NERVOUS CHILDREN

Hard Study and Too Little Exercise Leads to St. Vitus Dance

There is much criticism of modern educational methods that require too much work of school children, allowing them too little time for play and preventing sufficient out-of-door exercise. When the study of music or any other accomplishment with the necessary practice, is added, the strain is increased. Under these conditions the blood becomes impoverished and fails to nourish the nerves. The child becomes restless, and twitching of the muscles follows. Sometimes the child stumbles in walking and drops what it tries to hold. Pallor, listlessness and irritability are symptoms that early show that the blood and nerves are failing to meet the demands made upon them and that St. Vitus dance has fastened its hold upon the child.

In this condition there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which build up the blood and meet the demands of the growing child, out-of-door exercise, nourishing food, plenty of sleep with these tonic pills will cure even the most severe cases of St. Vitus dance. I offer the following proof: "Up to the age of ten years," says Mrs. Johnson of Hemford, N.S., "my son Calvin was as healthy and rugged as any child could be. Then he began to complain that his nerves hurt him, and of pains in the head, and began to fall back in his studies at school. Then I noticed a twitching of the muscles of his face and arms, and later his whole body seemed to be in constant motion. Our family physician was called in and pronounced the trouble a severe attack of St. Vitus dance. He was under the doctor's treatment for some three months but did not seem to improve. We had taken him from school and were careful that nothing should excite them, but notwithstanding he grew worse, and the least start would bring on attacks of hysteria. This went on for some months until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my attention, and we decided to give him this medicine. After using a few boxes there was noticeable improvement, and by the time he had taken nine or ten boxes he had recovered his former good health. There has been no sign of a return of the trouble, and I can scarcely say how thankful we feel for the complete restoration of our son's health."

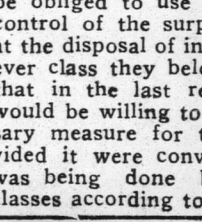

Parents who find their growing boys or girls becoming nervous should lose no time in giving them Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You may ward off an attack of St. Vitus dance, or if the trouble will effect a cure. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

War and Thrift

There are resources enough in this country to bear any burden that is likely to be laid on us on our own account or that of our allies, if we know how to organize them and face the situation bravely. We need not worry ourselves with the nightmare of national bankruptcy, or even regard as inevitable the reaction of poverty and distress which followed the Napoleonic wars. But we have to live in war with the constant memory that we are at war; we have our own burden and we should pass the consequences to those that come after and we have to divide the burden that there shall be no sense of bitterness or injustice between different classes of the population.

The key to the problem is, as Mr. McKenna said to the House of Commons a day or two ago, the practice of thrift—that unlovely virtue, as it has been called, which may be transferred into something more excellent by the spirit which is put into it. If we could imagine the money spent on luxuries and superfluities suddenly diverted, along with the labor that goes with it, to the maintenance and equipment of army and navy, we should get at once a large part of what we need. All, or the chief part, of what now goes on drink and tobacco, expensive motor cars, costly dresses and amusements would pass to the Chancellor of the Exchequer and be used by him for defeating the Germans. But we have only to say this to know that, human nature being what it is, it could only happen by a miracle which is not to be expected, or under a sharp compulsion brought home to each individual. The atmosphere of war does not in itself make for economy; the sound of revs by night is not quenched by the noise of the guns; it is the universal habit to make the coming and going of soldiers the excuse for festivities which spread to a wide circle of non-combatants.

At the present moment the necessity of thrift is brought home to a large number of the business and professional classes. Barristers, solicitors, architects, engineers, literary people of all sorts, large groups of business people who cannot face-about and provide munitions of war or food and clothing for the armies, are all feeling the pinch of the war, and with shrinking incomes and increasing income tax are under a positive necessity of retrenching their expenditure. Here, as in other respects, we are bound to bear in mind that, if voluntary effort failed, the state would be obliged to use its power to get control of the surplus which is now at the disposal of individuals, to whatever class they belonged. We believe that in the last resort the country would be willing to accept any necessary measure for this purpose, provided it were convinced that justice was being done between different classes according to their means.

Famous Men in the News

Mr. H. L. Plummer, of the firm of Lyon and Plummer, stock brokers, Toronto, has transferred his seat on the Toronto Exchange to his partner and has gone to the front. Lieutenant Plummer retains his interest in the firm. He is a relative of Mr. J. H. Plummer, president of the Dominion Steel Corporation.

Lord Harlech, who has been given command of the newly-formed regiment of Welsh Guards, is an eminently fitting choice as the "March of the Men of Harlech" may be considered the national anthem of Wales. Lord Harlech is an old military man, who is the only son, who is a member of Parliament, is serving at the front with his regiment. The "March of the Men of Harlech" dates back to the time of Henry VI, when the Castle of Harlech was besieged.

Captain A. Taylor, of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers, who has just been killed at the Dardanelles, although not a Montreuil was connected with a family who formerly lived in that city. His father, Mr. Reid Taylor, resided in London for a time but is now living in Switzerland and educated in England. He served through the South African Campaign with distinction, after serving under Kitchener in the Sudan. He was thirty-seven years of age.

