His bust, arms, &c., have been drawn by every artist and sculptor of Paris, and exhibit certainly a most extraordinary developement of muscular power. I happened to be with him the other day in his school when the celebrated surgeon, Nelaton - he to whom we owe the extraction of the ball from the ankle of Garibaldi—was examining his foot. Nelaton's admiration knew no bounds; and he pronounced the member to be the most admirably developed specimen of power and elasticity he had ever seen on a human body. Thevelin was a weak and and almost puny child, and owes his present extraordinary powers of limb and coolness of head to study perseverance in the practice of gymnastics, combined with sober living. What Becomes o f the Cents.

The Philadelphia Ledger of Saturday has the following: —Where do they all go? In the month of December there were coined at the United States Mint five millions four hundred and thirty-five thousand cents. A coinage little short of this has been kept up monthly for the past five or six months, and yet cents are quite scarce in circulation. hough they are so much debased below the hundredth part of a dollar as to be little more than tokens. The fact shows the strong prejudice of the public for coin over paper as a small hand to hand currency. year ago, when our currency was of coin and was not hoarded, the monthly coinage of cents was less than what it is now, and yet the cent piece was so abundant as to be felt a nuisance. Some complaint was at that the Government kept it as a source of profit, selling the cents for more than they fact that the cheapest currency will supplant to a great extent, forces the coin out of use. order.

One of the greatest military works in which any nation has ever engaged has been for some time going almost noislessly on in England, and is now approaching completion. We refer to the great fortifications at Portland, the principal feature of which is the key, or citadel, known as the Verne. The whole has been not inaptly termed the Gibraltar of the Channel, and it seems to merit the name, being said to be more formidable than Cherbourg or Cronstadt, or thrice the elevation of those works from the sea, and therefore so much the more unassailable from that point, while such precautions are being taken to secure it from the one or two places on which it might be threatened from the land, that when all is finished any engineer would regard its reduction by other means than starving-out as almost a physical impossibility.

In a recent issue we mentioned the sudden death of the wife of one Pierre Barbinas, of St. Germain, E. T., and the suspicion that poison had been administered to the deceased. We have since learned that the eoroner of Arthabaska District transmitted the contents of the stomach, &c., of the deceased to Dr. Larue, of Quebec, one of the of several grains of arsenic—leaving no doubt as to the cause of death. We have not heard, however, whether any facts rela-All men desire prosperity. Success is tive to the administration of the poison have pleasant and failure mortifying to every one.

in this world. Such it has ever been. And this not in one department of human effort only, but in all. Among merchants, it is said, about one in a thousand succeeds in attaining what all or nearly all seek, viz., a fortune. In other pursuits the ratio may be larger, but, in all, the failures are greatly in excess of the successes. Why is this?

The New York Express mentions the very remarkable case of Willie Thompson, a little son of poor parents living on Twenty third street. After a long and severe sickness, during which the best medical advice declared his case hopeless, he has just begun in excess of the successes. Why is this? in excess of the successes. Why is this? Whence comes this sad fatality that so mars and frustrates all human plans and human hopes? Is it that God takes pleasure in mocking our feeble endeavor? Or is there some fatal error in the ends for which, and mocking our feeble endeavor? Or is there some fatal error in the ends for which, and methods by which success is sought? These methods by which success is sought? These suppositions no doubt explain the mystery. We do not acknowledge God as we ought in all our ways, or he would direct our steps. Did we more habitually and faithfully honor God with our substance, and with the first fruits of all our increase, our barns would oftener be filled with our barns would oftener be filled with plenty, and our presses would burst out with new wine. God does not forget his promise.

From the general interest now being taken in this country on this most important subject, mainly through the indefatigable exertions of Mr. Hully, Secretary of the Liverpool Atheltic Club, we think it may be interesting to our readers if we publish a few remarks on the matter, which appeared in the Field of the 13th, supplied by their Paris correspondent in a letter dated 10th December. He states that in France gymnastics are becoming a national institution.

Hesitation is a sign of weakness, for inasmuch as the comparative good and evil of the different modes of action about which we hesitate are seldom equally balanced, a strong mind should perceive the slightest inclination of beam with the glance of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the opponderance will be very minute, even though there should be life in one scale and death in the other. It is recorded of the late Earl of Berkely, that he was suddenly in the comparative good and evil of the different modes of action about which we hesitate are seldom equally balanced, a strong mind should perceive the slightest inclination of beam with the glance of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the oppondence of the late and the proposition of the different modes of action about which we hesitate are seldom equally balanced, a strong mind should perceive the slightest inclination of beam with the glance of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the prepondence will be very minute, even though the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the prepondence of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the prepondence of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the prepondence of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the prepondence of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the prepondence of the eagle, particularly as there are cases where the prepondence of the eagle, particularly as the Hesitation is a sign of weakness, for innastics are becoming a national institution, and that in the Government normal schools, awakened at night in his carriage by a highregular degrees are given to professors in this art, and that he would not be surprised were they one day to lead to a re-establishment of those Olympic games, success at which was at once their stimulent and rehad boasted he never would be robbed by a ward amongst the classic nations of anti- single highwayman, but he should now be quity. THESE Celebrated Machines, to which the attention of the Agricultural public is called, have during the past seasons given the most entire satisfaction. Their superiority wherever they have been introduced and brought into competition with other Machines have been universally acknowledged by all who have used them, both for Durability, ease of Draft, and the thorough and effective manner of their operation.

Our SEPARATOR (capacity, four to ten horse power) for the coming season will be superior in every respect to any ever before made, as our aim is to excel every manufactory in the Province, in producing first class work. In their construction none but the very best materials are used—frames well put together—cylinders run in copper boxes, which is a great improvement,—babbet metal in boxes where necessary, and everything is get up in the very best manner and with the latest improvements.

The DOUBLE PINION HORSE POWER, by which we drive the Separator and bish and all the second of the confection.

which we have much improved, is celebrated for great simplicity, ease of draft or effective power, costs less to keep in repair, and is very strong and durable.

Parties who intend getting Machines for the coming season, are respectfully invited to examine ours before purchasing elsewhere, as we are satisfied that they are the best and most reliable in the Provinces.

We continue to keep always on hand:—
