkans." His temperament is mercurial, and these moments of depression soon slip away. Although occasionally discouraged, he is seldom seriously downcast. Difficulties never daunt him. Instead they fire his blood. "If only we could have another whack at 'em!" That is the spirit in which he goes forth to meet and beat his foe. To him the thought that Serbia should be vanquished is simply unthinkable. For with him his country ranks as god. Patriotism, an all-consuming love of the land of his forefathers, is practically the only religion he knows and understands. Provided he holds fast to his faith in the salvation of Serbia he feels all will be well. Inevitably his enemies must go to the wall. This is the firm belief of every true Serbian peasant. And maybe—who knows?—it is because perhaps he clings to it so tenaciously that he fights so valiantly and well.

Their Bravery in Action

"Victory is not won by shining arms, but by brave hearts," runs the Serbian "Tommy's" guiding maxim. And in this case, it is literally true. Would you reflect that many of the Serbian officers contrive to cut quite a formidable dash on 270 a year, it follows that the uniforms of the men in the ranks are not exactly glittering. The only allowance they get is a very few dinars a month, together with one loaf of bread and a round of ammunition a day. And unless they are first-line soldiers they fight in their peasant dress. As a rule the peasants have only two sets of clothes—one for winter and one for summer. Each is firmly stitched on to him, according to season, by a devoted wife—so firmly that if left to himself, he pursues the line of the least resistance, and such is his pagan taste for fifth, changes his clothes only twice a year! All honor, then, to the poverty-stricken men who fight under such terrible conditions. The homes from which many of them come seem so wretched to fight for. Yet they still go on fighting—for the unification of their beloved Serbia for the glory of this one single idea. Their bravery inaction is now a by word. But let me, at least, give one story for the truth of which that ardent Serbophile Dr. Seton-Watson vouches.

THOUSANDS OF SYRIANS ARE DESTITUTE

Calcutta, via London, Oct. 29.—The India government announces the termination of the occupation of Bushire, Persia, the Persian government having taken steps to ensure order and the security of British interests.

Thousands of Syrian Refugees at Salmas

London, Oct. 29.—The Foreign Office has received a despatch from British Consul Shipley at Tabriz, Persia, which says that 25,000 Syrian mountaineers from the Tyari and adjacent districts have taken refuge in Salmas, and that 10,000 more are expected there. All are destitute and unless help is received many of them will inevitably perish, as winter is close at hand.

Consul Shipley adds that the American relief committee, under the presidency of the United States consul, is endeavoring to do all that is possible, but that its funds are entirely inadequate to meet the requirements of the situation, which involves an urgent appeal to the charity of Great Britain. Mr. Shipley suggests that all funds be sent to him for distribution through the American committee, which he believes is the best agency for giving effective relief.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY.

Thursday, Oct. 28, was the 25th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Quigg, Sand Cove Road. In the evening a number of friends assembled at their residence and presented them with a set of dishes. The evening was pleasantly spent with games and music, and refreshments were served.