Mr. C. W. Clinch, for many years manager of the chief Toronto office of the Molson's Bank, died in that city yesterday, aged sixty-eight years. The late Mr. Clinch was born in England and educated in that country, coming to Canada as a young man of twenty-three and immediately entered the Molson's Bank. He was manager of branches at Hamilton, St. Thomas, Ingersoll and Toronto, retiring from active work a few years ago. He was regarded as a most competent official.

Lord Cresham, a lieutenant of the Tenth Hussars, has been wounded in France, attained his majority and has become engaged all at the same time—surely enough troubles for a man. Lord Cresham's family has been considerably in the limelight during the past few years. His father broke his neck while following the hounds, a sister met the same fate, his only brother was killed in the South African War, while domestic troubles also added to the grief taken in this family. Cresham owns a large amount of London real estate and is connected with some of the most important families in the old country.

Lieutenant F. S. Meighen, who has just returned to Canada from fighting in France, is the only son of the late Robert Meighen, and is a nephew of Lord Mount Stephen. He was born in the city of Montreal in 1869, educated at McGill University and then entered business under his father. He succeeded the latter as president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, is a director of the Bank of Toronto and of a number of other corporations. Lieutenant Meighen commenced his military career with the Highlanders, attaining to command of the regiment in 1906. He later transferred to the Grenadier Guards as second in command and when war broke out went overseas in command of the Fourteenth Battalion.

Captain E. R. Street, of Toronto, who has been awarded the D. S. O., is the son of the late Mr. Justice Street, Captain Street was educated at Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto, which he left to enter the army. He joined the Hampshire Regiment in 1899 as lieutenant and served during the South African War. Seven years later he was forced to resign his commission as captain because of ill-health, but at the outbreak of the present war he again offered his services and was given a captaincy in the Sherwood Foresters. He has been at the front since January. Captain Street is another Canadian who has made good at the front.

Mr. Hugh J. O'Beirne, who has been promoted to the rank of Counsel at the British Embassy at Petrograd to the post of British Ambassador at the Court of Bulgaria, is a distinct step in the efforts being made to win over Bulgaria to the side of the Allies. He succeeded Sir Henry Bax-Insirade, who has been a failure at Sofia. O'Beirne was educated at Oxford and commenced his diplomatic career at Petrograd, where he acquired a wonderful knowledge of the Russian language. This stood him in good stead in the negotiations which were carried on in Paris when an effort was being made to settle the Russian-British dispute over the sinking of the vessels of the Dogger Bank. O'Beirne has no liking for the Germans and while in Petrograd some years ago made such complimentary references to Germany that the German Embassy endeavored to have him removed. O'Beirne was recalled to England, but his explanation made to late King Edward and Sir Edward Grey were so satisfactory that he was honored by the King and then sent back to Petrograd, where the Russians made things so unpleasant for Count von Moltke, the German who had quarrelled with O'Beirne that he was forced to leave Petrograd. O'Beirne is a tactful, clever, persuasive Irishman and is expected to accomplish wonders in winning over Bulgaria.

PRINCESS RADZIWIŁŁ
DIES IN SILESIA

Berlin, via London, July 15.—Princess Marie Radziwiłł, widow of Prince Anton, former head of the Radziwiłł House, and adjutant to Emperor William I, is dead at her Kleinsteig Palace in Lower Silesia. She was 75 years old.

Princess Marie was a daughter of the Marquis of Castellane, and for years was a leader in German society. She was always visited on her birthday and at the New Year by the Emperor William.

The Cochrane to Winnipeg service of the National Transcontinental Railway was inaugurated.

FINANCE PEAC

So Says the French Soldier

Leader Viewing War.

By Special Wire to the Couriers, Paris, June 27—(Delayed)

"The Ministers of Finances of belligerent countries will be the first to advocate the armistices after the war," said Marcel Sembat, Socialist French minister of public instruction, in a statement to the Associated Press. M. Sembat is the first actual cabinet member to take a public stand for a Socialist in France. He said that during the war the minister said: "They will speak not the name of the superior idea of the budget and of public works, but of the philo-sophical considerations that might induce a limitation of armistices."

THE BURDEN

"I have come from a session of the chamber, to a discussion of war app. Two discourses, completely admirable from M. Meunier, general manager of the chamber of deputies (empiric committee, extent of the sacrifices it has imposed on us. You M. Meunier calculated the war cost France 50,000 francs a minute. The expenditure is not less than our Russians and Italians are heavy burden on their shoulders. Our adversaries, the Austrians, by financial burdens. You see recently the failure of the loan.

"If the war proves to be not an improbable one, the president of the cabinet after of finance to-day to say so and prepare the for it—endeavor to form what will be the state of finances of the belligerent at the conclusion of peace expect that the public debt of these countries will be a considerable number of

BIG SQUAD BOMB

Crown Prince H Most of His Rece in the Forest.

London, July 17.—Only gagements have been reported the last 24 hours from the battle front. Artillery taken place at many points, but the infantry has been few and isolated. Successful German attack on work north of the Aisne zone, which was preceded by a bombardment, in which ten 4,000 shells is the principal announced last night by War Office. Comparative times in the Argonne.

An aerial attack was made by a squadron of aeroplanes on the German station at Chauny. Six small bombs were dropped with great effect. Fire in two places among the
